Penn State Ag Progress Days Open Aug. 18-20

Scenes from Ag Progress Days of years past remind us that this is the week for the annual Penn State Ag Progress Days at Rockspring in Centre County. The combination of new products and machinery along with the research results and the new technology shown by the educators of agricultural science provides the reason why many farmers and agribusiness leaders will take a trip to "Happy Valley" Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday.

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co) — Visitors can take a cutting-edge lawn tractor out for a whirl, participate in a high-tech agricultural quiz show, or find out how to map a Pennsylvania farm using satellite and computers at Penn State's Ag Progress Days Aug. 18-20.

Sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, the event is held at the University's Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rock Springs, near State College.

The theme for many of the college's exhibits "Growing Pennsylvania: A Precision Business," focuses on how computers, space-age tools and technology can improve how we grow our crops and manage our natural resources.

Several new displays will explore precision agriculture and its role on Pennsylvania farms "The use of computers and satellite technology to pinpoint crop yields, insect populations and land use patterns offers a tremendous change in farming as we enter the 21st century," said David Wagner, assistant professor of agricultural engineering.

At the College Exhibits Building, visitors can learn how farmers can use precision agriculture and satellite technologies A field mapping demonstration will allow visitors to pinpoint the location of their farm and then print out an aerial-view map of the property. A display on remote sensing technology will show how farmers and scientists can use computers, infrared equipment, and other sensing tools to collect data from areas as small as a single plant leaf to acre-sized plots of farmland.

Empire Farm Days Play In Seneca Falls Last Week

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

SENECA FALLS, N.Y.—"If your business is agriculture, your business is here."

Melaine Wickham, show manager for Empire Farm Days, works on this premise and the results are obvious. This multi-state farm show, headquartered at the Rodman Lott & Son farm just south of Seneca Falls, was held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday to record crowds and exhibitor-expressed satisfaction.

The show originated in the 1930's as the state potato field days at a different farm each year. As the potato industry changed and other agribusinesses wanted to participate, starting eleven years ago, the show has been held at the present permanent location. Wickham said that in her involvement over the last 12 years, she has seen many changes. For example: the exhibitor list has grown from 250 to nearly 600. The dairy seminar program has become larger and more focused. And this year a livestock handling seminar was added.

"But everything is new every year," Wickham said. "The exhibitors always bring their new products and machinery. We have expanded the show site on the east side of the field this year. We always have large field demonstrations."

Governor George Pataki added his presence to the event late Tuesday afternoon and toured the grounds, accepting the Crystal Apple Award from the New York State Farm Bureau and providing photo opportunities for the farm press.

"Farming is a common denominator between our past and our future," Governor Pataki said. "Our heritage is based in agriculture, and our future—especially the future of our rural communities—depends on the success of our farm families, which is why we've worked so hard to make sure our farm families thrive and survive."

At the conservation awards banquet Wednesday, Donald Davidsen, New York Commissioner of Agriculture, presented the State Environmental Stewardship Award to the Art and Ruth Graulich family, owners of Angus Acres, Sharon Springs, N.Y.

The Graulich farm, now also farmed by son David and his wife, Suzanne, and their young daughter Lara, has been in the family since 1948. Their first conservation efforts as a Schoharie County Soil and Water Conservation District cooperator. Since that time the

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Wheat bids turned higher due to some overnight export sales to South Korea and USDA lowering their estimate for 98/99 carryover stocks to 819 million bushels Corn and soybean bids fell moderately lower with only a few export sales on the books this week and good growing weather in the Midwest adding pressure USDA's estimate for corn production was actually lower than the July report Wheat steady to 9 cents higher Corn 3 to 5 cents lower Sorghum 7 cents lower Soybeans steady to 7 cents lower Earlier estimates of 868 million bushels for wheat stock carry-over was lowered to day by the USDA to 819 million bushels, pushing wheat bids higher Light export demand for all commodities this week

Soybean meal prices were lower again as demand continued slow Corn production estimate was forecast at 9 592 billion bushels the second largest crop on record Additional weakness stemmed from profit taking on the Board

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

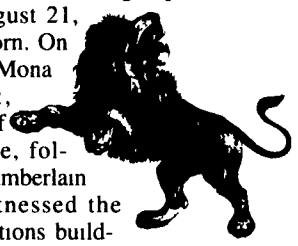
WHERE'D YOU GET THAT SMILE?

August 21 . what a day! On that day in 1878, the American Bar Association was formed. Exactly ten years later, in 1888, W S Burroughs patented the adding machine On August 21, 1904, Count Basie was born. On the same day in 1911, the Mona Lisa was stolen August 21, 1920, saw the birth of Christopher Robin Milne, followed in 1936 by Wilt Chamberlain In 1950, August 21 witnessed the opening of the United Nations building. And in 1959, Hawaii came into statehood Astrologically, August 21 is in Leo but on the cusp with Virgo Some call it "the day of the standout."



Each day I look for a kernel of excitement.

– Barbara Jordan

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Rugs and car mats should be beaten from the wrong side, then vacuumed or damp-sponged.

RED & YELLOW PEPPERS

6 large red bell peppers
4 large yellow bell peppers
1/2 cup olive oil
salt and pepper, to taste

Wash, then roast the red peppers by holding over a flame or broiling for about 15 minutes, turning often The skins should be nearly black all over. Cool, peel, and core, discarding the skins and seeds Wash and cut the raw yellow peppers into strips, discarding seeds Puree the yellow peppers with the olive oil until creamy Spoon yellow puree onto six salad plates, top with the red peppers, and season Great as a side dish with corn on the cob and grilled meats

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

A fog in August indicates a severe winter and plenty of snow.

As August, so next February.

August rain gives honey, wine, and saffron.

OPINION

All Roads Lead To Happy Valley

The annual trip to Rockspring in Centre County is on the schedule for all agriculturalists in Pennsylvania and surrounding states who want to be part of the premier scientific research and new technology event of the year. Ag Progress Days, sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, again promises to provide the showcase of what's new in agriculture.

The theme, "Growing Pennsylvania: A Precision Business," focuses on how computers, space-age tools, and technology can improve how we grow our crops and manage our natural resources. Several new displays will explore precision agriculture and its role on Pennsylvania farms.

There will be something for everyone. For example, a special version of the show for children, called SciQ Jr., is played daily. Patterned after television game shows, SciQ is hosted by local radio personalities and contestants are chosen from the audience.

Of course, many farmers go to Ag Progress to see the new tractors and farm equipment in operation side by side in the fields. The crops look good this year, so the field demonstrations will be of special value to those who want to make these comparisons.

And Ag Progress is a social event too. The Dairy of Distinction winners meet. The Alumni Association also meets. And Government Day brings together officials of Penn State and national, state, and local government.

So, again, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, all roads lead to Happy Valley. We hope to see you there.

To Look At Biofilters

Leon Ressler, Lancaster County Extension Environmental Agent, reports recent work by Dr Dick Nocolai, University of Minnesota, is demonstrating the potential biofilters have to reduce odors from swine operations

Building air is blown through the pit beneath the floor and exhausted through the biofilter The biofilter is made of a 50/50 mixture of wood chips and yard waste compost Wooden shipping pallets are used as the support structure for the filter material Plastic netting on the pallets and over the compost mixture helps keep the organic medium in place

Microorganisms in the biofilter consume the odorous gases before they are vented to the outside Since biofilters are living systems, they must be managed to keep the organisms alive Early results on the University of Minnesota biofilter have been encouraging When first installed the biofilter reduced odors 61 per cent The odors were reduced 90 per cent in a second test and a third test showed a 97 per cent reduction in odors The odor reduction increases as the microorganisms multiply and adapt to the food source

To Buy Hay Based on Tests

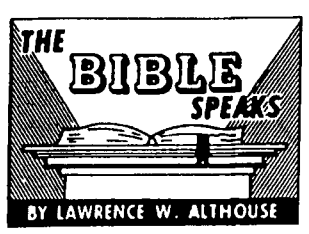
Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reports two different studies were conducted comparing what farmers saw and the actual feeding value of the hay based on forage analysis

In the first study, 200 farmers were asked to evaluate four bales of hay Only 20 per cent selected the bale with the highest quality The lowest quality bale was selected by 45 per cent as being the best

The second study looked at hay sold at auction The hay sold based on what the buyer saw had very little correlation between price and feed value For example one load with 20 per cent protein sold for $100 per ton while a load with a 8 5 per cent protein sold for $120 per ton

Lesson to learn, whenever possible buy hay based on forage analysis, not its looks

Feather Prof 's Footnote 'The roots of progress are nourished by diversity "



Background Scripture:
Proverbs 11 12, 13; 12 18; 13 3, 15 1, 2 ,23 23, 28, 16 24; 17 27, 21 23; 26,21, 28
Devotional Reading:
James 3 1-12

When I was about ten years old, I spent a lot of my lazy days of summer at the town playground where there was a lot of organized activity, including a baseball team that played in a township playground league I was a bit too young to be on the team, but I took pride in its accomplishments

One day, a few of the older boys were talking about a game that was scheduled to be played that evening Joining in the camaraderie, I asked, "Do you think we will win?" I'll never forget one older boy who turned to look at me with an Olympian sneer and said; "Where do you get this 'we' stuff? I realized then that he was telling me I did not belong It was a painful experience that I have never completely forgotten I have long since forgiven him, whoever he was

I don't know who first said, "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but names will never hurt me." It was a good enough rhyme, I suppose, but an erroneous precept I have known so many people who have been very hurt by careless or mean words Someone once said to me, "Well, sticks and stone can hurt us physically, while words can only hurt our feelings.: But even that is erroneous; spoken or written words can sometimes cause physical pain, too, because feelings are often transformed into physical symptoms

EMBELLISH THE TRUTH

If we want to be followers of Christ, we had better watch our mouths! It is easier said than done (no pun intended) One man told me he had always found it possible to keep the Ten Commandments, except 'Thou shalt not bear false witness ' I don t mean to lie he told me, but when I'm talking about my neighbor I find it hard not to embellish the truth, in my favor '

Sprinkled throughout the Book of Proverbs is a rich assortment of warnings about the danger of not controlling what comes out of our mouths

"He who belittles his neighbor lacks sense...He who goes about as a talebearer reveals secrets ." (11.12)

"There is one whose rash words are like sword thrusts " (12:18)

"He who opens wide his lips comes to ruin " (13.3)

" A harsh word stirs up anger the mouths of fools pour out folly " (15 1, 2)

"As charcoal to hot embers and wood to fire, so is a quarrelsome man for kindling strife " (26 21)

FROM MIND TO MOUTH

Belittling others, spreading falsities, speaking rash words, uttering harsh judgements, quarreling, lying, flattering –these are all ways in which we cause others pain by the words that come from our mouths The source of these evil words, of course, is not the mouth but the mind and spirit Our mouths only reflect what is inside us

The mouth, however, can be used or good as well as for evil Proverbs is just as explicit in cataloguing these. Instead of belittling, a man of understanding remains "silent" and "he who is trustworthy in spirit keeps a thing hidden" (11:12, 13) While he who speaks rashly injures, "the tongue of the wise man brings healing" (12:18). While the man who does not restrain his tongue brings ruin upon himself, "He who guards his mouth preserves his life" (13 3) Harsh words stir up anger, but "A soft answers turns away wrath" and "the tongue of the wise dispenses knowledge" (15 1, 2). "He who restrains his words has knowledge, and he who has a cool spirit is a man of understanding" (17 27) "He who keeps his mouth and his tongue keeps himself out of trouble" (21:23)

By watching carefully what we say, we help and heal others instead of hurting them With soft, peaceful words we can dissipate anger and hostility We can save others from ruin and share knowledge. And, if we do, our own lives will be blessed as well

134 Animals On Block At 2nd Chester Livestock Sale

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — The second year of the annual Chester County 4-H Livestock Show and Sale saw 134 animals going before the sale block Wednesday evening at the Romano 4-H Center of Chester County.

The show began last Saturday and finishes with the dairy show at 9:30 this morning at the center.

Early Wednesday evening marked the culmination of a year of buying, feeding, and preparing animals for the show, as about 100 exhibitors competed.

Following is a description of the grand champions of each of the species according to sale order.

Market Beef

Kasey McAllister paraded "Leo," her 1,306-pound Angus/Maine Anjou crossbred steer, in front of judge Ken Winebark, former Lebanon County livestock agent, Tuesday afternoon.

Kasey, 18, daughter of Bill and Karen McAllister, Spring City, named Leo because "he had a real big mane," she said. "He looked like a lion."

The steer, which won the middle weight division at the show, was homebred AI out of an Angus cow. For Kasey it was her first championship at the roundup sale. Leo, however, got first in the class at the Goshen Fair, she said.

Kasey helps on her family's 65-acre cow/calf farm. At the farm they have 25 head of brood cows and another 25 calves.

Kasey said the judge liked the steer for its muscling. As a calf, she remembers selecting it for the show because it was "real thick and long — a real nice calf," she said. Kasey, a sophomore at Wilson College studying veterinary medical technology, is a graduate of Owen J. Roberts high School. She plans to show at Farm Show.

The steer was purchased for $2.75 per pound for a total of $3,591.50 at Wednesday evening's sale by Dennis Byrne of Herr Food, represented by Dennis Byrne, for resale. The resale money will be donated to House of His Creations, Coatesville. According to Dottie Byrne, House of His Creations is a home for unwed mothers.

Reserve champion was shown by Eliza Walton, 13, daughter of Margaret and David Walton, Kennett Square. Eliza showed "Sullivan," a 1,352-pound heavyweight champion. The purebred Angus represents her first championship in steers for Eliza.

Eliza said she obtained a group of calves from Ben Walton before he moved to Virginia. She said a reserve champion is determined by "what you pick out and feed him with," she said. Eliza said her uncle, Frank Walton, selected the calf. She has shown at Goshen Fair and her family will show at Unionville.

The reserve was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Seafood House, represented by Erik Lindberg, Lionville, and Craig Campbell, corporate office, for $1.90 a pound for a total of $2,568.80.

Market Hogs

Beth Zerr owes a great deal of her championship at Tuesday evening's swine competition to her uncle, Scott Stoltzfus, who helped select almost two dozen hogs for various family competitors from Nelson Beam, Elverson.

Beth, 17, daughter of Sharon and David Zerr, Geigertown, showed her 245-pound light heavyweight division winner to grand champion hog. The York crossbred was selected from 20 that were raised by five cousins.

According to Scott Stoltzfus, the judge, Ken Winebark, liked the hog because it was the most muscular.

This was Beth's first championship at the roundup. She may attend this year's Farm Show. She is a senior at Twin Valley High School.

The champion was purchased by Thrifty Pallet Company, repre-

Reserve champion market steer was shown by Eliza Walton, 13, left, daughter of Margaret and David Walton, Kennett Square. Eliza showed "Sullivan," a 1,352-pound heavyweight champion. Purchaser was Hoss's Steak and Seafood House, represented by Erik Lindberg, Lionville, center, and Craig Campbell, corporate office, for $1.90 a pound for a total of $2,568.80.

Kasey McAllister paraded "Leo," her 1,306-pound Angus/Maine Anjou crossbred [illegible] championship at the Chester County 4-H Sale. The steer was purchased for [illegible] pound for a total of $3,591.50 at Wednesday evening's sale by Dennis Byrne of Herr Food for resale. From left, Dottie Byrne, Kasey, and Dennis Byrne.

Sara Howe, front, exhibited the reserve market lamb champion. The lamb was sold for $5.25 per pound to Paul, holding Daniel, 4, and Twila Ranck, of F.A.M.I.L.I.E.S., Parkesburg. From left, Twila holding Catherine, 6 months and Elizabeth, 7; Maria, 11; Martha Joy, 5; Jason, 12; and Barbara, 9.

Farm Bureau Plans Special Events At Ag Progress Exhibits

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is inviting visitors to Ag Progress Days, taking place August 18-19-20, to stop by its exhibit for some special events this year.

As in years past, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau will have an exhibit at its usual location near the corner of East Fifth and Main streets at the show. However this year instead of being in a tent, Farm Bureau's exhibit will be housed in a new 42-foot by 88-foot agricultural building constructed by Walters Buildings of Cable, Ohio.

"The building will provide a permanent structure to house our exhibit and a comfortable, weather-proof environment for the thousands of people who visit our exhibit each year," said Farm Bureau President Guy Donaldson.

"We're proud of the new building and want to show it off during Ag Progress Days. It's a confirmation of our long-term commitment to Penn State's Ag Progress Days and our relationship with the College of Agricultural Sciences," Donaldson said.

In honor of the new building, Farm Bureau is planning two special events during Ag Progress Days.

A brief ribbon-cutting ceremony is scheduled for 11 a.m., August 18 in front of the building. Donaldson is to be on hand to officially open the building to the public. Afterward there will be refreshments for those attending the ceremony.

On Wednesday, August 19 a building dedication and flag raising ceremony is set for 1:30 p.m. Several agricultural leaders have been invited to make brief remarks, including the Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, the dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, and the chairmen and vice chairmen of the state House and Senate Agriculture committees. A representative from Walters Building will also speak.

The event is to conclude with the release of 1,000 homing pigeons in front of the building for a 100-mile race sanctioned by the Blue Mountain Invitational Combine, affiliated with the International Federation of Homing Pigeon Fanciers.

"It promises to be an unforgettable afternoon at our exhibit." said Donaldson.

Farm Bureau will present a trophy and $100 prize to the owner of the winning bird, Wednesday evening in Schuylkill Haven. Second and third place prizes will also be presented.

In addition to special events, visitors to Farm Bureau's Ag Progress exhibit will have the opportunity to talk with representatives of Farm Bureau's many member programs and services. These include Blue Cross and Blue Shield group health insurance, Safemark farm supplies, Women's and Young Farmer & Rancher committees, Nationwide Insurance, money-saving member benefits, tax planning and computerized accounting business services, state and national legislative programs and the Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture Foundation.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is a voluntary, statewide farm organization which represents more than 26,000 farm and rural families.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring located on Route 45, nine miles southeast of State College. The show features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstrations. Show hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday with extended hours to 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Admission and parking are free.

Being Wool Queen 'Sounded Cool,' Says Ashley

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Ashley Shollenberger admits she's not one to wear skirts and blouses.

"Actually I'm totally jeans and T-shirts," she said. "I can't stand skirts."

But the new Berks County wool queen enjoys the idea of being queen. The idea "sounded cool," Ashley admitted. "It has a lot of prestige."

On Tuesday at the Kutztown Fair, Ashley, 16, daughter of Jeff and Penny Shollenberger, Mohrsville, was trimming and fitting her Oxford yearling ewe, "Mackenzie," a name she borrowed. "I heard it on TV and liked it," Ashley said.

The home-schooled queen was readying for the fitting and showmanship contest of which began the night she was crowned at the fair.

She has been showing at the fair four years. The four-year Berks County Sheep and Lamb Club member said this is the first time she has been a queen.

Is she prepared?

She believes so. She has no public speaking worries. She served as toastmaster of her leadership forum in March this year at the county 4-H ag center. She's also a vice president of her club.

Ashley raises Oxford sheep. She has five ewes. She works with her brother, Justin, who also has an Oxford ram. Her sister, Amber, has Cheviots.

Ashley said she plans to attend college to study "animals or little kids.

"But little kids are easier to work with," she said.

Graulichs have instituted conservation practices and projects every year, and their consistent work has added up to an impressive list of accomplishments.

In making the presentation, Davidsen said that agriculture often gets a bad rap for conservation, but obviously the people who do this don't know what they are talking about.

"We are dispelling these ideas with the 'practical environmentalists' that farmers represent," Davidsen said. "Farmers leave the land better for their children and grand- children. We should be able to use the land and enjoy it. I am pleased with the state programs that tend to move us forward. We want to pay to preserve farmland to be farmland," he said.

Also honored with a state Environmental Stewardship Award was the Lewis and Linda Stuttles family of Dryden, N.Y. They have a grazing dairy operation with a 215 cow registered Holstein herd. They have been cooperators with the Tompkins County Soil and Water Conservation District since 1964.

The conservation awards are sponsored by the American Agriculturist, the Department of Agriculture and Markets, and the Empire State Potato Club.

Two conservation districts with outstanding service shared a $1,000 award presented by the New York Potato Club. Ameican Agriculturist magazine made the selections. Winners were the Schohorie County Soil and Water Conservation District, represented by Stephen Hoerz, and the Topkins County Soil and Water Conservation District represented by Craig Schutt.

In the dairy profit seminars sponsored by Agway, a group of accomplished dairymen from across the nation brought their experiences to the forum. On Tuesday, Don Rogers moderated under the topic of unique yet profitable ways to take charge of your own destiny.

Pete Mapstone, Pastureland Dairy, Manlius, N.Y., converted to a pasture-based feeding plan, and labor and expenses were cut in

Nearly 600 exhibitors set up displays and field demonstrations at the Empire Farm Days this year.

More than 10 different pieces of machinery were demonstrated in the forage cutting demonstrations.

Mary Whittier, Whittier Farms, Sutton, MA, reported they were fed up with rising hauling costs, low milk prices and unfair demands of their handler. They became milk haulers, processors, and retailers of their own milk. Year-round demand for their bottled milk prompted the construction of their own farm store.

Warren Facey, Peter and Faith Williams, and Leyden and Shelburne worked together to form an innovative, low-cost way to market their milk.

On Wednesday, Dave Galton moderated the topic of how to use sand bedding in your dairy.

Velmar Green, Green Meadows FArm, Elsie, MI, has been using sand bedding for eight years. They have installed a new sand separator to remove manure.

Slade Cox, Spruce Haven Dairy, Union Springs, NY, operates a 1,000 cow dairy and research facility. They have compared sand bedding to conventional bedding and shown a big advantage for sand.

Eric Clifford, Starksboro, VT, has made cow confort a priority. He has experimented with stall size, style, and bedding, and remodeled facilities to improve air quality.

Chuck Guard, Cornell University medical clinic, reminded dairy farmers to keep cows in the production string longer you must take care of their feet.

On Thursday, Corwin Holtz was the moderator. The discussion centered around the storage, shrink, loading, mixing, and monitoring true dry matter intakes of feed.

Dave Sumrall, general manager of the Aurora Dairy Group, Longmont, Colorado, has developed an elaborate management spreadsheet that allows him to track and monitor true feed intake and costs every day.

Dan Titus, Barbland Farms, Fabius, NY, knew feed was being wasted so he began to track feed by ingredient. This reduced on-farm feed losses.

Gerry Kuhl, extension feedlot specialist, Kansas State University, showed how the beef feedlot industry can provide some valuable tips to the dairy producer. These are based on feed bunk management and feed inputs.

Joanne Sicilliano-Jones, Sicilliano Dairy, Homer, NY, evaluated digestability and rations in a practical on-farm setting.

Mark Gardner, Western NY Agway Ag Products, talked about cowside treatments related to nutrition.

As in the past, the full-tent of dairy farmers especially appreciated hearing from other dairy producers who talked about different technology and management practices they've implemented on their farms. Of course the discussion parts of the program were well-received.

On Tuesday, a special three-day tour of vegetable and fruit farms and processing plants that was in progress simultaneously with Empire Farm Days stopped in for a luncheon and press conference.

The Post Office again offered a special Empire Farm Days hand-cancelled stamp.

A special cattle handling demonstration was performed by Martha Wright, Cornell cooperative extension, Northwest team. Wright said they wanted to introduce and enforce the idea that folks need to think about a handling system for livestock that need not be elaborate but uses the animals' natural instincts of movement.

"Safety of the handler and the animal is important," Wright said. "We want the system to allow the animals to be quiet. Not so much what I will make them do, but I will let them do what I want. We want to work easier, not harder."

The Clean Water Farm Award presented recently to the Steve Groff family was reported as coming from the Chesapeake Bay Foundation. Actually the award was presented by the Chesapeake Bay Program. We are sorry for the error.

sented by Bill Fairbairn, for resale for $3.25 per pound for a total of $796.25.

Reserve champion was shown by Phillip McAllister, brother of the grand champion beef winner. Phillip showed the heavyweight champion, a 258-pound crossbred.

Phillip, 14, son of Bill and Karen McAllister, Spring City, is in the 10th grade at Owen J. Roberts High School. Phillip said he and his father selected the hog from the Parlett and Holloway Sale at the Solanco Fairgrounds at the end of April.

Phillip said the judge, Ken Winebark, Myerstown, liked the hog's leanness. Phillip has won champion hog and reserve champion before at the Chester County sale. He plans to attend Farm Show to show hogs.

Phillip's reserve champion was sold to Hoss's Steak and Seafood House, represented by Erik Lindberg and Craig Campbell, for $2.50 per pound for a total of $645.

Market Lambs

The Howe sisters, Julia, 13, and Sara, 16, swept the market lamb show on Monday. Both homeschooled, they are the daughters of Lamar and Mary Howe, Downingtown.

Julia, grand champion, won with a 114-pound medium weight champion, a crossbred Suffolk wether named "Andy." Julia, a seventh grader, said she named two sheep in her flock "Raggedy Ann and Andy."

Julia noted that the lamb was purchased in May at the New Holland Sales Stables. Sara, who won reserve champion with a 102-pound lightweight Southdown crossbred, noted that both were selected by Ken Smoker at the sale.

"Ken Winebark liked everything about the champion," Julia noted.

About her reserve champion, Sara noted the judge liked the lamb's "well-proportioned and clean front shoulders."

Both began their roundup experience showing hogs and steers. Sara has been involved in 4-H about nine years and Julia about seven years. They are both members of the Golden Fleece 4-H Sheep Club.

The grand champion shown by Julia was sold to D. Howe and Sons, represented by the Doug Howe family, Wagontown, for $6 per pound for a total of $684. Sara Howe sold her reserve to Paul and Twila Ranck, Parkesburg, for $5.25 per pound for a total of $535.50. The Rancks represent F.A.M.I.L.I.E.S., which stands for Fathers And Mothers Illustrating Love In Everyday Situations.

Save nutrients.....
Use KEMIN Silage Savor®!

Today's silage quality was determined when it was harvested! When harvesting corn silage this fall, you need to think about how stable it will be next summer in the feed bunk. Yeast is a major cause of unstable silage. When yeast-laden silage is exposed to oxygen, yeast rapidly grow resulting in heating, spoilage, and nutrient loss.

Silage Savor® NC

Recent research conducted at the University of Delaware by Dr. Limin Kung* shows corn silage preserved with a buffered blend of acids at ensiling is more stable at time of feeding. Dr. Kung's research further demonstrated the Kemin's Silage Savor® was 30% more effective in the control of yeast than two other competitors

When making silage, go with the product which was proven by research and on the farm. GO WITH SILAGE SAVOR®.

FDA Publishes Labeling Rules For Animal Drugs

ROCKVILLE, Md. – In the June 17, 1998, Federal Register, FDA published a final rule on the labeling of drugs for use in milk-producing animals

This rule removes the existing 96-hour withdrawal time limitation, eliminates the requirement to calculate and label on the basis of the number of 12-hour milking periods that have elapsed since treatment and permits a milk-discard or withdrawal time to be calculated by elapsed hours since treatment.

FDA is taking these actions to allow greater flexibility in the labeling of these drugs which will make it easier and more economical for sponsors to comply with the regulations.

The previous 96-hour limitation was based on FDA's perception that 96 hours constituted a maximum practical withdrawal time for the dairy industry.

However, FDA now recognizes that a withdrawal time longer than 96 hours may be desirable and practical in certain circumstances. Removal of the 96-hour limitation will allow the possibility of a longer withdrawal time to be considered for milk-producing animals on a case-by-case basis depending on the use and safety of the drug.

Similarly, the 12-hour milking schedule was established to calculate the number of milkings that occur during the withdrawal period. The 12-hour milking interval was considered to be generally reflective of dairy practice when this regulation was published; however, alternative milking schedules, such as three times a day milking, are in common use in the dairy industry today.

The new rules revise the regulation so that the length of the milk cycle is not specified, eliminating the reference to the milking interval as long as milk is discarded the assigned number of hours after the latest drug treatment.

Finally A Kutztown First Place, Grand Champion For Sattazahn

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — An improved udder and more expression of maturity on the cow allowed first-time Kutztown champion (not to mention first-time Kutztown Fair first-place winner) David Sattazahn, Womelsdorf, take home the grand champion Holstein trophy here Monday.

David, 13, is the son of Dennis and Betsy Sattazahn and is in the 8th grade at Conrad Weiser Junior High School. David won open and junior grand champion of the Holstein show.

David has shown at the fair four other times, coming only as close as second place with Zahncroft Astre Lollipop (S: Astra, D: Zahncroft Inspiration Linda) as a 2-year-old last year. This year, Zahncroft Astre won champion overall as a junior 3-year-old, GP with a lactation of 19,656, 591f, more than 600p, projected at more than 20,000 pounds, according to David. The cow was homebred.

"Her udder was better than last time," said David. David said the judge "liked her udder and size — she's pretty big — and her hocks. She was the tallest in the class."

David has shown at the Schuylkill County Fair and has shown in the past at Reading.

Reserve champion of the open show went to Mike Davis, Leesport, for his junior 2-year-old, JMJ-Springpond Donaro Jody (S: C Latoma Donaro, D: JMJ-Springpond Astre Jo), owned by Ray Davis. According to Mike, the judged liked the homebred cow's "udder, feet and legs." Mike has shown previous champions at Kutztown.

Junior reserve champion went to Trisha L. Geist, Mertztown, for G-Reu-Hel Ocean Riddles (S: Reu-Hel Mandel Ocean, D: G-Reu-Hel Jed Ridges), a senior calf.

In the junior show, champion was shown by Lynette Heffner, daughter of Martha and David Pool, Robesonia. Lynette, 17, is a recent graduate of Conrad Weiser. She showed a senior calf and has shown champions in the past at the fair. Lynette will be exhibiting at the All American next month and was scheduled to show beef cattle at Kutztown.

Judge for the show was Douglas Seidel, Massachusetts. Following are the show placings.

Penn State Establishes Center for Plasticulture

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Scientists from Penn State's colleges of Agricultural Sciences and Earth and Mineral Sciences are collaborating with researchers from three other major universities to establish the Center For Plasticulture, which will fund and initiate research on the use of plastic films and other plastic products in agriculture

"The use of plastic materials has increased dramatically," said Michael Orzolek, professor of vegetable crops and director of the center "Plastic products have allowed Pennsylvania farmers and producers to reduce pesticide use, extend the growing season for certain crops, increase crop yields and harvest more efficiently."

Orzolek said the Center for Plasticulture will focus on three areas developing technology for the use of plastics in agriculture, developing production guides and information related to specific crop applications, and research on recovering plastics for use as energy sources or recycled products. In addition to scientists from the College of Agricultural Sciences, the center will include researchers from the Penn State Combustion Laboratory in the college of Earth and Mineral Sciences, the University of New Hampshire, McGill University and Rutgers University

Orzolek said the center will generate research and educational outreach programs centering on all types of plastics used in agriculture Plastic agricultural materials include silage covers, hay bale wraps greenhouse covers, plastic mulch, drip irrigation tape and tubing, row covers, nursery house coverings, plastic pots, and plastic containers and trays.

"The center also will work with food processors to study plastic packaging of agricultural products." Orzolek said.

Orzolek said, the plastics research program is crucial to the development of Pennsylvania's agricultural economy as the state faces competition from major production areas where weather conditions are more favorable.

"Pennsylvania has a short growing season that includes substantial periods of temperature and moisture extremes," Orzolek said. "These factors limit crop productivity and encourage insect and disease infestations

"Plastic use in agriculture offers several advantages to growers," Orzolek said "It reduces temperature and moisture fluctuations, acts as a management tool for control of insets and disease, and allows more precise irrigation and nutrient application."

Members of the Center of Plasticulture on the College of Agricultural Sciences faculty include Orzolek; William Lamont, associate professor of vegetable crops; David Beattie, associate professor of ornamental horticulture; Dennis Decoteau, professor and head of the horticulture department; and James Garthe, instructor in agricultural and biological engineering.

Other members of the center include Sarma Pisupati, assistant professor of fuel science in Penn State's College of Earth and Mineral Sciences; Brent Loy, professor of vegetable crops at the University of New Hampshire; Katrine Steward, professor and head of the horticulture department at McGill University; and Gene Giacomelli, professor of bioresource engineering at Rutgers University.

Cooperative Effort Builds Variety Trial Greenhouse

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Commercial plant growers in Pennsylvania, especially in the central and southeastern region where the industry is concentrated, are to have a greenhouse where new and of-interest, decorative plant varieties can be tested for local performance.

The greenhouse is under construction at the Penn State Southeast Research and Extensioni Center in Landisville and a ribbon-cutting ceremony and announcement of the facility was held Tuesday, in conjunction with a Penn State flower trial field day at the center.

The welcome and dedication was done by Michelle Rodgers, director of the Capital Region of Penn State Cooperative Extension and Outreach; Jay Sheely, chairman of the Greenhouse Planning Committee; and John Yocum, extension specialist and farm manager.

The facility was the result of long time discussions among commerical growers and Penn State Extension people.

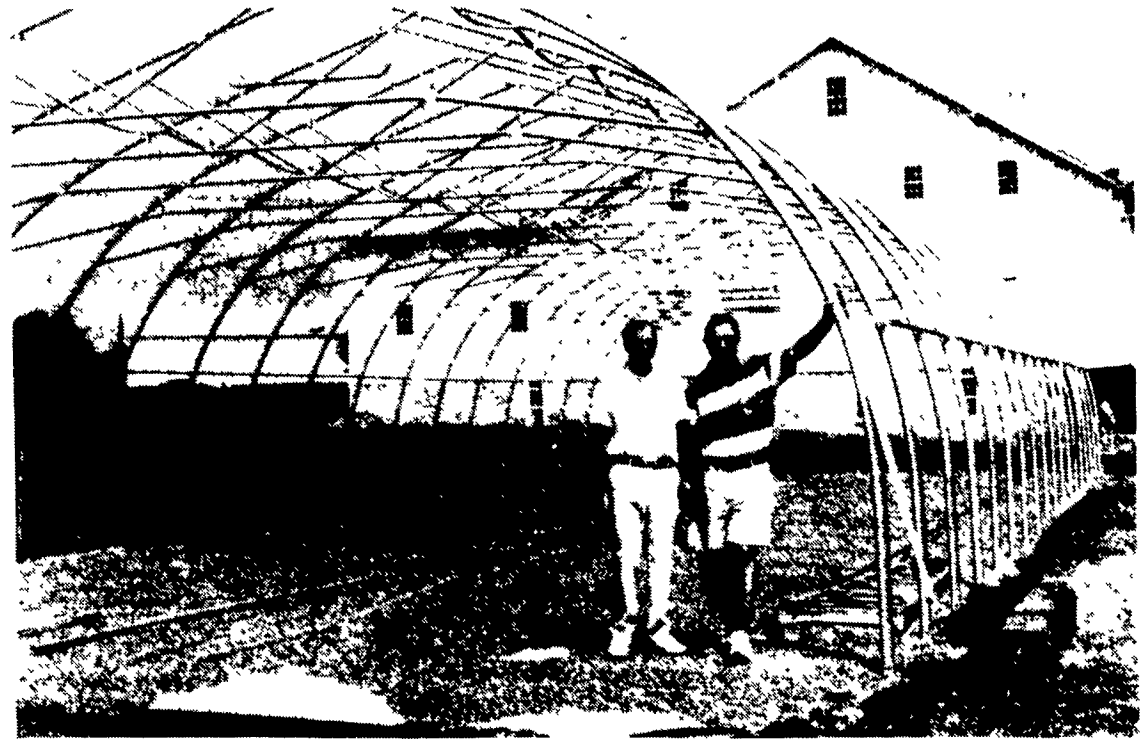
As it is, Penn State conducts some limited variety trials through cooperation with the greenhouse production industry.

The problem has been in a lack of consistency of conditions and technology used in the variety evaluations, as well as a lack of available and dependable commercial greenhouse space that can be used for dedicated variety trials.

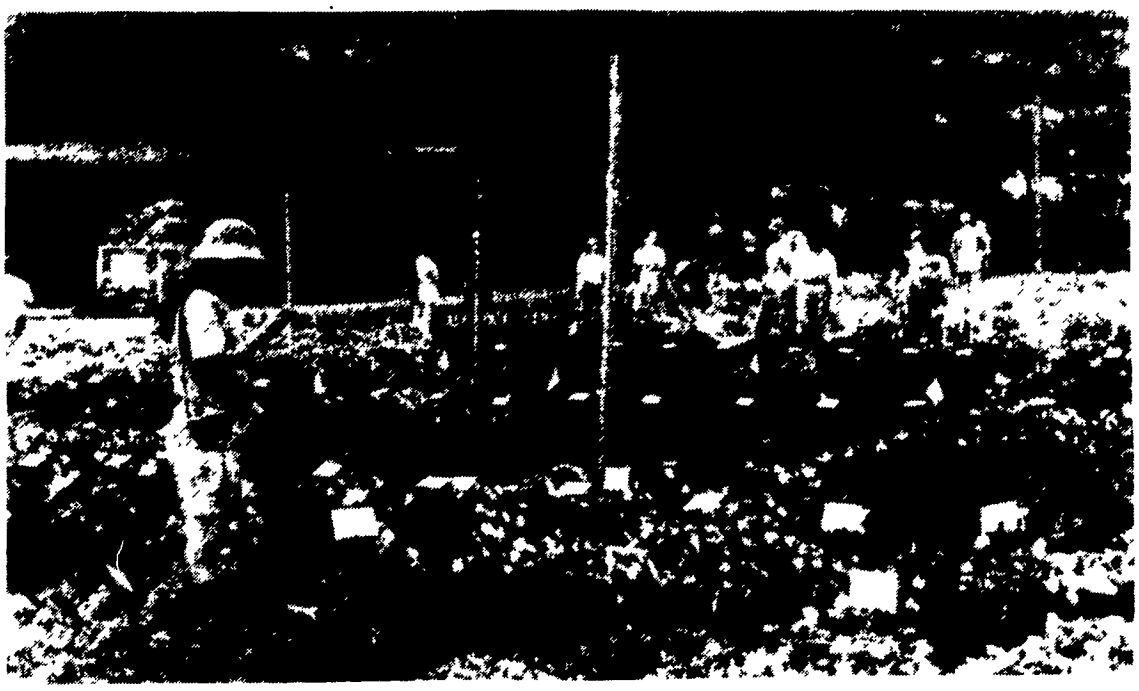
After people involved with the Pennsylvania Flower Growers Association, the commercial industry representatives, and Penn State talked about the idea of having one, dedicated, leading-edge facility with a consistent staff and growing conditions in order to provide more reliable variety trials, the project began to move forward.

Representatives of the PFGA and the commercial industry approached Penn State with a commitment of $20,000 in supplies and some cash in order to build the facility, and were met a likewise commitment from Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Even though Penn State has a fairly large horticultural trial gardens at its State College main campus, the Capital Region was selected as a suitable area for the new greenhouse facility since the industry is concentrated in that part of the state, the plants are to be greenhouse raised from cuttings only, and growing conditions could be assumed to be more appropriate to those experienced by commercial growers.



From the left, Dick Berry representing D&L Grower Suplies in Leola, and Alan Michael, multi-county horticultural extension agent, stand under the frame of the under-construction plant variety trial greenhouse at the Penn State South East Research and Extension Center in Landisville. The greenhouse is a cooperative effort between Penn State, the commercial industry and the Pennsylvania Flower Grower Association.



Participants in this week's two-day Penn State Flower Trail Field Days check out different varieties and their performance. It is the seventh year for the trials.

John Yocum and the staff at the Landisville facility (located along Auction Road, west of Manheim) are to maintain the facility. The research farm is involved in a number of different commercial crop production research trials, such as with controlling weeds, raising tobacco, etc.

The Penn State Flower Trial Field Days were held from 12:30 p.m. Monday through 3 p.m. Tuesday. The greenhouse ceremony was done early Tuesday before guided tours of the trial grounds were intiated.

Participants, many taking notes and some photographs, were able to evaluate for themselves the varieties set out under screened areas or in display plots.

They also were able to receive pesticide applicator continuing education credits through attending presentations by Gary Moorman, Penn State professor of plant pathology, who provided an update on plant diseases; and Kerry Hoffman, a pesticide edcuation specialist (and integrated pest management specialist) who provided an update on greenhouse pesticides and regulations.

Field trial organizers were Alan H. Michael, Penn State multi-county horticulture agent based out of the Dauphin County Extension Office, and Robert Berghage, Penn State assistant professor of horticulture.

Penn State, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Flower Growers and the general industry, has conducted the trials for seven years.

According to a list of contributors to the variety trials, commercial growers who raised varieties for this year's trials were Esbenshade Greenhouse in Lititz; Green Leaf Enterprises in Leola and

Homer City; Herman Lederer Sons in Parkerford; Layser's Flowers Inc. in Myerstown; Quality Greenhouse in Sunbury; Penn State Berks County Horticulture; Penn State Horticulture Department at University Park; and Oglevee Floral in Connellsville.

A number of master gardners in Dauphin and Lancaster counties assisting in the planting, and plants were supplied by 14 different providers, including some of the greenhouse cooperators. Materials were supplied by five different businesses.

Recognized for providing special effort toward this year's trials were the Pennsylvania Flower Grower Association; Jay Sheely with F.C. Gloeckner Co. in Palmyra, who was thanked for helping to provide plant materials and assist with planting and organization; Robert Berghage with the Penn State Department of Horticulture, who was thanked for assisting in the trial evaluation, organization and putting information on the World Wide Web; John Yocum, for providing resources and supervising trails; Jim Widders, John Stepanchik, Jonathan Cobel, and Aeril Swarz, all with the South East Research and Extension Center, for maintaining trials; Andy Brown with Ball Seed in Harrisburg, for plant materials and organizational efforts; Chris Nyce with E.C. Geiger of Collegeville, for planting, contributing containers, growing media and irrigation supplies; and Dick Berry with D&L Growers Supplies for materials, support and supplies.

According to Alan Michael, people such as Dick Berry, whose company was involved with Les Industries Harnois Inc of Canada, in contributing the Ovaltech II greenhouse, helped make the greenhouse project a possibility through initiating talks with others and promoting the concept of establishing a dedicated variety trial greenhouse facility.

According to Michael, who works with the growers in his extension capacity, the greenhouse is expected to relieve the contributions of greenhouse space by growers.

This is important because greenhouse space is at a premium in the early spring when the actual trials are started every year. The greenhouses are also busy preparing for the upcoming selling season and trying to maximize efficiency of their operations.

Michael said the trials are reviewed by committee every January and the varieties proposed are those of interest to the commercial growers and those that may be of special interest to the committee, though not necessarily a specific commercial grower.

Though the greenhouse was actually just beginning to take shape this week, it is actually get its first plants about mid-September.

Michael said that poinsettias are to be used as a "shake down" crop — a first crop to test the facilities and systems, such as irrigation.

He said that trial variety cuttings generally are received in February, and that is expected to be when the first real set of cuttings are to be received for next year's greenhouse evaluations.

Since the trials began seven years ago, there has been a lot of interest in the results, according to Michaels. He said businesses and individuals within the Mid-Atlantic states region have been requesting the results.

The greenhouse trials are expected to make the data more reliable and also provide growers with the opportunity to see first-hand how the plants do in an actual setting.

Berry said his efforts for the greenhouse may not directly benefit his business. "As fas business, I'm not sure it means anything, but it is needed here."

Another goal for the facility is to also be able to demonstrate the pratical uses of some of the latest technologies, so that growers can also review some of that first hand, in case they are considering making upgrades or expanding.

For more information on the greenhouse, call Michael at (717) 921-8803.

ABS Global Buys Remaining Interest In Brazilian Partner

DEFOREST, Wis. – Cattle genetics company ABS Global Inc., has announced that it reached an agreement with Boasafra Genetics Ltda of Sao Paulo, Brazil to acquire Boasafra's 60 percent interest in its joint venture with ABS Global, Pecplan ABS, and thus obtain full ownership of the company.

Pecplan ABS is the market leader in Brazil with substantial market shares in both beef and dairy markets.

" Pecplan ABS combines a strong local product line focusing on tropical breeds with imported North America and European genetics coming from ABS Global's affiliates around the world," according to Donario Lopes de Almeida, who has been named general manager of Pecplan ABS.

Brazil has the largest cattle population in the world, with an estimated 20 million dairy and 140 million beef cattle.

"The increasing use of artificial insemination combined with a growing interest for North American genetics makes Brazil one of the growth markets in cattle breeding" according to Jesus Martinez, general manager for Latin America of ABS Global.

"The transaction with Boasafra Genetics gives ABS Globa 100 percent control over the operations of Pecplan ABS and allows us to accelerate the transfer of know-how to our Brazilian subsidiary," according to Marc Van't Noordende, president and CEO of ABS Global. "ABS Global will continue to evaluate acquisitions of this kind to grow our business.

ABS Global Inc. is a world provider of bovine reproduction services and technologies. Marketing in more than 70 countries around the globe, ABS has been involved with animal genetics and technology since its founding in 1941. The company is headquartered in DeForest, Wisconsin.

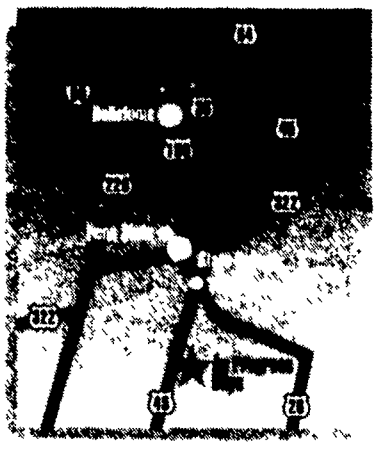
Other exhibits will include a demonstration of how municipalities and state agencies use computer-based layered map systems, called Geographic Information Systems (GIS), to analyze water resources, land-use patterns, utility grids, and other information in a central database. Exhibits on crop scouting and insect mapping also will be featured.

Precision recall of agricultural information is required as visitors to Ag Progress Days participate in SciQ, played daily at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the College Exhibits Building Theatre.

A special version of the show for children, called SciQ Jr., is played daily at 11 a.m. and Wednesday at 6 p.m. Patterned after television game shows, SciQ is hosted by local radio personalities and contestants are chosen from the audience. Admission is free.

The suburban homeowner or lawn-mowing fans will get a rare chance to test drive a variety of riding lawn mowers at the tractor ride-and-drive area. The popular attraction also gives agricultural professionals a chance to test and compare full-size tractors and other motorized farm equipment from different manufacturers in one location. Non-farmers are welcome to take a tractor or two on a test drive as well.

In the days before motorized tractors, agricultural work was accomplished using strong backs — human and animal. At the Pasto Agricultural Museum, visitors can examine items ranging from a varied collection of vintage milk bottles to a historical display of lighting technology. Other items on display include cooking pots, scythes, rug-beaters, ice cutting equipment and egg carriers.



Ag Progress Days' popular insect exhibit in the ImAGination Station will feature an information maze in which visitors must make their way through discovery stations to find answers to questions written on a treasure map All the discovery stations will focus on how we use the measurements in the world of agriculture.

Storyteller Jim Kinney will perform in the College Exhibits Building Theatre every day at noon, creating tales from memory for up to 45 minutes. The Family Room offers visitors demonstrations on using the food pyramid to maintain a healthy diet, as well as displays on family finance, health and safety

Professional growers and farmers seeking a profitable crop alternative can visit the cut-flower demonstration plot, where horticulture experts can discuss weed control, flower varieties and business plans. Lawn and garden experts also will be on hand at the Landscape, Lawn and Garden Tent throughout the event

An exhibit that will appeal to children and their parents is a display sponsored by Penn State's Students for the Responsible Use of Animals. Young calves, lambs, pigs and other livestock will be on display, and Penn State agriculture students will answer questions Shaver's Creek Environmental Center will show wildlife such as owls, hawks, turtles and snakes at its nearby tent. In addition, the new Junior Livestock arena will feature youngsters competing in the Lamb Skill-a-thon and live lamb show. Be sure to check out the new ventilated animal greenhouse, where visitors can see how to improve animal health, productivity and comfort

Other family-oriented activities include horse events, including a horseshoeing demonstration, educational displays and food booths offering culinary treats ranging from breaded mushrooms to University Creamery ice cream

Informational tours on a woodlot management, grazing and streambank conservation can be found at the Conservation Education Tent Buses will depart from the tent each day to take visitors on various tours demonstrating conservation techniques.

Bus tours leaving from the corn crib throughout each day will illuminate Penn State's research on potatoes, integrated crop management, fruit and vegetable production and many other programs.

There will be free CATA bus service all three days of the exhibition. The shuttle departs from College and Allen Streets (near the Corner Room restaurant) in downtown State College on the half-hour from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Aug. 18-20 On Aug. 19, when Ag Progress Days remains open until 8 p.m., there will be hourly departures from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Departure times for the return trip are hourly from 10 a m. to 4 p.m Aug 18-20, with hourly shuttles from 5 to 7 p m Aug 19. 4-Year-Old Jersey Is Supreme Of Schuylkill Fair

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

SUMMIT STATION (Schuylkill Co.) — A 4-year-old Jersey cow, MVF Lester Florence, owned by Terry and Craig Rhein of Pine Grove, on August 7 was named supreme champion of the dairy breeds at the Schuylkill County Fair, held at the county fairgrounds in Summit Station.

The Jersey cow was one of six breed grand champions in the final dairy competition of the Schuylkill County Fair, which followed the regular open division Ayrshire show, allowing time for the Ayrshire grand champion to be milked out for the supreme championship contest.

The youth division shows were judged by Lloyd Ebersole, while Thomas Smith of Palmyra served as judge for the two-day open division breed shows.

Smith complimented the exhibitors on the quality of their animals.

In competition with the Rhein's 4-year-old Jersey was a junior 2-year-old Holstein, JMJ-Springpond Donaro Jodi, owned by Ray and Farn Davis of Leesport; a senior 3-year-old Brown Swiss owned by Art Sweinhart of Jonestown; a 4-year-old Ayrshire, Myline Trident's Reebok, owned by Jill Vail of Myerstown; a 4-year-old Milking Shorthorn, Pinesedge Lil Peanut EXP, owned by Jessica Hostetter of Dover; and an aged Guernsey, Miss KF Future Gem's Muff, owned by Cheryl Kutz of Pine Grove.

The supreme contest came after two days of open division shows. The first day of open division shows followed the county 4-H dairy shows.

In the open division shows, in the rest of the Jersey show, Jennifer Neiman showed the reserve grand champion.

The open division junior champion Jersey was a junior yearling, Sandstore Acres Alison, exhibited by Little Hill Farm, near Fredericksburg, while the reserve junior champion was also a junior yearling, Top-O-Hill Juno Patty Cake, owned by Erica Lloyd.

In the Jersey breed show, on the sidelines, exhibitors noted the absence of long-time Jersey exhibitor and breeder Mildred Seeds of Top-O-Hill Farm in Chester County.

Seeds was a perennial exhibitor, and worked with many youth, providing an opportunity for them to work and show cattle, many times to win regional fair championships. Seeds has dispersed her show string and has retired from the Jersey business, but animals carrying her prefix continue to be exhibited in the show ring.

In the Brown Swiss show, the reserve grand champion was a 4-year-old, Wind Mill Hammer Colleen, owned by Nathan Hostetter of Dover.

Aaron Ruch of Andreas showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion Holstein in that breed show, the largest of the fair, with the Jersey show being second largest.

Ruch's 6-year-old Ruch Inspiration Cassie was also named grand champion Holstein and supreme champion overall in the 4-H division shows the day prior.

The young man also showed the reserve junior champion Holstein, a senior yearling, Ruch Jolt Corry-ET.

In the Guernsey show, Cheryl Kutz showed the senior and grand champion, while Doyle Hostetter showed the reserve senior and grand champion.

The junior champion Guernseys were both exhibited by Doyle Hostetter.

In the four-animal Milking Shorthorn breed show, Jessica Hostetter of Dover showed three of the four — a senior yearling, a dry cow, and a senior 2-year-old, while Eileen Hostetter, also of Dover, showed an intermediate calf.

Ray Davis holds the halter of his grand champion grand champion Holstein of the Schuylkill County Fair and is joined by show judge Tom Smith.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Understanding the "basics," in the words of the champion market swine exhibitor at Kutztown Fair, helped garner the champion ribbon for Nathan Manbeck, Womelsdorf.

Nathan, 12, in the 7th grade at Tulpehocken Junior High School, showed his first grand champion market hog at Kutztown, a heavyweight champion Blue Butt gilt.

According to judge Daryl Bomgardner, Annville, the 225-pound hog "holds muscle correctly in a well-designed package." Both the champion and reserve had the skeletal width and were both really sound, noted Bomgardner, Hoober farm equipment salesman.

Nathan's hog, which he picked out himself, was obtained from his uncle, Oscar Manbeck, Bethel. Nathan said the hams looked nice and the loin looked good. Being a member of 4-H taught the "basics," said Nathan, of selecting a potential market hog champion, he said.

Nathan intends to show at the county roundup and wants to show at the state Farm Show.

Elizabeth Wisser, 17, daughter of Tutty and Larry Wisser, New Tripoli, won reserve champion. The senior at Northwestern high School showed the reserve heavyweight champion, a 226-pound gilt.

Elizabeth said this was the first championship she has shown at Kutztown in the nine years she has been exhibiting. She has shown at Schnecksville and will be showing at the Allentown and Reading fairs.

Supreme champion of the breed show went to Kelly Lazarus with her Chester White gilt. Kelly, 19, the daughter of Wayne and Grace Lazarus, Germansville, is a graduate of Northwestern High School. The judge said that he liked the "completeness" of the champion, "muscling in a structurally sound package," said Bomgardner.

Kelly said that in selecting the champion gilt, she believed it was a "joint effort" from her family and friends that allowed her to exhibit the champion. Kelly intends to show at Allentown, the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, and Farm Show.

There were 67 breed swine and 94 market swine at the show. There were 37 exhibitors.

Following is a list of show placings.

Travis Donough Exhibits Grand Champion Market Swine

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Travis Donough of Manheim on Wednesday showed the grand champion market hog of the Lancaster County 4-H market swine club roundup and sale, held at the Manheim Farm Show grounds.

According to Chester Hughes, county livestock agent, there were a record number of entries in this year's swine roundup with 151 exhibited on foot and 49 entered in the carcass competition.

However, there may well have been some extra market swine exhibited at the roundup that were initially intended to be entered in the annual 4-H Southeast Region Market Hog Derby. Unfortunately, the hog derby was allowed to slip through the cracks this year by some of the county agents, through a lack of promotion and communication to potential participants.

Auctioneer for the sale was John Stauffer.

Donough, son of Edward and LaRue Donough, has been featured in past years for showing champion hogs and steer.

His 247-pound animal sold for $1.60 per pound to Hatfield Quality Meats.

The reserve grand champion of the roundup was exhibited by first year participant Lisa Hershey, daughter of Les and Lois Hershey of Kirkwood.

Her 227-pound animal sold for 90 cents per pound to Hatfield Quality Meats.

According to Hughes, the sale average was 55 cents per pound.

In showmanship competition, Sheldon Hoover, son of Lloyd and Elaine Hoover of Leola was the grand champion. It was his first time to win the championship, and his last year to participate. He said he was gratefull to have won in during his last year. As a 10-year-old he had showed the reserve champion of the show, and was reserve twice before in showmanship.

Nathan Kreider, son of Richard and Peg Kreider of Elizabethtown, was the reserve champion showman.

Lebanon Holstein Holds Field Night

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MILLBACH SPRINGS (Lebanon Co.) — About 300 people attended the Lebanon County Holstein Club's annual field night held at the farm of James and Dot Bennetch in Millbach Springs.

The Bennetches and their two children Christopher and Jessica, and James' mother Martha Bennetch, served as hosts for the event.

Three classes of animals from the JIMANDOT Holsteins herd were used in a judging contest with Donald Seipt serving as official judge.

In the men's division, the top three were winner Carl Weile, followed by Ken Sellers and Scott Nolt.

In the women's division, the top three were winner Cheryl Horst, followed by Kynel Himmelberger and Linda Miller.

In the youth competition, the winner of the senior division was Jared Zimmerman followed by Daniel Eberly and Dustin Horning.

In the youth junior-age division, the winner was Laurie Zimmerman, followed by Kristen Moyer and Joel Bomgardner.

The evening event also featured presentations by the county dairy royalty, and David Lentz, a locally born and raised representatives for Holstein USA.

James Bennetch introduced himself, his family and gave a brief history of the family farm, which is operated by him, his wife, his mother, and two children.

He said he relies heavily upon the advice and professionalism of consultants, and he doesn't spend much time away from the farm, taking a break from milking about one day a year.

He doesn't use milk production stimulants, but occaisionally, under the advice of a veterinarian, uses oxytocin, but not as an offlable milk production enhancer.

However, he said he really doesn't have anything specific against the use of bovine somatotropin, except that he feels that if someone is looking to buy a high-producing animal from him, or from a herd that uses BST as part of its producton program, and both herds produce about the same, he feels the buyer may be more comfortable purchasing an animal with a production record based on non-BST use.

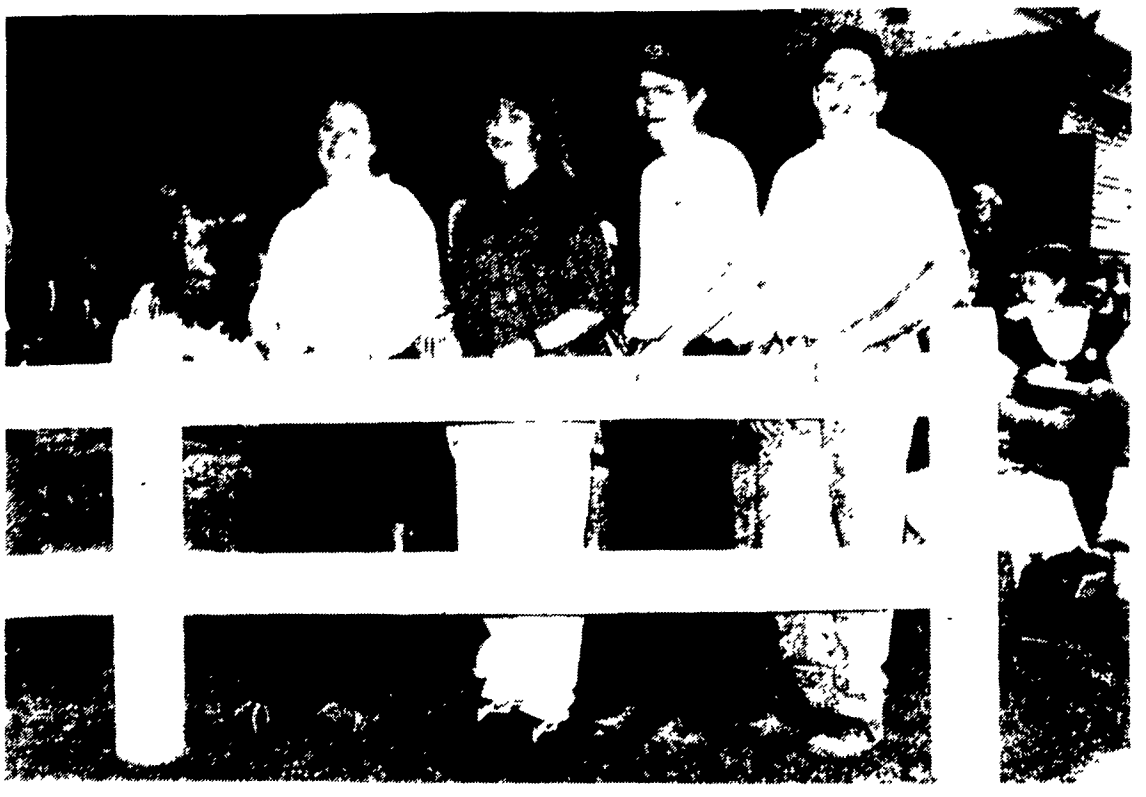
The herd features a number of quality animals, including one that has been featured on a calendar of an artificial insemination company; a 2-year-old that has recently made more than 40,000 pounds of milk in a first lactation; and a cow that has made almost 60,000 pounds in a 365-day laction.

The more than 100-acre farm resulted from a partnership between his father and uncle that his mother continued after his father died when James was 11.

The operation was essentially divided and James, Dot and Martha farm one, while James' uncle and cousin farm the other.

Crops are primarily corn and alfalfa, and there is some permanent pasture.

Several commercial exhibits, games for the children, and a meal featuring roast beef sandwiches and smoke-flavored chicken legs, and ice cream rounded out the activities.



From the left, Dot, Jessica, Christopher and James Bennetch, owners of JIMANDOT Holsteins, stand along a fence in the yard of their farmhouse, while behind them a small portion of a crowd of about 300 Holsteins enthusiasts sit on straw bales to eat, while others talk to each other and commercial exhibitors, children play and others judge cows and tour the facilities.

DAIRY FARM MANAGEMENT BASICS

A Farm Management Course by Glenn A. Shirk
Penn State Extension Agent
Lancaster County, Pennsylvania

Feeding and Nutrition - Article 11

The first ten articles in this series focused primarily on the personal and business side of dairying -- goals, benchmarking, farm investments, costs of production, number crunching, etc Cows are the heart of the dairy business The big question is how can we manage them so they have an opportunity to help us meet our personal and business goals So, the next group of articles will focus on some key areas of herd management, such as feeding and nutrition, cow comfort and behavior, genetics and reproduction, herd health culling and merchandising cattle, and herd replacements. Let's start with feeding and nutrition

Feeding is one of the most important areas of herd management because it affects so many things, the most obvious of which is milk production It also affects a cow's health, her immune status and her conception rates And, feed-related costs represent 50% or more of the total cost of producing milk

Some general goals in feeding cows are
- Maximize rumen activity
- Maximize the production of microbial protein by the rumen
- Meet the nutrient needs of ALL groups of cattle on the farm
- Maximize dry matter intake (DMI)
- Control not minimize feed costs

Maximizing Rumen Activity

Some goals for maximizing rumen activity are
- Establish the maximum number of the right kinds of microbes in the rumen
- Provide rumen microbes the kind of environment and the kinds of nutrients they need
- Sustain peak rumen function 24 hours a day with no slack off times

1 Benefits of a highly functional rumen
   - The rumen feeds the cow, so the cow is only as good as her rumen
   - Feeds are utilized more efficiently when the rumen is functioning well That means the feeds are better utilized, more of the feed nutrients end up as milk in the tank and flesh on the cow's back, rather than in the gutter as wasted nutrients and expensive fertilizer
   - Dry matter intake improves when feeds are digested thoroughly and move out of the digestive tract rapidly. More room is freed up for additional feed intake Thus it is beneficial to keep microbes working at peak activity 24 hours a day.
   - More microbial protein is produced This is a high quality bypass protein that is available to the cow - - and at no cost The more microbes there are that grow in the rumen, and the more feed that passes from the rumen into the small intestine, the more microbes there are that also get drug into the intestine to be digested as microbial protein This is very high quality, amino acid rich protein, and it is FREE If the rumen is functioning well, it can produce about 7 lb of microbial protein per day. This is a very significant part of the cow's total daily need
   - Cows maintain more normal levels of fat tests, even at high levels of milk production
2 To function well, the rumen needs
   - Good working environment, which means a properly buffered rumen that remains at a proper pH level (not too acid)
   - Good quality fiber for microbes to attach to and digest The forages a cow consumes provide the fiber the microbes need, and it forms a floating, fibrous mat in the rumen. This fiber also encourages cows to chew their cud As cows chew their cuds, they produce gallons and gallons of saliva which is an excellent quality buffer for the rumen, and it's a buffer that has no palatability problems and it is FREE
   - Continual supply of other nutrients, such as soluble protein and soluble carbohydrates, as well as vitamins and minerals

Rutledges Earn National SCC Award

From the left, David Slusser Pa.DHIA general manager congratulates Barb and Art Rutledge on receiving the award.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Recently one of our own here at Pa.DHIA was awarded the national dairy quality award for the Northeast region.

Art and Barbara Rutledge of Damascus, in Wayne County, received this prestigious award this past July.

Art and Barbara have a milking herd of 55 Holstein cows. They have a rolling herd average of 22,641 with 828 pounds of fat and 7254 pounds of protein The average SCC for the last 12 months was 57,000.

When asked what he does to maintain such a low level of somatic cells Art said, "We don't do anything special, just pre-dip the cows with a 50 percent iodine solution and then dry them off with a single service paper towel. We then post dip with a 50 percent iodine solution. Milking units are sanitized in a chlorine solution after suspect cows are milked."

The Rutledge's took over the family farm three years ago and have built up a fine herd of Holsteins. Art and Barb are keeping up the farming tradition on their farm that has been in the family for 56 years All of us at PA DHIA would like to congratulate Art and Barb for a job well done

Poultry Benefits From Basic Research

Dr. Sally E. Johnson,
Developmental Biology
Penn State

Most of us associate chicken with a source of food. But, in reality, the chicken serves many purposes, including that of experimental model.

Historically, avian embryos represent the classical developmental biology model system. Avian embryos develop in a rapid fashion reminiscent of most vertebrate animals including humans. And, due to their unique packaging system, chick embryos can be easily monitored and observed throughout the course of gestation.

In the mid 1950s, two leading scientists documented the morphological changes that occur during the course of avian development. To this day, the developmental atlas chronicled by Drs. Hamburger and Hamilton serves as a universal handbook for comparative staging of avian embryos. They were one of the first groups to note that the chick heart performs rhythmic contractions within the first three days of incubation, eye coloration occurs after five-day, and rudimentary feathers are present after nine days. Through their recorded observations of avian development, our understanding of the processes of fetal development in humans has been greatly enhanced.

In vertebrates, regions of cells respond to their surrounding environment in an instructive fashion, thus becoming committed to a specific cell fate. With regard to cardiogenesis (heart formation), the inductive signal to become a cardiocyte (heart cell) is received within the first 18 hours. After expansion of the cardioblast population, the cells cease replication and begin to synthesize the proteins necessary for contraction. The cells align to form a tube structure that ultimately loops and fuses to form the four-chambered heart.

One of the ongoing projects in our lab is to discern the mechanistic basis for early heart formation, spedifically, what tells a cell to become a cardiocyte. Through explant experiemnts and tissue grafting, several small proteins have been identified as candidate-inducing agents.

By characterizing the factors that elicit a response in normally non-cardiogenic cells, we can determine the functional role of certain growth factors and determine the means by which they promote heart formation.

One of the recently discovered factors that promotes cardiogenesis is a protein called bone morphogenic protein (BMP2). BMP2 is one of several growth factors which also is intricately involved in regulating formation of the skeleton.

Interestingly, ectopic delivery of BMP2 to cells normally not fated to become cardiocytes induces expression of genes characteristic of cardiocytes. This would suggest that one means of promoting heart formation is through localized production of BMP2. The ability of BMP2 to act on two distinctly different systems further demonstrates the complexity of embryonic development.

In summary, the avian embryo provides us with a remarkable tool which can provide insight into many developmental questions. By taking advantage of the avian model, key issues regarding human disease can be addressed.

New Asian Market For Pennsylvania Poultry

FREDERICKSBURG (Lebanon County) — Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. on Thursday visited the Farmer's Pride plant here to announce the shipment to Japan of more than 100,000 pounds of Bell & Evans chicken – an agreement reached as a result of Gov. Tom Ridge's trade mission to Asia last year.

"Gov. Ridge's trade mission opened the door of Pennsylvania agricultural products to move into Japan," Hayes said. "The relationships we established during the mission have been invaluable in helping companies such as Bell & Evans to expand their marketing opportunities.

"Demand for poultry in Japan is high, and Japanese consumers value high-quality, all-natural meats. Pennsylvania food products are well-known in Japan, and we believe there can be significant trade expansion there."

Hayes and Scott Sechler, president of Bell & Evans, signed a product certificate verifying that the poultry is "Pennsylvania raised and processed." Each shipment will carry a certificate. Bell & Evans chickens are totally grain fed in environmentally controlled houses.

Processed by Farmer's Pride, the Bell & Evans chicken is being shipped from Fredericksburg to Nissho Iawi Corp. in Tokyo for distribution to upscale food markets and restaurants throughout Japan.

Sechler said the poultry will be freezer-packed and trucked to Seattle, then transported by ship to Japan.

Sechler followed up on contacts made by Hayes in Japan, and several Japanese food-industry representatives have visited the Fredericksburg plant and placed orders.

Established in 1939, Farmer's Pride has nearly 600 employees and processes 130,000 chickens daily, marketing in 22 states throughout the Eastern United States.

Penn State Ag PROGRESS 1998

Knowledge Is Ripe For The Picking

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — You've planted the seeds, watered the plants and waited for your crop to come in. The real test for the home gardener is knowing when to pick the fruits of your labor, says a vegetable expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"One of the advantages a home gardener has over people who purchase produce is that the crop can be picked at the moment of ripeness," said Pete Ferretti, professor of vegetable crops. "Commercial wholesale producers pick many crops before they are truly ripe and allow them to ripen gradually during shipping, handling and display."

While commercial growers must meet the demands of the marketplace, home gardeners and most direct marketers need only please themselves when it comes to harvesting the crops they've planted. Ferretti also points out that vegetables are highest in vitamins and minerals such as potassium, magnesium and iron when they are fully ripe.

"For best flavor and storage capability, pick your crops first thing in the morning," Ferretti said. "They will be cool and firm and will not have absorbed any natural field heat."

Ferretti says home growers can become savvy harvesters by remembering just a few tips about each crop

•Tomatoes. Tomatoes should be picked when they are firm and have reached full color — crimson, red, yellow or other colors depending on the variety. "It's probably a good idea to pick a range of ripening tomatoes every few days and let a few finish ripening after picking," Ferretti said. "The ripening tomatoes will have slightly less amounts of vitamins and minerals than the fully ripe fruits."

•Peppers. Green peppers are picked and used before full ripeness, so Ferretti recommends gardeners gauge ripeness by the size estimate on a seed packet or in a seed catalog. Firmness also is a ripeness indicator. If the pepper feels as though it has thin walls, it is not ripe. "When the peppers are allowed to ripen, they can turn into a rainbow of colors depending on the variety," he said. "Use peppers ripened to full color quickly because they have only a few days of shelf life at that stage."

•Zucchini. Ferretti says zucchini tastes best when harvested at lengths from 6 to 10 inches. "I wouldn't let them grow longer than a foot," Ferretti said. "After 8 to 10 inches, zucchini gets tough and develops more seeds. Longer zucchini that escaped your attention during picking, can be grated, or breaded and fried."

•Cucumbers. Pickle cucumbers should not be grown beyond approximately 4 inches. Other types, such as some burpless or Oriental varieties, can reach ripeness at nearly 15 inches. Ferretti says the longer cucumber types are ripe when they retain a hint of the ridges and spinyness associated with immature cucumbers. "Think of a cucumber as a balloon," Ferretti said. "If it's inflated to a perfect smoothness, it's too far gone."

•Eggplant. Estimate ripeness by comparing the crop to the size and shape described on the seed package or catalog. "The eggplant should also be shiny and glossy," Ferretti said. "The stem and cap should be mint green or purple, depending on the type."

•Melons (muskmelons and cantaloupes). Most melons are perfectly ripe when they separate from the vine easily. "A small tug should be enough," Ferretti said. Other melon types are ripe when they turn from a greenish hue to a more yellow or orange color.

•Watermelons. Each watermelon will have a pigtailed tendril of growth near the stem. "As that tendril browns or dies, look at the underside of the melon," Ferretti said. "The underside should be slightly yellow. Inside, the seeds will be deep brown to black, not light tan."

•Carrots. Ferretti says two blunt-nosed carrot types, Danvers and Nantes, grow well in Pennsylvania's dense soils. Because carrots invest most of their growth into the plant leaves, the carrot, or root, does not mature until the late summer or fall. Danvers varieties should be harvested when they reach about a 2-inch diameter. Nantes should be picked when they reach 1 inch in diameter. "To check the diameter, just run your finger around the base of the plant and uncover the top of the carrot," Ferretti said.

•Leaf Lettuce and Spinach. Although gardeners can harvest the entire plant head early to thin the crop, Ferretti recommends removing and using the outer leaves of the plant as you need them. The plant will keep producing leaves until a killing frost. "You can harvest chard and rhubarb the same way," Ferretti said.

•Onions. Because most onions are grown from sets, which means many of the plants grow too close together, Ferretti recommends thinning out the final storage harvest when about half the plant leaves have turned brown or drooped. Push th rest of the leaves over and pick the onions about a week later. "Leave the onions in the field to dry a few days, then hang them," Ferretti said. "Onions forming a seed head — the green shoot that looks like a spear coming out of the onion — should be eaten immediately, because they won't dry out adequately for storage."

•Snap (green or wax) Beans. The key to harvesting snap beans is to pick them before the pod shows any seed development. "There should be now swelling where you can see the seed in the bean," Ferretti said "Also, the bean should literally snap when you break it. If they're over the hill, the bean will be rubbery."

•Broccoli. Broccoli plants produce a large central head comprised of tightly bound buds. Ferretti says the head should be harvested before any hint of yellowing appears and before the buds separate. "Some broccoli varieties will continue to produce large shoots even after the central head has been harvested," Ferretti said.

•Flat Edible Pod Peas. These crops, known as Chinese peas or snow peas, should be picked when still flat, before the pod reveals the outline of the internal seeds. Ferretti recommends checking the size description on the seed packet or catalog as well.

•Round Edible Pod Peas Also known as snap peas, Ferretti says these varieties are the sweetest and most tender peas. They should be picked when fully round and smooth The color should be mint green •English Peas. The pod should be shiny and swelled enough to suggest the outline of peas. "All pea varieties should be cooled immediately after picking, because their sugars will turn to starch under warm conditions," Ferretti said.

Nutrient Management Cost Share Available

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. has announced that the first cost-share funding reimbursements for nutrients-management plans have been distributed to eligible farmers.

"As the Oct. 1 deadline for completed nutrient-management plans draws near, we are pleased that the funds are getting to the farmers who developed the plans," Hayes said. "We encourage all eligible farmers to take advantage of this cost-share program."

The Plan Development Incentives Program provides funding to eligible operators of livestock or poultry operations for up to 75 percent of the cost of their nutrient-management plans.

The plans must be developed by a certified commercial planner or a certified individual farmer to qualify for reimbursement.

To be considered for the one-time reimbursement, a program application and nutrient-management plan must be completed and approved.

Funding for plans developed by operators of Concentrated Animal Operations (CAOs) is available through Sept. 30.

Guidelines for cost-share rates have been developed by the State Conservation Commission. Applications can be obtained from local county conservation district offices.

For additional information, contact the Agriculture Department's nutrient-management office at (717) 787-3568.

Pasto Museum Is Hands-On History Book At Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — How did we light our homes to "keep out the night" before electricity? How did we cool our food? Visitors to Penn State's Ag Progress Days, August 18-20, can tour the Pasto Agricultural Museum and get a taste of what life was like before gasoline engines and electricity.

"The museum is like a hands-on history book," said Jerome Pasto, museum curator and associate dean emeritus in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "There's a story behind every item."

The museum houses more than 300 implements used for farming and homemaking. Items range from a 6,000-year-old clay sickle used for grain harvesting, to a charcoal-heated clothes iron, to a dog powered treadmill used to churn butter and wash clothes. "Everything is operated by power from the muscles of humans and animals," said Pasto.

Sections of the museum are devoted to harvesting grain, cutting and handling hay, planting and harvesting corn, plowing and cultivating soil and caring for animals. One display focuses on ice harvesting, which provided winter work for rural people. Using horse-drawn ice plows, checkerboards were scored on frozen ponds, then cut in perfect blocks.

"Ice harvesting was a huge business at the turn of the century," said Pasto. "Trainloads of ice were shipped to Philadelphia and New York City to keep food cool in ice boxes. The horses wore nooses while working. If a horse fell in, people pulled the noose tight, leaving air in its lungs so it would float like a balloon. Then, everybody would grab the rope and haul the animal quickly to shore."

Household displays include devices for washing clothes, from primitive wood plungers to "modern" clothes washers with lever-operated tubs and wringers. A collection of irons for pressing clothes includes flat irons with heated inserts, some that burn charcoal and have chimneys and adjustable drafts, and one that is gasoline powered with a tiny carburetor.

Also on display is a hand-cranked ice cream freezer, invented by Mary Johnson in 1834. "It's one of three items in the museum whose concept was so great that it's lasted over 100 years," says Pasto. "Today's ice cream makers still work on the same principle."

The Pasto Agricultural Museum is arranged in chronical sequence to show technological progress. Many artifacts have been restored to working order so visitors can turn the cranks and pull the levers. The museum will be open to the public during all three days of Ag Progress Days.

To celebrate the 20th anniversary of the museum, everyone who has donated antiques to the museum (over 100 living donors) has been invited to the Ag Alumni Annual Meeting and luncheon on August 18 at Ag Progress Days.

If you can't visit the museum, you can order two new educational videotapes narrated by Dr. Pasto as he walks through the museum. "Farming in the Old Days: Small Grains" reviews the production, harvesting and threshing of small grains from 6000 B.C. to the 1930s. "Farming in the Old Days: Corn" covers planting methods used by early Native Americans and pioneers and traces progress in corn planting and harvesting through the 1930s.

For more information about the videos, contact Ag Information Services, The Pennsylvania State University, 119 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA, 16802; phone (814) 865-6309; FAX (814) 863-9877. Price is $35 for one video, or $50 for both. Allow three weeks for delivery. Make checks payable to Penn State, or include a purchase order.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstrations. It is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours of 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Admission and parking are free.

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 toll-free from July 13 to August 20 or visit the Ag Progress Days site on the World Wide Web at http://apd.cas.psu.edu.

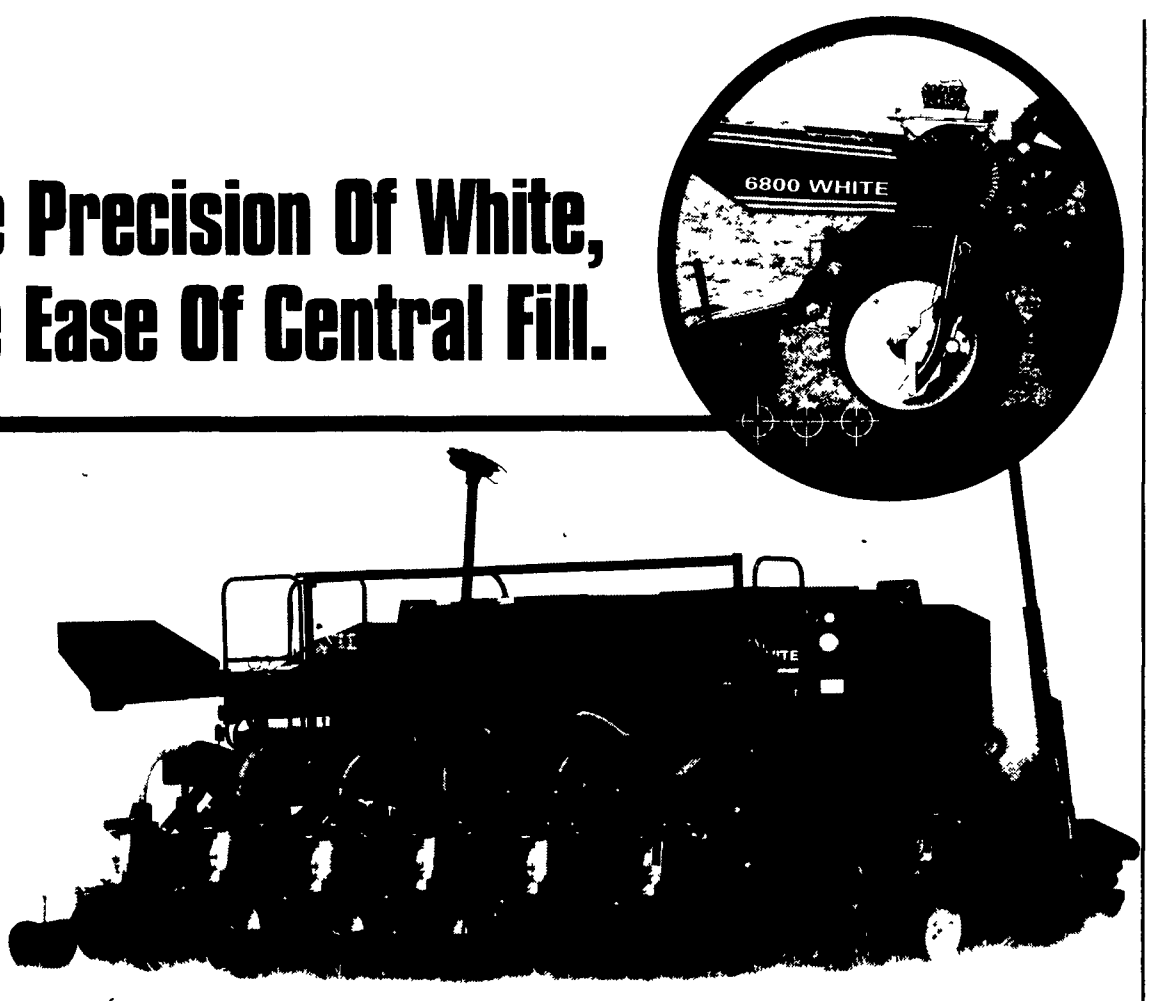
The Precision Of White, The Ease Of Central Fill.



The 6800 Series Central Fill Planters.

With the White 6800 Series planters, you get accurate seed placement, precise depth control, narrow row spacing, and central fill convenience in one planter. Its unique rigid frame positions row units at 30" for corn and 15" for soybeans and 10" for soybeans, wheat and other seed. The convenient seed meter control lets you adjust the seeding rate as you go, matching seed population to the yield potential of the soil.

Up to three gangs of row units power through thick, standing stalks and other heavy residue, while accurately and gently placing seed in the ground. A large, 35 bushel, single seed hopper is quicker to fill than individual row units, and it's more cost-efficient.

To see how your operation can benefit from the most advanced planting system available, stop by your AGCO• White Planter dealer today.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days Focuses On Pennsylvania's High Tech Approach

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Thanks to computers and satellite technology, consumers can check their e-mail computers on airplanes and make cellular telephone calls from desolate deserts.

Nowadays, farmers, federal and state agencies, and agribusinesses are using these same systems to grow better crops, manage insect pests and track land-use patterns and water resources.

Visitors to Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 18-20, can plug into these fascinating technologies as well.

The College of Agricultural Sciences Exhibits Building, on West 11th Street at the Ag Progress Days site at Rock Springs, will feature displays on many aspects of precision agriculture, global positioning technology and Geographic Information Systems (GIS). Visitors can learn how satellite positioning technology and computer mapping can help farmers, businesses and municipalities better understand the world around them.

"Today, a typical Pennsylvania farmer using a laptop computer and a global positioning system can map his fields for nutrient deficiencies, target specific acres for pesticide applications and notify the county soil conservation office of changes in his acreage," said David Wagner, assistant professor of agricultural engineering.

"Mapping technology also is used to pinpoint land-use patterns, locate 911 emergency systems and identify agricultural land preservation acreage. Remote sensing technology can detect whether a plant is under stress or growing steadily."

One of the building's main exhibits offers a window into how farmers can use precision agriculture and satellite technologies. A demonstration of field mapping will allow visitors to pinpoint the location of their farm and then print out an aerial-view map of the property within minutes. A display on remote sensing technology will show how farmers and scientists can use computers, infrared equipment and other sensing tools to collect data from acres as small as a single plant leaf to acre-size plots of farmland.

"Most people think remote sensing is done only by satellite," Wagner said. "In reality, remote sensing can be done from an airplane or on the ground taking two reading two feet above the canopy of a plant."

New production tools used in precision agriculture also will be featured. "Not every farming operation can use every tool designed for precision agriculture," Wagner said. "But there may be tools or technologies that farmers can easily adapt to their own needs."

Another major exhibit details how federal and state agencies and private citizens can use GIS systems. A dazzling color computer display will show how counties or municipalities can map 911 emergency systems, utility grids, water resources and treatment systems and other information in a central database. The information then can be analyzed in pieces or as an entire system. In addition, the display includes demonstrations of how GIS technology is used for farm and land preservation and environmental analysis.

"Geographic information systems can give municipal and state officials the big picture in a literal sense," said Rick Day, assistant professor of soil science and environmental systems. "GIS technology can be used to see how a small town uses its water supply or to reveal how the streams and rivers of Pennsylvania affect the Chesapeake Bay."

Penn State Ag PROGRESS 1998

Farmers and other interested visitors will get their chance to see how global positioning systems can be used in crop scouting and nutrient management. One display will detail how global positioning technology can be integrated into pest control programs by using mapping to track insect populations on specific fields.

Curious visitors can get an up-close look at a variety of precision agriculture equipment, including a precision application sprayer using direct injection technology, as well as four-wheel all-terrain vehicle outfitted with state-of-the-art global positioning equipment. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will staff an exhibit on farm and land preservation. "Stake Your Acres," a farming computer game, will be available for teens to play.

The College of Agricultural Sciences' Publications Distribution Center will provide a display of college publications. Visitors can take a variety of free publications and pick up an order form for the college's for-sale publications.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits. The Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center is located nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours on Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Admission and parking are free

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 July 13 through Aug. 20. Or, if you have access to the Internet, visit Ag Progress Days on the World Wide Web at http://apd.cas.psu.edu.

Food Waste Composting Highlighted at Ag Progress Days

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A pilot project that has diverted hundreds of tons of food waste away from landfills and converted it — along with leaves, manure and other organic wastes — into a useable product will be showcased at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 18-20.

Project Earth Grow is a university-wide effort to compost food waste from several university dining halls, along with leaves and woody materials collected on the University Park campus and manure produced in the College of Agricultural Sciences' farm operations. The effort is spearheaded by Penn State's Office of Physical Plant, Housing and Food Services and the College of Agricultural Sciences.

"In the 1998-1999 academic year, we expect to compost 300 tons of food waste and 400 tons of leaves, plus a smaller amount of woody material," says Glen Cauffman, project co-chair and manager of farm operations in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "In addition to dining halls, we expect the Nittany Lion Inn and the Penn Stater Conference Center Hotel to join the effort in the near future. The compost produced by the project is used to improve tilth and fertility of plantings and landscaped areas around campus."

Visitors to Ag Progress Days will see evidence of the composting program at various locations around the grounds. Samples of the composted waste will be on display at the composting demonstration area and at the Conservation Education Area. Those taking the twice-daily Manure/Compost Pad tour will see compost-turning equipment in action.

Most of the landscaped areas and planters throughout the site will be mulched with Project Earth Grow compost. Signs displaying the project's logo will identify these areas for visitors.

In addition, invited guests at two Ag Progress Days luncheons will be asked to participate in the program. As many as 1,000 attendees at the Alumni Day luncheon on Aug. 18 and the Government/Industry Day luncheon on Aug. 19 will consume food and beverages from paper plates and cups. Except for plastic utensils, all waste from the luncheons — including the paper tablecloths — will be collected in special containers for composting. Luncheon guests will receive "APD Official Composter" buttons.

"Our long-term goal is to develop a center for research and education related to the recycling of organic wastes," Cauffman says. "The idea is to use science and education to create a holistic system that goes full circle, from waste to utilization."

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstrations. It is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rock Springs, nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with extended Hours of 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Admission and parking are free.

Horses And Their Contributions Featured At Ag Progress Days

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co) — They may not pull many carriages any more, but horses and related industries represent $4 billion to Pennsylvania agriculture — and they will bring excitement and fun to Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 18-20.

The Equine Educational Program presents a wide range of exhibits and activities to highlight the many ways that horses can contribute to the economy and culture of the Commonwealth, according to Pat Comerford, horse program coordinator for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

"We'd like to give people an understanding of the scope and diversity of the horse industry, and showcase Penn State's teaching, extension and youth programs," she said. "This year, we also will introduce Penn State administrators to the horse community and present several horse breeds from the United States and other countries."

The Equine Educational Program will feature demonstrations and clinics in the Horse Arena on Main Street at the Ag Progress Days site. On Tuesday, Aug. 18, a clinic called techniques for "Handling the Young Horse" will be offered. Several breed clinics will feature the history, special characteristics and uses of various equine breeds.

On Wednesday, Aug 19, Penn State Equine Extension Assistant Brian Egan will demonstrate techniques for working with young horses and youth. Breed and Therapeutic riding demonstrations will occur throughout the day. Miniature horses from Foalie-a-Deux Farm also will be on display, along with other breeds. Industry representatives will be on hand to answer questions.

A highlight of the Wednesday afternoon activities will be "taking the Lead," a riding and equestrian skill class, with several special "pupils": Penn State President Graham Spanier, College of Agricultural Sciences Dean Robert Steele, and Department of Dairy and Animal Science Head Terry Etherton.

"It'll be a lot of fun — with a few surprises, too," Comerford says. "Our administrators are being really good sports to participate. We'll give them some simple lessons and exercises in horsemanship, while introducing them to the horse community. Spectators will get a chance to appreciate what it takes to ride a horse — without actually being in the saddle."

The Wednesday evening program will feature a 4-H mounted flag presentation, draft horse clinics and draft horse driving demonstrations. Thursday will bring demonstrations from the Lion Country Pony Club, the Standardbred Retirement and Adoption Association, the International Trotting and Pacing Association, and the Keystone Dressage Demonstration and Drill Team.

During the entire Ag Progress Days event, the Equine Exhibits Area will feature displays on equine management, housing and facilities and Penn State's undergraduate education and extension programs.

Penn State Ag PROGRESS 1998

Exhibits also will focus on breed and youth organizations, therapeutic riding, feed, tack, equipment and other aspects of the commercial horse industry.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstrations. It is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rock Springs, nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p m Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours of 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Admission and parking are free.

I chose the AerWay because it puts me in control of my liquid manure management system This is particularly important as my farm is located next to a large Water Resource Shed Prior to using the AerWay I had problems with soil compaction manure run-off, ponding and loss of valuable nutrients We spread between 3000 - 3500 U S Gal per acre The AerWay helped with the above problems, as well as reducing my tillage, fuel and labour expenses
With less time spent in the field I am able to spend more time with my Hog Operation The AerWay blends perfectly with my Conservation and Environmental Farm Plan

Hesston Balers Model 530

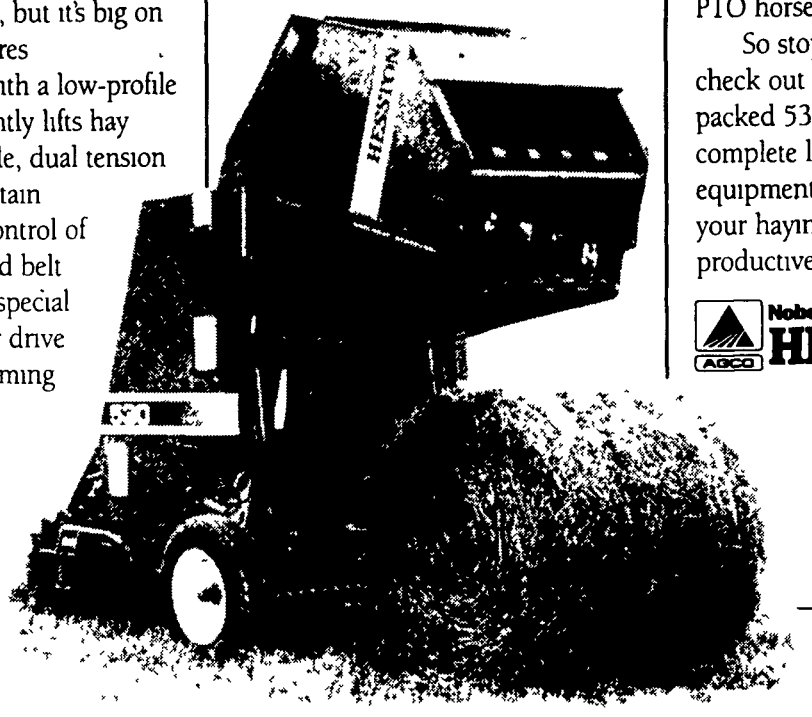
If you need the one-man haymaking convenience of round bales, but also need to keep costs low, take a close look at the 530 Round Baler from Hesston®.

Big on features.

The 530 is the smallest - and most economical - variable-chamber round baler Hesston makes, but it's big on advanced features

It comes with a low-profile pickup that gently lifts hay from the stubble, dual tension arms that maintain independent control of bale density and belt tension, and a special crowned upper drive roll to keep forming belts on track

Easy on hay. Easier on your checkbook.



The 530 produces up to a 550-pound bale that measures up to 39 inches wide and between 30 and 54 inches in diameter.

Runs on 30 PTO hp.

And, best of all, you won't need to purchase a new tractor just to run the baler – it operates with as little as 30 PTO horsepower

So stop by today and check out the economy-packed 530, along with our complete line of Hesston equipment. Let us make all your haying easier and more productive this season

Nobody knows hay like HESSTON

MASSEY-FERGUSON

ARE YOU GETTING THE MOST FROM YOUR HAYLAGE, HIGH MOISTURE CORN AND SILAGE?

You should use Animal Medic's Forage Inoculants because:

- They can stimulate fermentation - quicker preservation - less heating - less loss of nutrients!
- Improve nutritional value of ensiled forage - you keep more of the nutrients that you started out with!
- Insure the presence of sufficient numbers of Lactic Acid producing bacteria! These bacteria take sugars from your forage and produce lactic acid, thereby lowering the pH to a level where the forage is preserved. Native bacteria (the bacteria that may be on your forage at cutting) can be less efficient since it produces lactic acid, carbon dioxide and ethanol. With native bacteria the fermentation process can take too long to lower the pH to a preserved level, where all the plant sugars are used and then they start breaking down proteins producing ammonia which raises pH and you end up with a problem!
- They are sold with our Money Back Satisfaction Guarantee!

TOMATO QUICHE

1 pie crust
3 large tomatoes, skins removed, seeded, chopped
1 medium size milk onion, chopped
3½ tablespoon butter
½ to ¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon garlic powder
Fresh grated pepper, to taste
½ pound Swiss cheese, diced
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup half and half or fat-free style

Combine tomatoes, onions, butter, salt, garlic powder, and pepper in a saucepan. Cook until reduced to half the amount. At this point, you may freeze it for later or prepare quiche.

Bake the pie crust for 10 minutes at 400 degrees. Set aside and cool. Sprinkle cheese on bottom of crust. Pour sauce over cheese. Mix eggs and cream together. Pour slowly over sauce. Bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake 35 minutes or until set. Remove from oven, let set 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

Hint: Put quiche in pie or quiche pan and put it on a cookie sheet to control any spillage. Put cookie sheet in oven.

Great recipe that tastes even better reheated the next day. Freeze the tomato mixture in August and make the quiche during the winter.

POTATO/SUMMER SQUASH PANCAKES

2 pounds yellow squash, grated
5 pounds potatoes, grated
1½ pounds onions, grated
1½ teaspoon black pepper
4 teaspoons salt
10 large eggs
3 cups flour

Potatoes and squash must be grated fine. Can be done in a blender or food processor and if water is used to help grate, drain in large strainer and save drained liquid for next batch until all ingredients are grated. pour liquid off when done and add starch which collects on bottom of bowl.

Mix all together and fry in good amount of vegetable oil. Fat must be ¼ -inch deep and almost smoking hot.

Put four pancakes in 12-inch frying pan, 5 in a 14-inch pan. Fry until golden brown on both sides. Drain on brown paper (shopping bag turned inside out on sheet pan with layers of newspaper under brown paper works good.

Serve hot with fresh applesauce.

If quash is not in season, use all potatoes. May substitute 2 cups green scallions or chives diced ¼ -inch.

I came from a large farm family and my mother used yellow squash the first time to help utilize it. Results were great. We never found anyone who did not really like these. It made us many memorable meals (thanks to my mom). Yields 40-50 pancakes (3½ -4-inch diameter).

Bountiful produce provides the perfect complement to main dish meals this season.

Garden Feasts In Minutes

These easy-to-assemble warm weather recipes combine luscious seasonal produce, ready-made items and quick flavor enhancers to reduce the time from kitchen to table.

An outstanding selection of vegetables and fruits are at their peak in August. Look for broccoli, carrots, corn, eggplant, green onions, bell peppers, tomatoes, zucchini and summer squash. Fruits at their peak include peaches, plums, nectarines, watermelon and cantaloupes.

Incorporate in-season produce into your daily menu. Not only is it better tasting, but it is more economical to use in-season produce. Here are some recipes to get you started.

PEACH GINGER SALSA

1 cup cubed, peeled peaches
1 cup cubed seeded tomato
¼ cup sliced green onions
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons cider vinegar
1 teaspoon minced peeled fresh ginger or ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
⅛ teaspoon salt
Dash freshly ground pepper

Combine all ingredients, stir well. Chill to combine flavors. Makes 2 cups. Let set to blend flavors one hour.

This unusual combination nicely complements grilled pork or chicken.

The earth offers an abundance of fresh vegetables during the summer months. Use them with grains, eggs, meat, and with greens. Almost any vegetable can be used to stuff tacos, pitas, and breads. Roasted veggie sandwiches were basically unheard of a decade ago but today receive top billing at restaurants. Don't be afraid to try something unique.

TOSSED SALAD WITH SESAME SEEDS

1 tablespoon butter
½ cup sesame seeds
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
1 cup sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise
1½ tablespoons tarragon vinegar
1½ tablespoon granulated sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper, fresh ground
1 clove garlic, minced
1 small onion, minced
¼ cup green pepper, chopped
¼ cup red pepper, chopped
1 medium cucumber, diced
2 heads lettuce

Melt butter in small frying pan, add sesame seeds and lightly toast. Remove from heat, cool slightly, place in a small bowl and combine with parmesan cheese. Set aside.

In a blender, combine sour cream, mayonnaise, vinegar, sugar, salt, and pepper. Blend thoroughly, add garlic and onion and pulse several times. Set aside.

In a large bowl, tear lettuce into bite-sized pieces, toss with peppers and cucumbers, and sour cream dressing. Sprinkle with sesame seed parmesan mixture and serve. Serves 12.

If you're looking for a diet-busting event, go no farther that your nearest family reunion.

At least in this part of the country, with our Pennsylvania "Dutch" heritage and the food traditions in which that heritage is so rich, no gathering of family is complete without "fressing."

"Fressing" is one of those familiar words of my childhood. Another term for stuffing one's mouth with food. Eating.

Fressing—eating—is synonymous with the popular custom of family gatherings, usually at least once a year, to break bread, renew kinfolk ties, and figure out who the newest baby looks like. It may be accompanied by formal, or more likely informal, programs, photos to be shared, games for the kids. And food. Always food.

Little kids usually like reunions because of the games. They flee the gathering as teenagers—who wants to associate with boring adults?—but may drift back when they marry and begin adding a next generation of leaf clusters to the family tree. Adults come for the fellowship. And the food.

Many families have certain staple foods of reunions.

In one of The Farmer's traditional family gatherings, homemade root beer, faithfully concocted by his grandmother, was mandatory. No reunion worth the name would ever have been considered without the traditional—always sweet, never "bitey"—10-gallon stoneware crock of the tasty brew. Another family reunion features a local delicacy—homemade chicken corn soup.

Such family reunion staples are likely to be of regional or ethnic tradition. Take chicken corn soup to a south Texas family get-together and you would likely stamp yourself an outsider. One family dinner table we are occasionally blessed to be a part of faithfully serves up pierogies. Before marriage entwined our lives with these wonderful folks, I wouldn't have recognized a pierogie if it smacked me upside the head.

How many family reunion tables don't sport at least a couple of varieties of potato salad? And macaroni, either in salad form or fixed as our grandson's favorite "mac and cheese." Mom can be depended on for her delicious contribution of baked dried lima beans. And fortunate are the families in which there are folks who still bake pies—cherry, apple, fresh peach, and—yummy—maybe even coconut cream.

With family reunions heavily oriented toward summer and vacation time, enabling distant kinfolk to participate while vacationing, seasonal foods are also popular table fare. Like cucumber slaw, just-picked, corn-on-the-cob or fresh watermelon and cantaloupes.

A plate of fresh melon slices is one of my favorite dishes to both contribute and to enjoy from the dessert tables as one of the fewer-calorie selections. It's also a favorite in part because the melons in the garden are usually ripe for late summer gatherings. Predictably, this year's jungle of melon vines in the garden has produced dozens of cantaloupes, watermelons, and honeydews. Still green. And which, like the aggravatingly-slow tomatoes, show no signs of being in a hurry to come to the dinner table.

So, with no homegrown melons to share, I recently pondered preparations for the latest family "fressing" session, finally throwing together on a busy afternoon a dessert contribution not requiring baking, refrigeration, or special handling. Zap two ingredients together in the microwave, melt into a gooey mess, dump in the dry stuff, stir around and spread in a pan and forget.

Rice Krispy treats. Totally uncreative, but the kids (young and old) seem to enjoy them.

Cut Flower Demonstration at APD

Gardeners at Ag Progress Days have something new to enjoy on Main Street. Thanks to Robert Berghage, a horticulture Extension specialist at Penn State, a trial garden was planted at APD. Called the cut flower demonstration, it contains cut flower display beds and a weed control trial growing cut flowers.

The flower display contains several flower varieties being tested for use in commercial cut flower production Nigella hispanica, called Love-in-a-Mist or fennel flower, is grown for its flower containing black centers and scarlet stamens on 16-inch plants. You'll also see cultivars "Miss Jekyll Blue" and orientalis "Transformer."

The name nigella means black in Greek. Each plant produces flowers with one and a half-inch blooms set on light green, feathery foliage. For use in your landscape, plant them in front of your flower border. It tends to like sheltered locations. The cultivar 'Miss Jekyll Blue' has bright blue-semi-double flowers. It makes a delicate cut flower to add to any flower arrangement

Statice is a favorite filler flower for fresh and dried flower arrangements. The cultivars you'll see in the trial include "Dark Blue," "Soft Pastel Shade," and the "Tall Excellent" cultivar series including Rose Shade, Yellow Shades, White, Salmon Shades, Blue, Light Blue, Light Pink and Purple. Heat and drought tolerant, statice grows wispy flowers that are white with bracts in shades of gold, pastel, blue and white. Use it in a mixed flower border. Avoid disturbing emerging plants in the spring. Dried statice is popular in dried arrangements made for the winter doldrums.

Four asters looked especially appealing in the trial several weeks ago. They were "Matsumoto Mixed Color" and three from the Serenade Series, Red, Blue and White. I especially liked the color of the "Serenade Red." Asters are a familiar daisy flower used in the cutting garden.

Zinnias look especially nice this season. The weather must have produced a bountiful display of flowers. A true American native, you'll see three cultivars of Zinnia Elegans in the trial. They are "Oklahoma Formula mix," "Spirit Choice Mixture" and "Blue Point Formula Mixture." The large flowers of Blue point caught my eye although the number of flowers appeared less than the other cultivars. Mass planting looks best when growing zinnias in the garden. An excellent cut flower, their susceptibility to powdery mildew in damp conditions prevents many gardeners from trying them a second time.

I'm not a particular fan of ageratum, but the unique salmon color of the "Red Sea" cultivar looked outstanding in the trial. With common names like pussy-foots and flossflowers, who can't enjoy their mostly sky blue and pink colored flowers to contrast with other flowers nearby. Use ageratum in fresh bouquets or dig up small plants for a winter display. Look for "Tall Blue Horizon" ageratum also in the trial.

Who can resist purchasing a sunflower for a large vase display on a kitchen table? Helianthus annuus flowers have markedly improved since the days the one type of sunflower, the 16-foot giants were lined up along an old farm fence. Look for these cutting friendly flowers from cultivars like "Cutting Gold," "Ornamental Sunbeam," "Sunbright," "Valentine," "Sundance Kid," "Sonja," "Shine" and "Moonbright." Surprisingly, these flowers grow almost anywhere you plant them in sun or partial shade. Keep the sunflowers spaced at least 10 to 12 inches apart.

Ammobium "Bikini" has twisted stems with flowers that dry white. To keep for everlasting flower, choose flowers that are a day or two before opening and hang upside down in a dry room. I've even dried hanging them from a patio roof.

Who can resist cutting from a bed of woolflowers, celosia cristata or celosia globosa? Als called plume or crested cockscombs, these exotic flowers have either a brain-looking appearance or feathery flower masses depending on type. Look for cultivars "Chief Mixed" or "Sparkle Mixed."

After walking through the cut flower trials with silver, red, and white mulch, you'll see more flowers planted in 30-inch wide beds. These weed trials contain sunflowers, cosmos, celosia and strawflowers. Don't be tempted to pick the flowers.

And, if your curiosity gets the better of you, bring your flowers, pests, and vegetables questions to the "Ask the Expert" tent open during the run of Progress Days. Hope to see you there.

Consuming Thoughts

by

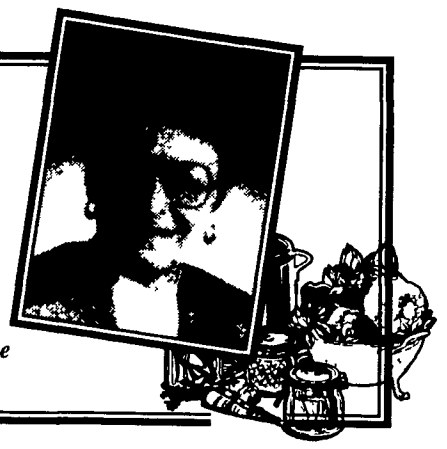
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



August is a peak period for harvesting watermelons and cantaloupes. Many people are apprehensive about selecting melons while others rely on techniques that are incorrect or may even damage the fruit.

Two techniques that damage melons are pressing on the end of a cantaloupe to see if it is soft, wrongly assuming it is ripe, and shaking under the assumption that if the seeds rattle, the melon must be ripe.

Likewise, very few people can slap or thump a watermelon and rightly tell if it is ripe. Let your eyes be be the guide for you. First, look at the scar on the stem end where the melon was attached to the vine. The scar should be calloused and slightly sunken. Avoid those with the stem still attached or the stem scar not fully depressed. The scar should be dry, not wet or weeping. A fully mature melon will easily detach from the vine—a "full slip." When a piece of the stem remains attached to the melon, it's called a "half slip."

The essential factors of watermelon quality are maturity and size. The larger melons have more edible flesh, proportionately, than the smaller ones.

Color is the best key to ripeness in watermelons. A yellowish underside, regardless of the rich green color of the rest of the melon, is a good sign of ripeness. A watermelon is somewhat like a book, in that you can't always tell its contents by its cover. When you go to buy a whole melon, look for one that is symmetrically shaped and has a velvety bloom—a dull, rather than shiny surface. The underside should be turning from white or pale green to a light yellowish color.

Avoid "white heart" in watermelons—a hard, white streak running lengthwise through the melon. Seeds, too, give a clue to ripeness. If the melon is fully matured, the seeds are usually dark brown to black. (Only one variety, the Improved Garrisonian, has white seeds.)

Most retailers charge slightly more for cut watermelons. It is well worth it! In this way, you can see the maturity of the melon—the only sure way of selecting a good watermelon.

The watermelon's chief contribution is one of enjoyment—not a heavy quota of nutrients; however, watermelons do contribute a useful amount of Vitamin A and small amounts of other nutrients.

A good cantaloupe will have a well-defined netting, the raised corky lines covering the melon. If the netting covers the cantaloupe thickly and stands out like whipcord, the melon is generally good. The color should be creamy white to yellow. Too deep a yellow, however may indicate over-ripeness and such melons should be avoided.

Fully ripe cantaloupe also have a delicate aroma, although too often the aroma is hard to detect because the melons have been kept under refrigeration, or should have been.

There are no such things as a "vine ripe" melon unless they are locally grown. Cantaloupes are picked at a mature stage and kept under refrigeration to slow down ripening. So don't be in a hurry to serve cantaloupe even though it is well matured. Cantaloupes do not increase their sugar content after picking but they do become softer, more mellow and more satisfactory to eat if held at room temperature for a day or two after you buy them.

ASPARAGUS OMELET DIJONAISE

12-14 fresh asparagus sticks
½ cup chopped walnuts
4-ounces sliced mushrooms
⅓ cup chopped, roasted, peeled red peppers, drained
¼ cup fat-free grated Parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper to taste, if desired
7-8 large eggs
1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
½ teaspoon dried tarragon or dill
1½ cups nonfat cottage cheese

Cut asparagus into 1-inch pieces; for 2-½ cups. Coat a large skillet with nonstick cooking spray and place over medium-high heat. Add the asparagus and stir and toss frequently for 4-5 minutes. Add the walnuts and stir for one minute, then add the mushrooms and peppers and stir for about one minute longer. Stir in the cheese, season with salt and pepper to taste, if desired. Set the filling aside until you stack the omelets.

In a bowl or large measuring cup, whisk together the egg substitute or whole eggs, mustard and tarragon. Season with salt and pepper, if desired. You will need three flat omelets. To make each one, coat a 9- or 10-inch nonstick skillet with nonstick cooking spray and place over medium-high heat; heat the pan for one minute. Add about ½ cup egg mixture.Stir with a spatuala as you gently tilt the pan over the heat, letting the uncooked mixture on top flow to the edges and underneath.

Keep the omelet as round and as flat as you can, but don't worry if it isn't perfectly shaped. In 1-2 minutes when the eggs are set, slide the omelet out of the pan and onto a serving platter, pushing it back into shape with a spatual if necessary. Spread with ¾ cup cottage cheese and another ⅔ cup filling. Make another omelet, slide it on top of the first one, then spread with the remaining ⅔ cup cottage cheese and another ⅔ cup filling. Make a third omelet, stack it on the others and top it with the remaining asparagus and walnut filling. Refrigerate if not serving within 30 minutes. To serve, cut into wedges, as you would a pie. Serves 4.

GRILLED CHICKEN AND GEMELLI PASTA SALAD

7.5 ounce package Gemelli Pasta with Tomato Parmesan
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ tablespoons olive oil
1½ teaspoons Dijon mustard
½ cup chicken broth
Salt and pepper to taste
1 large tomato, sliced in thirds to make thick disks
1 medium zucchini, quartered lengthwise to make long strips
1 large yellow squash, quartered lengthwise to make long strips
4 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves
4 cups shredded romaine lettuce or mixed baby greens
¼ cup chopped fresh basil (optional)

Boil pasta as package directs. Drain and place in large bowl.

Meanwhile, whisk together lemon juice, olive oil, mustard, and chicken broth. Mix half of this mixture with contents of the Spice Sack to make a dressing for the pasta salad; set aside. Reserve remaining lemon juice mixture as a basting for grilled vegetables and chicken.

Season tomato, zucchini, and yellow squash with salt and pepper to taste. Grill vegatables on an oiled rack over medium-hot grill until vegetables are browned and tender, about 4 to 5 minutes. During the last 2 minutes of cooking, brush with lemon baste. Remove from heat and set aside to cool.

Grill chicken on an oiled grid until no longer pink inside, about 8 minutes, turning once. During the last 2 minutes of cooking, brush only once with the lemon basting, discard remaining basting. Remove chicken to a cutting surface.

While chicken is grilling, chop the grilled vegetables; toss with pasta and reserved dressing mixture.

Divide lettuce among four serving plates. Spoon pasta salad onto lettuce, and top with slices of chicken. Sprinkle with basil, if desired.

Shredded iceberg lettuce

Drain beans, rinse and drain again. Cut the asparagus into 1-inch pieces for 2½ cups. Set aside.

Add the asparagus and pepper. Cook for 4-5 minutes, stirring and tossing frequently. Stir in the chili powder or taco seasoning, water and beans. Cover the pan and cook 2 minutes. Add the walnuts and stir for about 1 minute. Season the mixture with salt to taste, if desired. Divide the filling among the warm tortillas or the crisp taco shells, using about ⅓ cup in each taco. Gentle Giants Pull Together 4-H Youth

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Some of the members of this 4-H club don't say much at the meetings. They don't participate at all when it comes to bringing a snack or voting for officers. They would rather stay in the pasture. But no one could ever accuse these members of not pulling their own weight in the club, they do that, and then some!

They are the gentle giants, the draft horses and mules that a group of Carroll County 4-H equine enthusiasts meet each month to learn about.

Seventeen Carroll County young people are drawn together the first Wednesday of each month by their love of draft animals. The Gentle Giants 4-H club, the only draft horse and mule club in the state, often meets at the home of Terri Penick, one of the club leaders, a Percheron breeder who also has mules. The other club leader is Heather Bankard.

The two leaders started the club last year. "A lot of the kids that show in the group we show in are getting older. Some of them are in college now. We wanted to get some of the younger kids into it," explained Penick. "We do more with Percherons, but that's just because we have them here. It's not just Percherons," she said of the club's focus.

Some of the club members already participate in other light horse activities, like dressage and cross country. They are learning more about the unique characteristics of the draft breeds. "Most members have horses that they show in equestrian classes," explained club member Bart Poole. Then there are other members who do not own horses, but are "horse crazy," and are taking advantage of the club's hands-on learning activities.

One member of the Gentle Giants, Lamar Johnson, lives in Ellicott City in Howard County, but makes the drive each weekend to the Penick's farm, where he works with a registered Percheron mare, Director Babe. A member since the club started last year, Lamar is the only club member who will show western at the Carroll County fair with a draft horse this year. He showed Babe last year in the Western Showmanship class at the county fair, and brought home a third place ribbon.

Each month the leaders plan a different hands-on learning activity for the club members. Topics center around draft animals and all the activities that go along with caring for, showing, and working with them. Last month, Bob Shirley, a very well respected horseman who recently retired from the cooperative extension service, held a judging and conformation class with the animals at the Penick's farm. One month a harnessmaker came and gave the young people a lesson on the fine points of the harness. Another time they had a farrier talk on the differences between Scotch-bottom show shoes, farm shoes, and logging shoes. They have had sessions on mane rolling and putting

Members of the Gentle Giants 4-H club gathered recently at the home of leader Terri Penick. The club, now in its second year, is restoring this farm wagon that will be hitched to a mother-daughter team of Percheron mares at the Carroll County fair. The mare in the picture will be ridden alongside the wagon.

Lamar Johnson is the only member of the club who will show a draft animal in a western class at the Carroll County fair this year. Lamar, who lives in Howard County, drives to the Penick's farm each weekend to work with Director Babe. He will exhibit Babe in the Western Showmanship class. The two foals, one Babe's, and the other a foal the mare adopted as her own, insisted on being in the picture, too.

Members of the Gentle Giants Club are drawn together by a love of draft horses and mules.

ANSWER — Janet Tyson, Felton, wanted a recipe for dried corn. I think Janet wanted directions to make the dried corn, but several sent recipes for using it. Thanks to both Kermit Laub and a Strasburg reader for recommending John Cope's toasted dried corn in a box. For a free recipe folder, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to John Cope's Food Products, Inc., Rheems, PA 17570.

Thanks to Fran Westfall, New Oxford, who writes that to use dried corn, rinse the corn with cold water. Drain and cover with cold water. Let it stand overnight. Next day cook in boiling water, salted to taste. Cook until kernels are tender, about 30 minutes. Drain cooked corn, season with cream, butter, pepper, and, if needed, more salt. Serve piping hot. She thinks, dried corn tastes like hominy.

3 red peppers
3 green peppers
6 onions (size of egg)
1 tablespoon celery seed
2 tablespoons whole mustard
½ tablespoon whole cloves

Measure exactly 4½ cups quince juice and ½ cup lemon juice into a 6- or 8-quart saucepan. (If short on juice, add a small amount of water to jelly bag and squeeze again).

Measure 6½ cups sugar and set aside.

Mix 1 box Sure-Jell with juice in pan. Stir over high heat until mixture boils hard. At once, stir in the sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil that cannot be stirred down. Boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and quickly skim off foam. Pour into hot clean jars and seal. Yields: 10 6-ounce glasses jelly.

Advertising Increases Demand

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Dairy farmers and food retailers are using the "power of cheese" at the retail level this summer to help increase demand for U.S. cheese. The co-marketing program combines the dairy farmer resources of American Dairy Association® (ADA), the domestic marketing arm of Dairy Management Inc.™ (DMI), with those of participating retailers.

The retail cheese promotion, which began in mid May, is part of an overall dairy farmer effort designed to increase demand for cheese through the new "Behold the power of Cheese™ campaign. The campaign, which also involves TV and print advertising, public relations efforts, foodservice marketing and a consumer web site (www.ilovecheese.com), targets those consumers that research indicates are most likely to increase cheese consumption.

"Dairy farmers recognize the importance of cheese sales as a determining factor in the price of milk at the farm gate," said Dick Cooper, DMI vice president, cheese marketing. "Cheese amounts for 42 percent of milk utilization and 40 percent of dairy farmer revenue. That's why farmers are investing in a program that motivates retailers, who account for a large part of all cheese sales, to market cheese even more aggressively."

The summer cheese retail campaign will focus on 8,000 of the highest-volume supermarkets, which together represent more than 60 percent of total grocery store food volume in the U.S. Working with state and regional dairy promotion groups to sell in and extend the program, ADA provides participating stores with in-store sampling of cheese and retailer customized television advertising promoting cheese in their key markets.

Carroll County Fair Selects Busy Queen

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

Carroll County fair week was an especially busy one this year for Renata Ramonda. The 16-year-old Westminster youth knew that the horses, rabbits, and photography projects she entered in the 101st annual Carroll County fair, and the tractor driving contest she participated in would keep her busy.

What she hadn't counted on was the fact that she would be crowned Carroll County farm queen during the 4-H/FFA fair, held at the ag center in Westminster. In addition to exhibiting her projects, Renata spent the week in a flurry of activity handing out ribbons at shows, working at the livestock sale, and greeting the public.

Three young ladies competed for the title of farm queen in the dairy pavilion at the ag center. In addition to Renata, identical twins Emily and Jessica Hester, of Westminster, also participated in the contest. The 16-year-old daughters of Greg and Beth Hester live on a hog farm, and exhibit both hogs and sheep each year at the fair. They are both active in 4-H and FFA, and are also both members of the National Honor Society. Both sisters participate in sports, and are active in community service. Emily and Jessica will serve as alternates to the Carroll County farm queen.

In her last official duty as the 1997 Carroll County farm queen, Jessica Fritz, the daughter of Daniel and Sharon Fritz, New Windsor, gave her farewell address and passed on the tiara. Instead of focusing on the importance of agriculture in her last speech, Jessica took the opportunity to make a heartfelt statement about farmers themselves.

"Farmers are the best people I know," she said. "No one works harder or longer. Thank you to the farmers of Carroll County. I commend you and I want to tell you that I am so proud my family and I are part of your community."

Renata Ramonda, the daughter of DeAnn Ramonda-Pruitt and Arthur Pruitt, lives on a 14-acre quarter horse farm in Westminster, Pruitt's Pleasure Quarter Horse farm. She attends Westminster High School, where she will be a senior this fall. She has a two-year-old brother. The family raises, trains, and rides quarter horses, and also raises rabbits.

Renata's love of quarter horses keeps her busy feeding, cleaning stalls, training, and riding the animals at home. She is an accomplished rider, both English and Western. She qualified through her participation in the Maryland state team to go to the National Youth Activity team tournament. She took two of her horses to the event, and rode both English and Western.

Renata has also been very involved in the Carroll County therapeutic riding program. The program takes place each spring and fall at the ag center in Westminster. "I've been involved in the program for a very long time," she explained, "And I've become more active in recent years because I'm older. Basically, my job is to help out with the kids who are riding, either being a side-walker or a leader of the horse. It's been a wonderful experience to be able to work with the many children involved in the program."

At school, Renata is president of the Westminster High School FFA chapter. She attended the Maryland State FFA convention, and the 1996 National 4-H Congress. She is a member of the FFA horse judging team at the state level. Her 4-H activities include being president of the New Kids 4-H club, and a member of the Carroll County horse judging team. She has also participated in the horse bowl trivia and hippology contests.

She has taken several college level courses, including a freshman agriculture class in animal science from Kansas State University through a distance learning program. She also took a college level horse judging course from North Carolina State University.

As for her fair week activities, Renata said she was very busy, but she had a rewarding week. "We did pretty well. We did fairly decent in everything. It was fun!" she said.

up tails, on showing in hand, and have visited a farm to see and learn about mares ready to foal.

This summer the club members have been restoring a farm wagon that will be hitched to a mother-daughter team of Percheron mares at the Carroll County fair. Heather Bankard will ride alongside on another mare. The young people have made a banner with the slogan, "4-H Pulls Youth Together." And it's clear that with this dedicated group of horse enthusiasts, that slogan rings true.

By operating a corn picker similator, young campers attempt to beat the similator—an impossible feat.

Kids Attend Home Safety Camp

PENNS CAVE (Centre Co.) – On July 18 at the Nittany Antique Machinery Association, which is adjacent to Penns Cave, The Centre/Clinton Farm and Home Safety Day Camp was held from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Registration began at 8:30 and each camper received a free T-shirt. Approximately 150 kids from ages 5-13 attended. The event is sponsored by Centre and Clinton County Farm Bureaus, Cooperative Extension Office, and local businesses. There were 11 stations set up for the campers to visit. Each learning station lasted for 20 minutes.

At the First Aid Station, Sharon Reeder and her helpers handed out farm scenes for the kids to color and then wrap around a 3 pound coffee can. The can was then filled with bandages, waterproof tape, latex gloves, scissors, antiseptic wipes, various sized gauze pads and bandages and a triangle bandage. She talked briefly about the use for these items.

At the First on the Scene station, campers learned that the most important thing to do if they are the first one on the accident scene is not to move the injured person. They also learned what questions the 911 operator would ask them: name, address, phone number, type of problem, has any type of first aid been administered to the victim, and they will also be told by the operator what they an do to help the victim.

The 'Danger Signs' station was manned by Gary Dauber of the Center County Extension Office. The campers learned that tractor and PTO shafts were the cause of most of the injuries on the farm. They saw a slide show of the various signs that may be on the equipment and what each sign indicated and how important it was to know what these signs meant. And that no one young or old should disregard them.

Discussing food safety at the Food Safety station was Beth Van Horn of the Centre County Extension Office. Using an ultraviolet light, she showed the campers how germs could be on their skin without them even knowing it. Beth demonstrated how germs are passed on from one person to another by using Ag Progress has plenty for kids to do throughout the three-day event scheduled for Aug. 18-20. At the "ImAGination Station children can have their own computer-generated photo published, enter a hay-bale maze, discovery stations, Peep show to identify insects, and many fun activities. At the Farm Animal Learning Center owls, hawks, snakes and turtles will be on display. Llamas and other animals are in the Dairy and Livestock Tent. A SciQ Jr. contest with a TV quiz-show format and story telling will be held in the College Exhibits Building Theatre.

Kelsey Binkley, granddaughter of Helen and Donald Binkley of Conestoga, bottle feeds this lamb. The lamb's mother died while giving birth, but the lamb receives good care from Kelsey on her dad's Van Binkley Farm.

the ultraviolet light and G1-Germs, a powder that simulated germs, by glowing under the UV light. She sprinkled some of the powder over a campers hands and then had the camper shake hands, one after the other. She then passed the UV light over the initial campers hands and down the line she went over the rest of the campers hands, to point out just how germs are passed on. She informed the campers that it takes at least 20 seconds of scrubbing their hands with soap and water to get them thoroughly clean. Using petrie dishes, Beth showed the campers how different germs grow and what they look like.

At the Corn Picker Station, manned by Jim Ladlee of the Clinton County Extension Office and Dave Snook was a corn picker similator from the Department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering at Penn State. The one at a time the campers were instructed to grab a hold of a horizontal bar and squeeze it tightly. When the simulator made a certain distinctive sound the campers were to let go. The similator had a digital meter on front of it to let the campers know just how long it took them to let go. They were then told by the instructors just how far they would have been pulled into a machine. The important lesson learned was, no one is stronger or faster than a machine.

The Shop Safety Station was conducted by Paul Bohnert. One of the first things he showed the campers is why shop safety is so important. He asked for two volunteers, each to put on one glove. One glove had three fingers missing the other had all four missing. He then asked the volunteers to pick up a set of keys and a pen. They had difficulty doing so.

He discussed with the campers also the importance of wearing proper attire while in the shop. Boots are essential, definitely not any type of open toe shoe. Long pants that were not baggy were also important, and wearing a belt if necessary. Wearing a long sleeved shirt if helping to weld, and no matter what you were doing always have your shirt tucked in. Safety glasses with sides were also important as was ear protection and even at times a hard hat.

The campers were also reminded that when using electrical cords, always make sure that they had three prongs and were not frayed.

Chainsaw Safety was manned by Scott Owens. The first thing he did at the station was to show the campers a pair of good leather boots that someone had worn when they were using a chainsaw to cut a tree and the chainsaw 'kicked' back. If the man had not been wearing the proper footwear he may very well have lost some toes. Proper attire was also addressed at this station. Long sleeve shirt, leather boots with a good non-slip sole, chaps or jeans and gloves were on the list. As was an orange hard had that is easily seen in the woods, especially if someone has fallen because of injury.

Andrew Marzka, Centre County Cooperative Extension Office, demonstrated bicycle safety at his station. Road safety was discussed as were common bike safety rules. Again proper clothing was stressed — no flare bottom pants, proper shoes — definitely no open toed shoes, and of course, always wear a helmet.

Steve Ferrara of Monsanto manned the Poison Prevention Station. The campers were shown common household products and it was explained that even some items that are not harmful when taken in small doses, such as salt, when taken in larger doses can make you very sick.

The campers were given Mr. Yuk stickers to take home, and with their parents, put them on dangerous products to warn them and other children that these products are dangerous.

Karl Walizer, of Dotterer Equipment, was in charge of the Lawn Mower and Weed Eater Station. One of the first things he told the campers was when using a lawn mower to always first check the oil and only put gas in a cold engine, otherwise you could get burned. The campers were also instructed that when anyone did maintenance work on a mower it is important to always take out the spark plug so the mower won't accidentally start when the blade is moved. He also told campers how important it is for someone using a mower to be aware of what is around them and what is in the path of the mower. 98 percent of all windows that are broken in the house are done by lawn mowers pointed in the wrong direction. When discussing the weed eater, he told them that only the last 1/4" of the tip cuts the grass. Proper attire was also discussed: Goggles, ear protection, blue jeans or chaps, and of course gloves are essential.

At the Fire Safety Station, which was conducted by the Milheim Volunteer Fire Company, a non-toxic smoke filled trailer was set up for campers to crawl through so they had some idea of what it would be like to have to crawl out of their house if it was full of smoke. The campers were amazed how sometimes they could see in front of them and how sometimes they couldn't and how they could very easily loose their way in even such a small trailer. The campers were also shown how to feel along the walls to help keep their bearings straight.

After the campers had visited eight of the stations, they were then treated to a lunch of hot dogs, potato chips, apples, watermelon, cookies and milk, which was donated by local businesses and groups. Following lunch was another demonstration by the Milheim Fire Company The campers learned that there are three types of fires: A (wood and clothes), B (flammable products), and C (energized or electrical) The campers learned that in order to put out fire with a fire extinguisher they had to remember PASS, which stands for P-pull pin, A-aim for base of fire, S-squeeze handle, and S-sweep back and forth. The firemen showed the campers what they look and sound like with all their gear on.

Explaining to the group that if any of them are in a fire not to hide or run away from someone who could be looking for them who looked like this The campers were then shown how to use a fire extinguisher, they lined up to try and put out a fire using the extinguishers assisted by a fireman.

At the end of the day after the last three safety demonstrations were held, the campers were treated to ice cream. Each camper received a certificate of participation.

Ida's Notebook

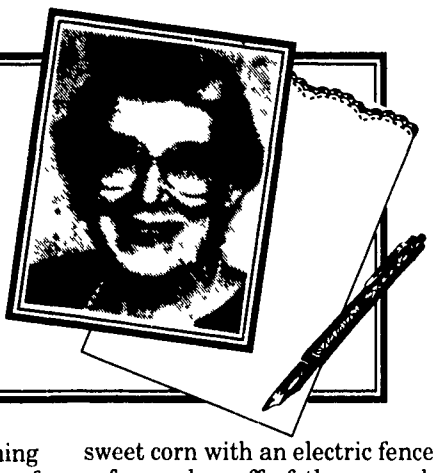
Ida Risser



'Tis the season for canning fruits and vegetables. Much of our garden produce is frozen, but eventually our two freezers get full as do our two refrigerators. Then I hunt quart and pint jars for peaches, pears, pickles, and plums plus tomatoes.

This year our peaches are not very good quality as we did not spray them enough. Last year our one tiny tree gave us 30 quarts. Cucumbers stretch out the season by giving us some for weeks and so I can some every other day for weeks. Our grandsons gave me several packs of seed so that I would give them several quarts of my sweet spiced pickles. I'm thinking that their father taught them to like my pickles.

My husband protected his sweet corn with an electric fence a few inches off of the ground We are expecting a big crop if he can keep the groundhogs out of the patch. Our first crop has been eaten and frozen long ago

The other week we took my sister and her husband along to our camper in Snyder county We had a picnic lunch and then, after a boat ride, drove through state game lands.

Now you must enjoy driving through the woodlands to like several hours of seeing only trees and an occasional hunting cabin. But, we had an opportunity to talk and share. As a general rule we plan our days so full of activities that we seldom stop to simply visit. We need to plan for pleasururable hours as life is too short.

Siblings Hog Champion Tops At Schuylkill Swine Show

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

SUMMIT STATION (Schuylkill Co.) — A brother and sister duo swept grand champion and reserve champion placings in the swine show held last week at the Schuylkill County Fairgrounds.

Fifteen-year-old Briana Shealer showed the grand champion, and with the same hog took grand champion showmanship honors and reserve champion fitter.

Her 14-year-old brother Paul showed the reserve champion market hog and was named reserve champion fitter.

The two Hampshire cross hogs came from the same breeder but from different breeding stock. The Shealers declined to reveal the name of the breeder.

The siblings are the children of Paul and Sharon Shealer who operate Evergreen Acres in Auburn. They share responsibilities for raising 4-H projects in dairy and market goats, steers, lambs, and pigs.

The day before the hog show, Paul showed the reserve champion market goat and Briana won several championship ribbons for dairy goats.

Although Briana and Paul have been showing for years, this was the first year they competed in the same showmanship and fitting class.

Judge Sweigard complimented Briana for the smile on her face as she showed the rambunctious hog. "She looks like she's enjoying it." Sweigard challenged other exhibitors to smile and be proud of what they're doing.

Paul said that he likes to outdo his sister in competition, but Briana shrugged and said, "It's a family thing. I'm just as happy if Paul wins."

Both attributed their showing success to their dad who is the Carbon County extension agent.

"Dad never showed when he was a kid. But he knows how we should do things, " Paul said. While many exhibitors experience some nervous jitters in the show ring, the siblings said, "Dad is always more nervous than us."

Briana and Paul are both members of the Schuylkill Stampede 4-H Club and attend Blue Mountain High School.

They keep their winnings separate. Brianna said that she is saving for a car. Her brother is saving for college. "It's Penn State all the way," he said of his and Briana's college choice.

Gene Sweigard, Halifax livestock judge, said that he has judged more than 30 years at shows all over the county. He praised the 19 exhibitors who showed 37 hogs, for producing outstanding hogs that fit feeder, packer, and consumer demands.

When Sweigard selects a champion, he looks for a hog that can fit feeder, packer, and consumer demands.

Of Briana's hog, he said that it is a heavyweight functional hog that is extremely lean, and will hang up.

Lacey Bainbridge was the champion fitter.

Paul and Briana Shealer fit Gene Sweigard's strict judging standards for hogs and showmanship. The siblings collected grand champion titles for showmanship and for market hogs that fit standards of feeders, packers, and consumers.

Dairy Beef Show Excels In Entries At Schuylkill

Dairy beef competition is highly popular at the Schuylkill Fair. The animals are judged differently from the traditional beef show and offers kids a low-cost alternative to the more expensive show steers.

SUMMIT STATION (Schuylkill Co.) — Schuylkill County Fair has the distinction of being the first fair in the state to offer dairy beef competition. They have Bob Evanchalk to thank for that.

As leader of the Schuylkill Stampede 4-H Livestock Club, Evanchalk said that he noticed there wasn't a competition suitable for the animals a lot of kids have on a dairy farm.

"At most fairs, no animal project goes to the auction that a dairy has.

"We wanted a low-cost project for younger kids.

"There's a big demand for dairy beef, because it's a lean beef," Evanchalk said.

Unlike the steers raised for the beef competition, dairy beef aren't raised from breeding stock, which is difficult for many 4-H'ers to afford.

"The benefits of the dairy beef project is that kids start even. They start raising a bull calf in January. It's milk fed and weaned, and fed to get as heavy as possible for the August Fair," Evanchalk said.

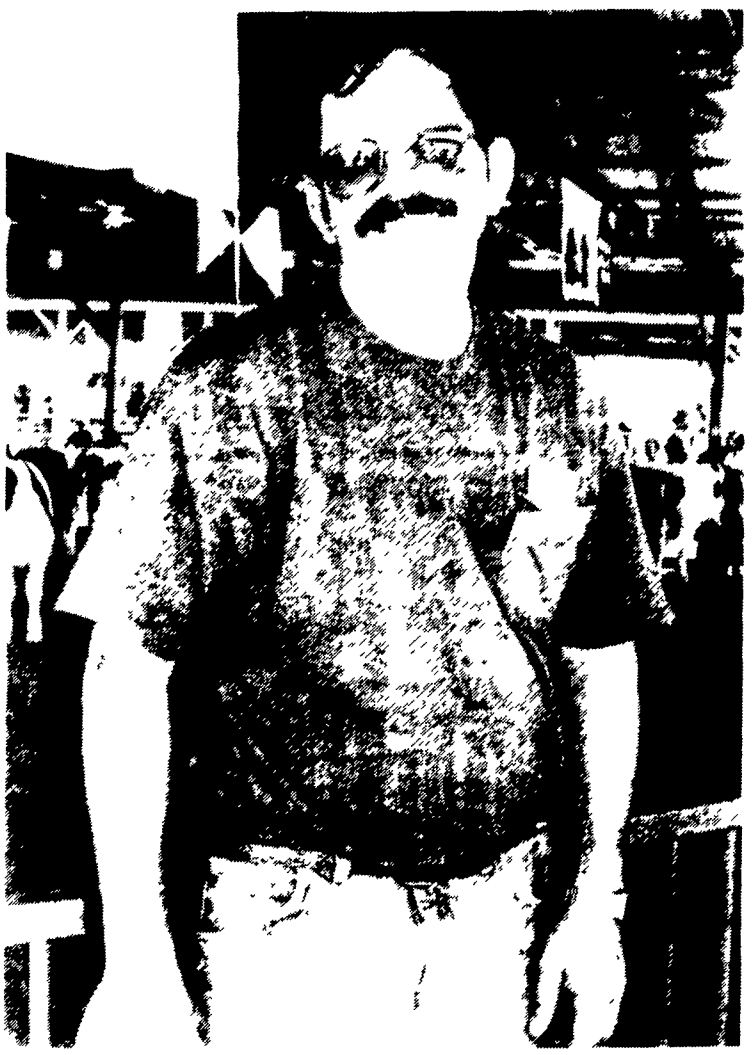
Even so, the beef are not finished by the time Schuylkill Fair is held. The beef are sold over the auction then sent to a farm to be finished to 1,100 to 1,800 pounds, depending on the frame.

Last week, 32 4-H'ers showed dairy beef at Wednesday's competition. They have kept careful records of expeditures and care.

Excelling in showmanship was Evanchalk's daughter Sarah.

"It's my last year in competition and I really wanted to win," said Sarah, who is headed off for college later this month.

When selected as champion showman in dairy beef, Sarah was still rejoicing from the previous day's win. She had won the championship in showmanship and showed the champion goat in the goat contest.



Four years ago, Shuylkill Fair was the first in the state to offer dairy beef competition. The show was designed by Bob Evanchalk and had 32 entries this year.

The victory was an amazing feat for the goat named Lazarus.

"I named him Lazarus because he was literally raised from the dead," Sarah said.

When she purchased the goat in March, it didn't look well and the buyer said, "Take it and if it lives, pay me $30."

"I almost put him out of his misery two times. He couldn't get off his knees for a week. I gave him physical therapy on his joints."

Although Lazarus revived, Sarah never saw him as a prize winner. She said, "Gosh, no. I had had a dead goat. He weighed only 60 pounds and was competing against 100-pound ones."

Lazarus might have looked like a black, skinny goat, but the judge said a goat with muscles in all the right places resulting in lean meat for the market.

The Evanchalks have "a little bit of everything" on their Laurel Run Farm in Pine Grove.

Taking reserve championship honors in showmanship was Rebekah Heim, 15.

"It's my first win," said Rebekah, daughter of Debbie and Charles Heim. They raise a variety of animals on their Schuylkill Haven farm.

Shealer took grand championship honors with a 1,295 pound steer and his sister settled for reserve with her 1,195 pound market steer.

With five steers in the show ring, the Shealer's steers were judged most complete. Lightweight competition was proclaimed to be not close to grade, and Grant Kurtz's heavyweight, though thick and hefty, was believed to be pushing toward too heavy according to Gene Sweigard, livestock judge from Halifax.

To condition the steers, the siblings walked them twice daily, brushed and washed them.

Briana was selected as grand champion showman and reserve fitter. Paul was reserve showman and champion fitter.

Green Tomato Pickle

4 cups green tomato, chopped fine
4 cups cabbage, chopped fine
6 medium onions, chopped fine

Combine chopped green tomatoes, cabbage, and onions. Squeeze out as much juice as you can. Add the following:

1 pint cider vinegar
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon celery seed
2 dozen whole cloves

Cook 25 minutes. Put into hot sterilized jars, seal with hot sterilized lids.

ANSWER — Betty Jakum, Littlestown, has a recipe for watermelon pickles that requires slaked lime. She wanted to know where to buy it and is hydrated or pickling lime the same thing? Thanks to Wanda Jordan, Troy, W.V., who writes that slaked lime is calcium hydroxide and can be purchased at a pharmacy. It is distributed as hydrated lime under the label Mrs. Wages, and can be mailordered through Precision Foods Inc., Tupelo, MS 38803-2067.

Family Activities Certain To Measure Up At Ag Progress

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Young and old alike can take the measure of the world around them at the ImAGination Station at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 18-20. This year's exhibit, titled "Pennsylvania Agriculture: Measuring Up," has a new look that promises children and adults hours of fun and an introduction to the world of interactive science.

Participants can begin by making their own personal edition of the "ImAGination Station Times," which gives children a chance to have their own computer-generated photo published at Ag Progress Days.

Each display in the ImAGination Station will focus on some aspect of measurement in the world of farming and agriculture. Kids of all ages can enter a hay-bale maze armed only with a map, a list of questions and their own scientific knowledge. Within this maze, participants will visit the following "discovery stations" to try and find answers to questions on their list:

•A 4-H display where children can fill out a contract to see if they "measure up" as good citizens.

•An insect "Peep Show" that allows visitors to peer into a box and identify insects, then answer questions on how to measure insect reproduction rates and insect population densities on crops

•An exhibit showing how far a grasshopper can hop, measured in comparison to how far a human being can hop

•A demonstration of how to measure soil erosion.

Just outside ImAGination Station, animal lovers can enjoy the fuzzy antics of baby animals in the Farm Animal Learning Center sponsored by Students for the Responsible Use of Animals. In addition, Shaver's Creek Environmental Center will display owls, hawks, snakes and turtles. If these two displays aren't enough of an animal fix, visitors also can see live llamas in the Dairy and Livestock Tent 2.

Other activities for the younger crowd include the SciQ Jr. contest, where participants test their agricultural knowledge in a TV quiz-show format. The game will be played daily at 11 a.m. and Wednesday at 6 p.m. in the College Exhibits Building Theatre.

Award-winning short story author and master storyteller Jan Kinney will regale audiences with daily noon-time performances in the College Exhibits Building Theatre.

The Family Room exhibit features displays related to raising children, such as "Kids in the Kitchen" and "The High School Financial Planning Program."

Lancaster 4-H'ers Win Top Spots In State Competition

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — With 1,067 4-H'ers from around the state competing for coveted state honors, Lancaster County youth proved that they are among the best.

The three-day annual event held at Penn State University is highly competitive, with participants needing to qualify at county and regional levels before advancing to state competition.

County members taking first-place individual honors included 13-year-old Holly Hoover. She stitched and modeled a winning entry in the state Fashion Revue and was selected as one of 10 winners across the state. Last year, her sister Jenny won the same distinction.

Taking another first-place in individual competition was Radell Peters in meats judging. This was the second year in a row for Radell to achieve that honor. The difference is that this year, Radell led the county team, which includes Jimmy Zimmerman, 14; Ryan Donough, 14; and Derek Bollinger, 14, to a first-place team victory.

Kelly Sullivan, 18, achieved a first-place standing in the individual hippology competition. She and team members Laura Henseler, 19; Sarah Kerker, 17; and Carol Hollingsworth, 17, made up the first place hippology team. Last year the same team members had placed second in statewide competition.

Lancaster County also had the first-place team in senior horse judging. They also had been second-place winners last year. In addition to the team championship, several team members also achieved top billing in individual scoring. Erin Smith 18, was first-place individual; Erin Reife, 16, was second-place individual; Kerra Allen, 17, was fourth place individual; and Lindsey Shreiner, 14, completed the team effort.

Winners from other counties will be featured in an upcoming issue of Lancaster Farming.

At state 4-H competition, the first place team in Senior Horse Judging, from left, includes Erin Reife, 16, who was also second-place individual; Kerra Allen, 17, who was fourth place individual; Erin Smith, 18, who was first place individual; and Lindsey Shreiner, 14.

First-place meats judging team includes Jimmy Zimmerman, 14; Radell Peters, 15, who was also the first place individual; Ryan Donough, 14; and Derek Bollinger, 14.

Although she is only 13-years old, Holly Hoover stitched and modeled a winning entry in the state Fashion Revue. She was selected as one of 10 winners across the state.

This Hippology team took first place honors in state competition. From left are Laura Henseler, 19; Sarah Kerker, 17; Kelly Sullivan, 18, who was also the first place individual; and Carol Hollingsworth, 17.

During the Ag in the Classroom seminar held at Penn State Campus recently, Centre County Dairy Princess Billie Jo Bird, left, assists Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess Nichole Meabon in explaining the dairy princess program and in teaching the necessity of using real dairy products instead of imitation.

ROCKVILLE, Md. — Consumers can play an important public health role by reporting to U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) any adverse reactions or other problems with products the agency regulates,

FDA is responsible for ensuring that foods are safe, wholesome, and correctly labeled. It also oversees medicines, medical devices (from bandages to artificial hearts), blood products, vaccines, cosmetics, veterinary drugs, animal feed, and electronic products that emit radiation (such as microwave ovens and video monitors), ensuring that these products are safe and effective.

The testing that helps to establish the safety of products, such as drugs and medical devices, is typically conducted on small groups before FDA approves the products for sale. Some problems can remain unknown, only to be discovered when a product is used by a large number of people

When problems with FDA-regulated products occur, the agency wants to know about them and has several ways for the public to make reports. Timely reporting by consumers, health professionals, and FDA-regulated companies allow the agency to take prompt action. The agency evaluates each report to determine how serious the problem is, and, if necessary, may request additional information from the person who filed the report before taking action.

•Reporting an Emergency: If the situation is an emergency that requires immediate action, such as a case of food-borne illness or a drug product that has been tampered with, call the agency's main emergency number, staffed 24 hours a day, (301) 443-1240. You also can report emergencies to an FDA consumer complaint coordinator in your geographic area.

•Non-Emergency Reports: If you experience a problem that does not require immediate action–such as a non-emergency adverse reaction to a food product or an over-the-counter medical device that doesn't work as advertised–you can report it to the appropriate Consumer Complaint Coordinator. Or you can report it to the appropriate FDA office from the following list:

•Foods: To report problems, including adverse reactions, related to any food except meat and poultry, call the FDA Food and Seafood Information Line at 1-800-FDA-4010 (1-800-332-4010). If the problems involves meat or poultry, which are regulated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, call the USDA hotline at 1-800-535-4555.

•Medicines: (prescription and over-the-counter), medical devices, blood products, special nutritional products (dietary supplements, infant formula, medical foods) FDA's MedWatch program is designed to monitor adverse events and other problems with medical products to ensure that new safety information is quickly communicated to medical professionals To report a problem to MedWatch:

If you or a family member has experienced or witnessed a serious adverse reaction or other problem with a medical product, call MedWatch at 1-800-FDA-1088 (1-800-332 1088) to request that a reporting form (one-page, return postage paid) be mailed to you. A reaction is considered serious if the product caused, or is suspected of having caused death; a life-threatening situation; admission to a hospital or a longer-than-expected hospital stay; permanent disability; a birth defect; or medical care to prevent permanent damage Forms and instructions also can be downloaded from the agency's Web site. http;//www.fda gov/medwatch/

•Vaccines; Adverse reactions and other problems related to vaccines should be reported to the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System, which is maintained by FDA and the Center for Disease Control and Prevention. For a copy of the vaccine reporting form, call 1-800-822-7967 or the FDA website at http;//www.fda.gov/cber /vaer.html.

•Veterinary Products: Report any problems with veterinary drugs and animal feed to FDA's Center for Veterinary Medicine at 1-888-FDA-VETS (1-888-332-8387).

•Cosmetics: Call the FDA Cosmetics and Colors Automated Information Line 1-800-270-8869, for information on how to report adverse reactions to cosmetics, as well as problems such as filth, decomposition, or spoilage.

•Medical Advertising: To report fraudulent or misleading advertising or promotion of FDA-regulated products, call 1-800-238-7332.

•General Guidelines About Reporting: Report what happened as soon as possible. Give names, addresses and phone numbers of persons affected. Include you name, address and phone number, as well as that of the doctor or hospital if emergency treatment was provided.

State the problem clearly. Describe the product as completely as possible, including any codes or identifying marks on the label or container. Give the name and address of the store where the product was purchased and the date of purchase. You should also report the problem to the manufacturer or distributor shown on the label and store where you purchased the product.

What the FDA Doesn't Handle: Reports and complaints about the following should be made to the agencies listed. Phone numbers can be found in your local phone directory:

•Restaurant food and sanitation – Local or state health departments

•Unsolicited products in the mail – U. S. Postal Service

•Accidental poisonings – Poison control centers or hospitals

•Pesticides or air and water pollution – U. S. Environmental Protection Agency

•Alcoholic beverages – Department of Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms

General Information: If you have a general question about an FDA regulated product, call 1-800-532-4440. But don't report problem products or adverse reactions to this consumer information number. Use the other numbers described above.

Dairy Farmer-Funded Nutrition Research Making Headlines

PITTSBURGH — Sometimes food research can be a gas — literally.

That's what researchers at Cornell University discovered when seeking ways to extend the freshness date of cottage cheese. By adding a small amount of carbon dixide to cottage cheese, shelf life was increased from about three weeks to eight weeks. Currently, more than 15 commercial cottage cheese operations are using this new technology, which was funded by America's dairy farmers.

In fact, America's dairy farmers fund a multitude of pioneering research projects each year, from using milkfat components to improve butter's spreadability to exploring how whey can help add vitamins to reduced-fat foods, enhancing their nutritional profile. A majority of the research is carried out at six university-based Dairy Foods Research Centers located throughout the United States, under the direction of Dairy Management Inc.™ (DMI) on behalf of dairy farmers.

The 1998 research plan, coordinated by DMI, is designed to directly meet the needs of consumers and the food industry in order to increase demand for all dairy products. This plan focuses on five key areas: cheese, fluid milk, whey and dry milk ingredients, milkfat, and overall quality and safety. It also includes research examining the nutritional benefits of dairy product consumption at various life stages.

"Americans today are more nutritionally knowledgeable and demand more than ever before from the food industry," said DMI's Bill Haines, Ph.D., vice president, business-to-business marketing. "So we need to be cutting-edge in all of our research efforts to ensure we can continue to make relevant claims and promote the desirable benefits of dairy products.

"The national dairy farmer-funded research plan forcuses on projects that will have the greatest impact on the marketplace, such as improving the appearance of fat-free (skim) milk and developing new technology to heighten flavor in cheeses such as Cheddar and Parmesan. The goal is to fund projects that ultimately encourage Americans to consume more dairy and dairy-based products."

Research is vital to overall dairy promotion. In addition to extending the freshness of cottage cheese, past research findings have allowed the industry to promote the role of milk consumption in osteoporosis prevention, and how a dairy-rich diet can reduce hypertension.

"We are aggressively seeking new uses for dairy products and ingredients, improving performance of existing products, identifying new technologies and exploring nutritional benefits," says Cindy Weimer, spokesperson for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program which represents dairy farmers in 33 counties in western and north central Pennsylvania. "With this precision research plan, we can help increase consumption by ensuring dairy products maintain their prominent position at American meals — morning noon and night."

Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program contracts with the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East to work closely with Dairy Management Inc.™, the national check planning and management organization, to implement dairy promotion and research programs nationwide.

Since the national dairy farmer checkoff began in 1984, dairy promotion organizations have helped to sell more than 200 billion pounds of total milk beyond what was projected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to have been sold without the checkoff in place. To learn more about dairy farmer-funded efforts, contact Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program at 814/498-2058; cweimer@drinkmilk.com.

Cut Flower Business Can Be Profitable Alternative For Farmers

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Farmers seeking an alternative crop or extra source of income can explore how to set up a cut-flower farming operation by visiting Ag Progress Days, sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, Aug. 18-20.

Faculty from the college's Department of Horticulture and horticulture agents from Penn State Cooperative Extension will be on hand at a tent on East 7th St., to answer questions and distribute literature on cut-flower operations The event is held at the University's Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, near State College.

"Cut flowers have had a resurgence of interest among farms and other businessmen as a cash crop that can be sold at farmer's markets and other outlets," said Robert Berghage, assistant professor of horticulture. "The cash return on a small, well-managed plot of flowers is a lot more than you would get from an acre of corn."

Berghage said the tent will showcase two trial plots for interested visitors. The first plot will display different varieties of flowers, including zinnias, asters, celosia, sunflowers and strawflowers. "We also will display some unique flower varieties that are not widely known on the market," Berghage said.

The second plot will demonstrate several methods of weed control, including the use of plastic films and herbicides "The biggest problem in raising flowers is weed control," Berghage said. "If they are not controlled, weeds will outcompete flowers for water and nutrients and act as a reservoir for insects that emerge, and thereupon decimate whatever is left of your flower crop."

Visitors can also get a variety of fact sheets and information on business opportunities, weed control, budgeting, and crop handling.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits. The Russell E Larson Agricultural Research Center is located nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45 Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours on Wednesday from 9 a.m to 8 p.m Admission and parking are free

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 through Aug. 20. Or, if you have access to the Internet, visit Ag Progress Days on the World Wide Web at http://apd.cas.psu edu.

The Elizabethtown Fair 25 Years of Making Memories

A child's first taste of cotton candy . . . the wonderment of a newborn calf . . . the pride of a blue-ribbon entry — the Elizabethtown Fairgrounds has seen it all

The roofs of the Elizabethtown Fair go back to 1950 when the Elizabethtown Kiwanis Club hosted the first community Farm Fair This event was first held in September 1950 along Poplar Street (with the midway behind the current Elizabethtown Community Center). Booths were located on a lot at the corner of Bainbridge and South Poplar streets.

In 1954 the Kiwanis club relocated the farm fair across from Lake Placida at Elizabethtown College. This property became known as Kiwanis Park. An office, public restrooms, and a large exhibit building were added to Kiwanis Park.

Due to dwindling support and community interest, the Kiwanis Club replaced its farm fair with a carnival and pet parade in 1961. The event vanished completely sometime in the 1960s.

In the 1970s the fair was "reborn" as an added attraction to the Elizabethtown Jaycees Festival held in the Elizabethtown Community Park. As a result, the present fair was organized by the Jaycees in 1973 and operated under the name "Marketplace Fair"

In 1978, the event officially became known as the Elizabethtown Fair, and moved to the old Kiwanis Park grounds, which had become part of the Elizabethtown College campus. Under the leadership of the Jaycees, the fair continued to grow and the club decided an area was needed for just the agricultural portion of the fair. Elizabethtown Area School District's "land lab," the current site of the Elizabethtown Fair, was selected for agricultural exhibits. In 1981 the fair activities were split between the Kiwanis Park grounds and the current fairgrounds.

In 1981 Agricultural Hall was opened on the new site and the Jaycees ran the first livestock competition on the current fairgrounds. In the same year the Elizabethtown Fair Association Ad Hoc Committee was formed and assumed the Jaycee duties. At this time, the fair was incorporated as Elizabethtown Community Fair, Inc. and a board of directors and officers was elected.

Many changes have taken place at the fair since that time. The dairy-beef barn was erected on the fairgrounds in 1983, and Sara Myer Hall in 1985. The main stage was built in 1988 to showcase the live bands and entertainers. The fair office building was renovated in 1989. A large commercial building was constructed adjacent to Myer Hall in 1995.

Under the current direction of the Elizabethtown Fair board of directors, the Elizabethtown Fair remains a permanent, prosperous community event which features many of the original events and contests held at the first fair in 1950. The Elizabethtown Fair now runs Monday through Saturday in late August each year.

This year, the Fair is scheduled Aug. 24-29 10 a.m.-10 p.m. with livestock shows, a midway, and plenty of food and fun.

Ag Progress Days Offers Machinery Demonstrations

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Farmers or homeowners looking to test-drive a new vehicle can cancel trips to car lots and head toward Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 18-20.

By visiting the expanded "ride and drive" area, you can test drive and compare the latest full-size tractor models from a variety of manufacturers. Homeowners with large yards or farmers looking to handle small jobs also may be interested in a separate compact lawn and garden tractor ride-and-drive, featuring gasoline- or diesel-powered machines with no more than 35 horsepower engines.

"We'll have products from three manufacturers for compact lawn and garden tractors and products from three manufacturers for full-size diesel tractors," said Bob Oberheim, manager of Ag Progress Days. "Visitors can experience firsthand the latest models and any changes that the tractor companies have made in the last year. The compact lawn and garden tractors are useful for part-time or hobby farmers and for smaller farm jobs such as mowing, pulling a small spreader or hauling bales of hay."

The product lines for compact lawn and garden tractors are John Deere, Cub Cadet, and Steiner. The product lines for full-size diesel tractors are New Holland, Case IH, and Agco.

The ride-and-drive site, located between 1st Street and Rt. 45, will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 18 and 20, and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Aug. 19. All operators must be at least 18 years old and sign a waiver of liability. Company representatives will screen operators for eligibility.

In addition to the tractor ride-and-drive, more than 300 commercial exhibitors will display goods and services at Ag Progress Days. Besides tractors and other heavy machinery, their wares range from seed, feed and fertilizer to insurance, consulting services, small power equipment, and many other products.

"Visitors can find information on state-of-the-art equipment and cutting-edge techniques, all in one convenient location," Oberheim said. "Ag Progress Days is one-stop shopping for farmers."

Because machinery accidents are the leading cause of farm injuries and deaths, another demonstration will focus on farm safety. A new attraction is a skid-steer rodeo for tractor operators. In addition, an exhibit of lighting and marking materials for agricultural equipment will be on display. Also, remote-controlled full-scale equipment will undergo mishaps while being operated under typical conditions.

Other planned field demonstrations will focus on corn chopping, silage bagging, sweet corn harvesting, high-moisture hay baling and combining with precision farm equipment.

In addition, various exhibits and workshops will feature information on the latest research-based production techniques, government programs and regulations, and various educational initiatives, ranging from health and safety to forest stewardship.

For more information, call (800) PSU-1010 toll-free through August 20 or visit the Ag Progress Days site on the World Wide Web at http://apd.cas.psu.edu.

Crops, Forage Information At Ag Progress

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The latest developments in forage and crop production will be featured in the Crop and Soil Science Tent at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, Aug. 18-20.

"We're featuring plots with an alfalfa-corn rotation into ryegrass stubble, new alfalfa seedings with potato leafhopper-resistant varieties, Roundup Ready soybeans versus normal soybeans, and a weed control demonstration," said Marvin Hall, associate professor of forage management and coordinator for the tent. The demonstration plots are located outside the Crop and Soil Science Tent on East 5th Street.

Inside the tent, visitors can see educational exhibits and demonstrations from Penn State, the Corn Growers Association, and the Forage Growers Association. "The display of common weeds of Pennsylvania is always a big attraction," said Hall. "We have live weeds in pots, and specialists on hand to answer your questions on controlling specific weeds. If you have strange weeds on your property, dig them up, bring them in, and the specialists will identify them."

Exhibits also explore soil fertility and testing, nutrient management, pest control, forage quality testing, and other topics.

Farmers can visit the "Ask the Specialist" booth to find solutions to problems with soil fertility, diseases, insects, corn, forages, small grains, and tillage practices. Specialists from the Pennsylvania Crop Management Association and Penn State's agronomy, entomology and plant pathology departments will be on hand to share research results and answer questions

Visitors to the Crop and Soil Science Tent also can test their knowledge using an agronomy quiz board, with questions about small grains, soybeans, corn, forage, and soil fertility. "If you get 16 out of 20 right, you should take our jobs," Hall said smiling

Also at this site will be the Hay Show, with displays of the state's best hay samples Growers who would like to enter the show are invited to bring samples to the Hay Show drop-off point near the Ag Progress Days east entrance by 10 a.m Tuesday, Aug. 18. All growers will receive the results of their hay's evaluation.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstrations. It is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring, nine miles southwest of State College on Rt. 45. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours of 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Admission and parking are free.

Three-Year-Old Is Supreme At Carroll County 4-H/FFA Show

WESTMINSTER, Md. — A homebred junior 3-year-old Holstein owned by Justin Watt of Middleburg was named supreme champion of the dairy show here at the 101st Carroll County 4-H and FFA fair. The show was held in the dairy pavilion at the Carroll County Ag Center.

MD-Cedar Knoll Encore Gem, who was fresh in December, clinched the title with her all-around quality and good looks, according to judge Ronnie Heffner of Jefferson, Maryland.

Judge Heffner liked Justin's cow so well he predicted that she could possibly be nominated Junior All-American. "She's a very complete cow; she's got the balance, she's got the udder, and she's got the legs," said the judge. In fact the great-granddam of the cow herself went Junior All-American as a junior 3-year-old.

Justin, the son of Jerry and Barbara Watt, said he wasn't totally surprised by the big 3-Year-Old's top placing. "I figured she'd be up there because of some of the other shows I've been to," said the fifteen-year-old, "She's a nice cow and I've been told by many people in the county that she's a nice cow." Gem placed 2nd this year at the Maryland Spring Show and 2nd at the District show, held at the Howard County Fairgrounds, where she was also reserve grand champion.

Master of Ceremonies Allen Stiles pointed out that three of the grand champion cows in this 4-H fair: the Holstein, the Brown Swiss shown by Erin Burall, and the Jersey shown by Daniel Null, were bred and owned cows. "That shows our kids are doing a good job," he said

Mr. Heffner stressed to the audience how impressed he was with the enthusiasm and quality in the show, and said the pride of the young people really came through in the show ring. "I'm honored that I had a chance to judge this Carroll County fair," he said, "I judge a lot of shows, and I've never seen anything on the whole with so much interest. Pride is a big thing in anything you do, and Carroll County has a lot of pride."

Supreme junior champion honors went the the first place Holstein junior yearling exhibited by Jeena Rinehart. Heffner said he was impressed by the heifer's front end, her breed character, and her style.

Following the show, the Carroll County 4-H dairy judging teams were announced. Team members are as follows: Junior Team: Jenae Rinehart, Brandi Burdette, Jodee Rinehart, Scott Davis, Alternates: Jon Sanders and Sarah Gieron. Intermediate Team: Ashley Burdette, Ryan Haines, Danielle Hess, Jarrod Burall, Alternates: Eileen Albaugh and Brandon Derr. Senior Team: Jeena Rinehart, Brett Haines, Amy Miller, Jeff Sutton, Alternates. Gary Brauning and Josh Sanders.

Three scholarships were awarded to dairy youth by the Carroll County 4-H dairy club at the dairy show. Two scholarships in memory of Alan Wiles were given, one to Jason Watt and one to Kristin Myers. The third scholarship, presented in memory of Zach Hall, was given to Jessica Fritz.

The top three placing in each class at the Carroll County 4-H/FFA dairy show follow.

Dairy Feeding Systems Conference Dec. 8-10

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) – Dairy feeding systems impact milk production, labor requirements, capital investments, cropping systems, excess nutrients, and overall farm profitability. A conference focusing on this important system within the dairy farm is scheduled here Dec.. 8-10.

Entitled "Dairy Feeding Systems: Management, Components, and Nutrients," the conference will bring together more than 30 experts, including several producers, to share their knowledge and answer participants' questions on all aspects of dairy feeding systems components and management.

Target audiences for the conference are dairy producers and farm managers; producer advisers and consultants; extension and university educators; nutritionists; crop advisers; feed, seed, and equipment sales representatives; nutrient managers and agronomists; veterinarians; agricultural engineers; and faculty designers. The program will be of interest to policy makers, lenders, and professionals working in agricultural media as well.

The goals of the conference are to provide information that can improve feeding systems management and farm profitability, provide an overview of the engineering aspects of feeding systems, and demonstrate the integration of herd nutrition and cropping system management to improve farm profitability and minimize excess nutrients.

Included in the three-day program are presentations on feeding systems and herd health, choosing storage facilities, forage allocation, contracting for feed, coping with catastrophic loss, TMR mixers and management, worker training, grouping strategies, feed bunks,water quality, cow comfort, shrinkage, feed quality, economics, and nutrients management. speakers from academia and industry will include animal scientists, engineers, consultants, veterinarians, and agronomists. The conference will offer a combination of presentations, panel discussions, and informal discussions. Plenty of time is dedicated to audience questions. Planned evening discussions will be dedicated to topics of interest to the audience. An evening trade show may be offered, if there is sufficient industry interest. (Those interested in exhibiting should contact NRAES.)

Fertilizer Institute Hails

WASHINGTON, D.C. — After more than three years of proactive education and congressional activity by The Fertilizer Institute, precision agriculture research legislation is on its way to the White House where the President is expected to sign it in to law.

The Precision Agriculture Research, Education and Information Dissemination Act (formerly S. 485 and H.R. 725) is part of the Agriculture Research, Extension, and Education Reauthorization Act conference report.

The measure creates a detailed precision ag research initiative with definitions, priorities and objectives for the Secretary of Agriculture to consider when approving federal research grants.

"I urge the President to sign the bill and ask the Secretary of Agriculture to begin funding precision agriculture research projects in accordance with the new law," said TFI President Gary D. Myers. Increased farmer adoption of site-specific, precision agriculture plays an important role in addressing concerns about water quality, air quality, food quality and climate change. More research and education will help increase farmer adoption.

Precision agriculture technologies and farming systems were first introduced to Members of Congress in the summer of 1995 when TFI and others sponsored a Congressional Precision Agriculture Field Day at the Agriculture Research Service's headquarters in Beltsville, Maryland. The popular success of that event spawned similar field days around the country and federal legislative initiatives in both the House and Senate.

"As principle sponsors and bulldog supporters of the precision ag research legislation, Senators Mitch McConnell (R-KY), Pat Roberts (R-KS) and Representatives Ron Lewis (R-KY), Mike Crapo (R-ID) and many other supporting members of Congress deserve the full credit for passage of this important legislation," Myers said. "The U.S. commercial fertilizer manufacturing, retail service and equipment manufacturing industry looks forward to working with the Department of Agriculture, Land Grant Universities, Extension Service and our farmer customers in researching and adopting emerging technologies for the good of the environment and the farmer's bottom line."

"Precision agriculture has shown to have the potential to save farmers money on input costs, increase yields and productivity, while at the same time be sound agronomically and protect the environment," Myers said. "Congress' action today is a win-win-win initiative for our industry, our customers and our environment."

For a more detailed summary of the precision ag research legislation see www.tfi.org.

Pioneer Researchers Hot On Fumonisin

DES MOINES, Iowa — Researchers at Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. (NYSE: PHB) and CuraGen Corporation (Nasdaq: CRGN) recently announced a promising new discovery that helps eliminate fumonisin residues in corn.

Fumonisin is a toxin produced by a mold that develops in corn under certain conditions and can prove fatal to livestock.

Using technologies related to genomics, Pioneer scientists along with researchers from CuraGen have cloned a gene that works together with another gene to degrade the toxins produced by the mold, making corn grain safer for livestock.

"This is an excellent example of the successful genomics program at Pioneer, said Tony Cavalieri, Pioneer vice president of trait and technology development "We will continue to see our investment in genomics pay off. This fits well with our goal of increasing customer and end user productivity,"

"Our goal is to eliminate the fumonisin in corn tissue as it is produced," said Pioneer research coordinator for disease, Jon Duvick at a recent toxicology forum in Colorado.

Insect damage combined with wet grain and fluctuating temperatures commonly lead to mold growth. While some fungi are harmless, others can produce mycotoxins, which are harmful to certain livestock. One such mycotoxin is fumonisin. This toxin, in particular, can be present in grain without visible signs of moldiness. At certain levels, it may cause a fatal respiratory disease in swine and a fatal brain disease in horses. Unfortunately, fumonisin is difficult to eliminate in corn Flexibility is the key to staying productive. And that's exactly what you'll get with the AGCO® Allis 5650 utility tractor.

The Key To Effective Middle Management.

In fact, this mid-range tractor has a 45 PTO hp engine that offers you the ultimate in maneuverability. Its low height and low center of gravity make this the ideal tractor for working inside buildings and other confined work areas. And because the platform is low to the ground, it's easy to get on and off the tractor.

- The synchromesh transmission has 12 forward and 12 reverse speed choices, with synchonized shifting in four gears and a synchronized forward/reverse shuttle.
- These directional changes help to reduce loader and rear blade cycle times.
- The AWD models feature a true centerline drive shaft for more efficient power transfer and less maintenance.
- As always, behind every AGCO Allis tractor lies a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty that's backed by your dealer.

Zetor's Low Prices Used To Be The Quickest Way For Dealers To Make Sales.

Zetor tractors still pull their own weight after 16 years...twice as long as most American tractors.

And all Zetor tractors come with a two year warranty which underscores its worldwide reputation for building quality tractors that last, and more and more farmers are quick to agree.

But Zetor-Power has taken over as the most important selling point. Zetor's up-to-date engineering and heavy cast iron chassis provide a balanced power-to-weight ratio that means a Zetor tractor does more with less horsepower!

Reel Time Savings to Real Farmers

We feed 100 milk cows and a total of 150 animals with four loads per day at three different locations. We save 1½ - 2 hours of feeding time every day with our Knight Reel Auggie tow.

Russ and Kris Schroeder
Agriprize Holsteins – Horicon, Wisconsin

We feed a total of 140 head with 52 milking. Before our Knight Reel Auggie, feeding a TMR took us 1½ hours twice a day. Now each feeding takes approximately ½ hour.

John and Harry Nooyen
Brabantdale Farms – Navan, Ontario, Canada

We feed about 200 head per day with an average of 100 miling. We owned a 4 auger mixer before. Our Knight Reel Auggie has a shorter mixing time with a superior blended ration.

Wayne and Bradley Beidel
Beidel Brothers – Newburg, Pennsylvania

We mix 5 loads per day to feed 650 head. Our Knight Reel Auggie mixes faster and unloads faster than the auger mixers that we previously owned. Drive through feeding with our tow model has cut our feeding time by two thirds.

Warren and Dave Otto
Otto Farms – Valders, Wisconsin

The 3000 Series KNIGHT Reel Auggie® is available in tow, truck, and stationary models.

Mixing capacities from 147-600 cubic feet.

If I were to build a combine, I'd build one . . .

Your grain doesn't have to take a beating anymore. With GLEANER's exclusive Natural Flow processing cylinder, your crop never changes direction. Giving you higher grain quality and better returns at the elevator. Our unique transverse mounting system moves your crop in a ribbon-like fashion from the concave through the cage. It's never forced to make hard turns. You also get the cleanest grain with our combine. We have the longest cleaning shoe in the industry, 64" inches to be exact. And we've added "cleaning shoe" enhancements, like a 4-degree sloped chaffer and sieve, for even finer cleaning and separation. To find out just how gentle we can be, contact your GLEANER dealer. You'll see that only GLEANER is engineered for better returns.

BUSINESS ◆ NEWS

Hesston Offers New Choices

ATLANTA, Ga. – Producers who use a self-propelled windrower to harvest both hay and small grain will appreciate two of the newest models from Hesston. They include the Model 8110 and the 8110S.

Available with 21-, 25- or 30-foot shiftable draper header, 15-, 18-, 21-foot center delivery draper header, or 14- or 16-foot auger header, the machines are easily adapted to any harvest situation. Both models also feature a 3.9 liter (238 cubic inch) Cummins diesel engine for plenty of power in heavy crops and rolling terrain. The only difference is that the 8110 is naturally aspirated and produces 75 horsepower and the 8110S is turbocharged to produce 96 horsepower.

To put that power to the ground the 8110 and 8110S feature a high-capacity tandem hydraulic pump connected to high torque, fixed displacement motors on the drive wheels. A ground speed control mechanism, which is standard on the 8110S and optional on the 8110, further reduces the effort required to move the ground speed control level and to maintain its position in uneven terrain.

The 8110 and 8110S features a high-capacity tandem hydraulic pump connected to high torque, fixed displacement motors on the drive wheels.

The header is powered by dual pumps for hydraulic draper drive and hydraulic reel drive. Each system has its own pump to keep the draper and reel from slowing down or stalling in heavy conditions.

Compared to the Model 8100 they replace, the 8110 and 8110S also features larger tires for reduced compaction and an improved ride. Another difference is the new engine compartment panels that provide better access to the engine and radiator. Both side panel shields swing upward, while the rear shield swings open for access of the back of the windrower.

Tire Features Greater Traction, Power Transfer

GREENVILLE, S.C.– Featuring greater section width and lug surface than standard section tires, the new low profile, low pressure BFGoodrich brand® Power Radial™ 70 from Michelin North America Inc. increases traction capabilities and reduces soil compaction.

Due to its low profile and large contact patch, the Power Radial 70 delivers an excellent transfer of horsepower on today's more powerful machines. As a result, it yields greater traction and less slippage to deliver improved fuel economy and lower costs per acre. The tire's low air pressure design promotes low levels of soil compaction which enhance crop health and increase productivity.

The Power Radial 70 offers an exceptional ride due to its flexible sidewalls. Special Continuous Cleaning Contours™ between lugs offer superb self-cleaning of the tire, even in soft soils, for maximum traction and stability. A special rim flange protector prevents dirt and debris from penetrating between the bead and rim for greater endurance. The Power Radial 70 eliminates changeover costs since it can be mounted on the same rim as a standard 80 series tire

Grain Belt Heads Boost Combine Threshing Capacity

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) – New Model 994 grain belt heads for New Holland TR™ and TX™ combines let growers match their combines' superior threshing capacity in any crop condition, said Product Manger Gary Wojcik.

The new draper headers are available in 25-, 30-, 36-, 39-, and 42-foot widths. Users report the 994's uniform crop flow and positive feeding substantially increase overall per-hour threshing capacity.

Model 994 draper belts deliver the crop to the combine feeder house heads-first to boost effective threshing capacity. Bat or tine reels with optional fore-aft adjustment provide positive crop flow across the sickle to the draper belts.

A self-contained hydraulic system drives the sickles and draper belts Flow control and divider valves permit draper belt speed adjustment. Pressure gauges permit hydraulic performance monitoring from the cab.

A deck shift option allows use as a swather to windrow crops. Wojcik noted this allows the unit to substitute for a large capacity SP grain windrower with the combine serving as the power unit for growers who desire maximum flexibility. Integral transport wheels and towing hitch eliminate the need for trailers.

New Options For Herbicide

ST. LOUIS, Mo – Monsanto recently received approval from the Environmental Protection Agency to expand the use of Roundup Ultra™ herbicide in Roundup Ready® soybeans.

The new label guidelines expand the timing for Roundup Ultra use and clarify rate recommendations," said Jerry Flint, Monsanto Roundup Ready technical manager. "These new guidelines reflect research results and the experiences of thousands of Roundup Ready soybean growers over the last two years.

In-crop applications of Roundup Ultra can now be made to Roundup Ready soybeans from cracking throughout flowering. The maximum rate of Roundup Ultra has been increased to 96 ounces per acre in-crop, with a maximum of 64 ounces per acre for any single application

Monsanto has also adjusted treatment recommendations for annual control of labeled weeds in Roundup Ready soybeans, noted Flint. "The new recommendations are based on growers' experience with different weed pressures in different parts of the country. They are designed to meet growers expectation for weed control in Roundup Ready soybeans and improve the Roundup Ready system's already outstanding value.

The following are general guidelines; the label also has recommendations for specific annual and perennial weed problems. Growers should always read and follow label directions:

Midwest and Mid-Atlantic Regions

•Use a single application of Roundup Ultra at 32 ounces per acre when annual weeds are 4 inches to 8 inches high. If weeds reach 8 inches to 18 inches increase the rate of Roundup Ultra to 48 ounces per acre.

• In wide-row soybeans, of if canopy closure is delayed or slow, late weed flushes may require sequential applications of Roundup Ultra Recommended rates are: 16 ounces per acre if weeds are 1 inch to 3 inches high, 24 ounces per acre if weeds are 3 inches to 6 inches high, and 32 ounces if weeds are 6 inches to 12 inches high.

• The total amount of Roundup Ultra applied in-crop must not exceed 96 ounces per acre.

Weather Pattern Calls For Improved Tillage Strategy

BRILLION, Wis. – It seems that whatever the problem is lately, the cause is the same. El Niño.

Unusual cold spells, unusual warm spells, too much snow, not enough snow, deer population explosions, and even a stock market plunge all get blamed on El Niño.

But what exactly is El Niño and how does it effect crop producers?

El Niño is a periodic weather phenomenon caused by temperature changes in the Pacific Ocean. This event occurs every two to seven years when westward-blowing trade winds subside, allowing warm water to move eastward across the Pacific, disrupting the natural up-welling cool, nutrient-rich water from deep in the ocean. As a result, fish die, winds change course, and climates change across the globe.

"In El Niño years, cloddy seedbeds can be a problem, so seedbed preparation is even more critical than ever, "Said Gary Wallander, technical service specialist for Brillion Iron Works Inc., Brillion, Wis. "Consistent seed-to-soil contact is one of the most important factors in assuring uniform germination. "And the quality of your seedbed preparation is the most important factor influencing seed-to-soil contact."

Within El Niño years, cloddy seedbeds become a problem. A pulverizer can break up clods, level the field, and improve seed germination.

A tillage system that includes a modern high clearance field cultivator and a pulverizer, can improve soil conditions by leaving adequate residue to conserve soil moistures, break up clods, level the field, and firm up the soil to provide good seed-to-soil contact. The firm seedbed also increases capillary action, which draws soil moisture up from deep in the soil profile

"A kit of people who quit using pulverizers are now seeing the benefits again," noted Wallander. "In fact, many seed company representatives report that the seed often gets blamed for spotty germination, when the true cause is poor seed-to-soil contact.

"It's time to get back to what Mother Nature tells us," said Wallander. "You need good seed-to-soil contact to make seeds germinate. And nothing provides this seed-to-soil contact in all conditions better than Brillion's Commander System."

ROARING SPRING (Blair Co.) – Renaissance Nutrition, Inc. headquartered here, has announced the opening of its new warehouse and production facility, in Roaring Spring.

We are confident in the future of dairy and livestock agriculture. The new facility shows our dedication to our distributors, customers, and the industry.

"Various locations were considered for the new operation. When current and future business opportunities, availability of raw materials, and highway and railway access were considered, Roaring Spring proved to be the ideal site

Claas Offers Cutting System On Four Different Balers

COLUMBUS, Ind – Claas of American has introduced the latest innovation in baler efficiency aimed at improved economics of operation and easier product handling, the Roto Cut™ cutting system.

The system is designed to cut the material being baled so the bale is pre-processed for feeding or bedding.

The Roto Cut cutting system features a heavy-duty helical rotor which provides even feeding of the material through the knives. The cutting knives are spaced to provide a theoretical cut length of 2-3/4 inch and are spring-loaded for protection against foreign material. The knives can be engaged and disengaged by operating a switch on the cab-mounted control box.

Claas offers the Roto Cut system on their Rollant™ 46 fixed chamber and Variant 180 variable chamber round balers, the Quadrant™ 1150 mid-size, and Quadrant™ 1200 large square balers.

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21ST CENTURY?

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

PERFECT BALES EVERY TIME

All New Holland Roll-Belt™ balers feature a variable chamber, so you can adjust bale diameter to suit your needs. Competitive fixed chamber balers don't give you this option.

The Model 644 makes bales measuring 4' wide, up to 5' in diameter and weighing up to 1,000 lb.• Also available as Silage Special baler for high protein silage bales weighing up to 1,300 lbs.*

* Depending on crop and moisture content.

HAY EASON AVINGS

That's right – make hay for a full season without paying! Just make a deal on a new pull-type mower-conditioner, baler*, forage harvester, or other New Holland pull-type hay and forage equipment before August 31st and take advantage of these special sales incentives.

- No interest 'til June 1, 1999
- Low APR Financing

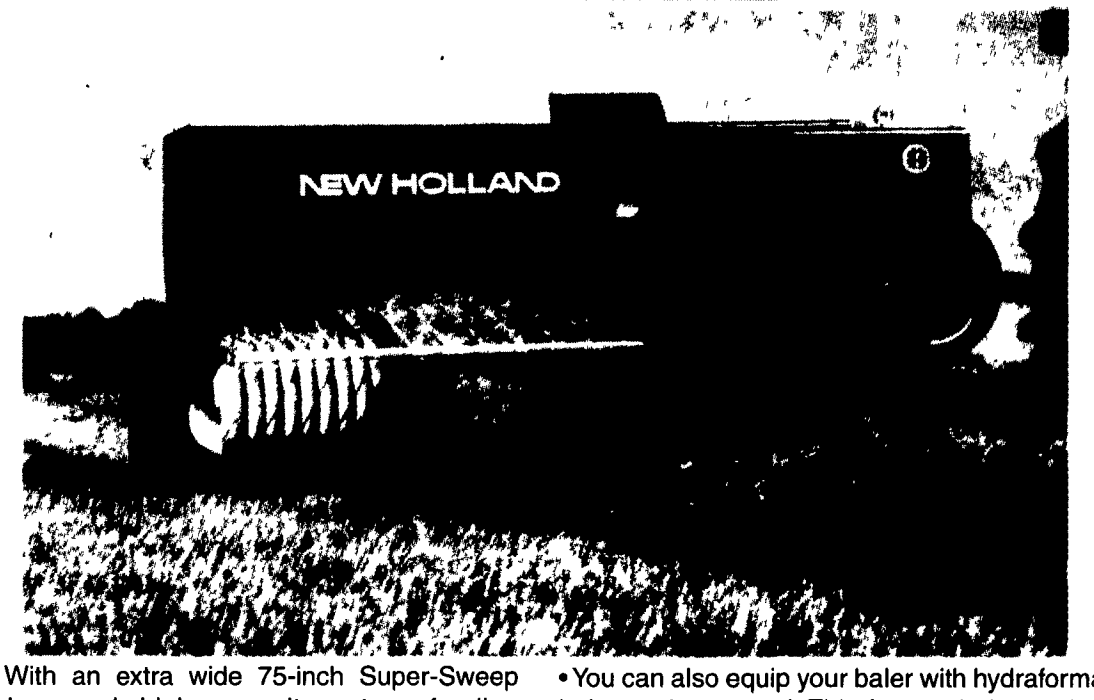
See your New Holland dealer NOW for details!

 Excludes Models 590 and 595 Square Balers.*

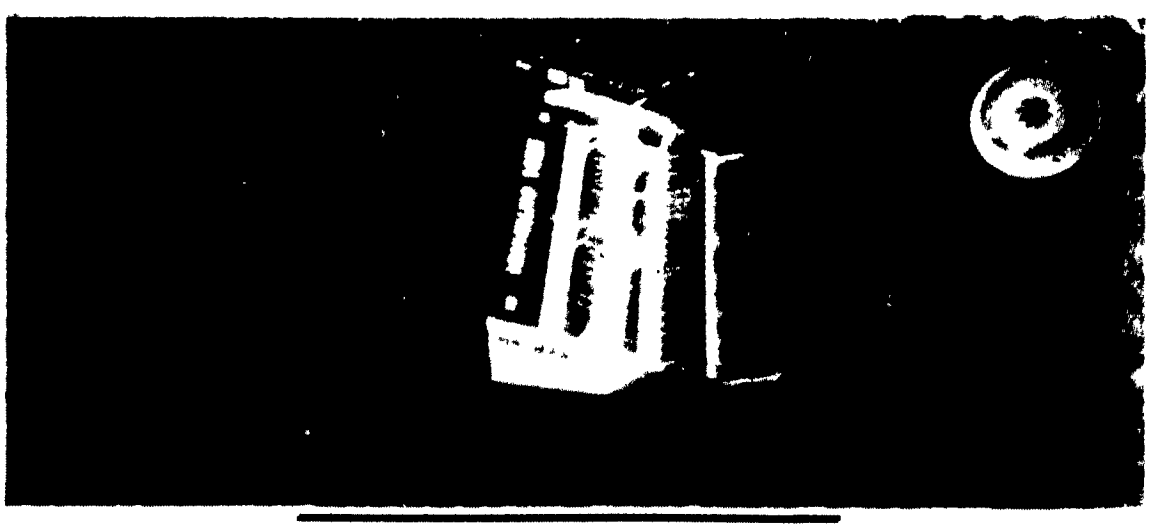
Financing available to qualified buyers through New Holland Credit Company, LLC. Based on a retail contract date of July 15, 1998 with a Suggested List Price on a NH 565SQ110501 Square Baler of $13,928.00. Buyer provides a $2,785.60 down payment and finances the balance of $11,142.40 at 10.25% APR. There will be 36 equal monthly payments of $360.85, payments beginning July 1, 1999. The total amount paid is $15,776.20 which includes finance charges of $1,848.20. On or before June 1, 1999, Buyer has the option to pre-pay the contract in full, incurring no finance charges. Customer's down payment will vary depending on list price of unit.*



With an extra wide 75-inch Super-Sweep pickup and high capacity rotary feeding system, the Model 575 handles bigger, wider windrows. It's the top performer in its class for big haying operations and custom operations.

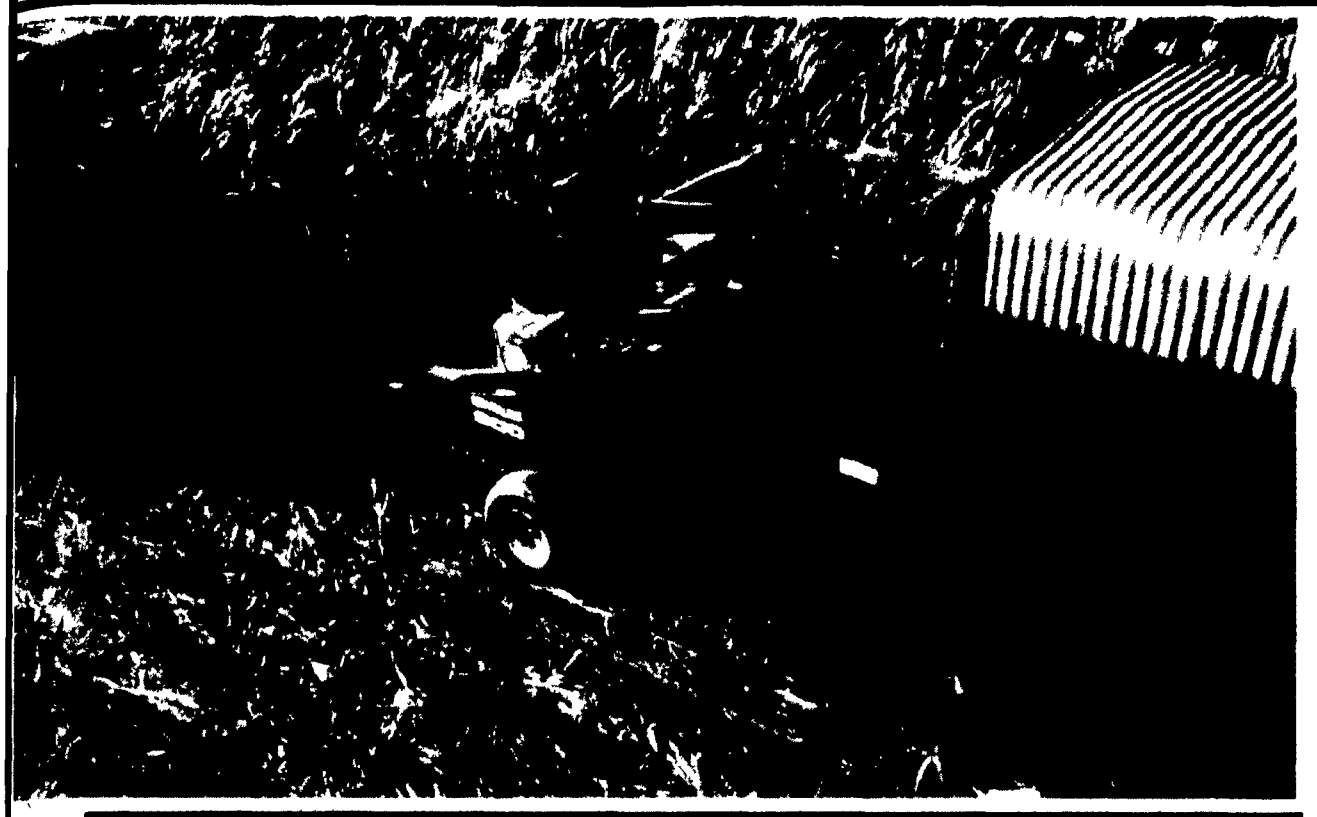
• Bale tension doors make it easy to change bale density at the bale case.

• You can also equip your baler with hydraformatic bale tension control. This feature helps maintain uniform bale density in varying crop conditions.



QUALITY HAY

Stop in and take a look at the industry standard for making quality hay – New Holland Haybine® mower-conditioners. They're reliable, easy to adjust and provide plug-free cutting and conditioning – cutting after cutting.

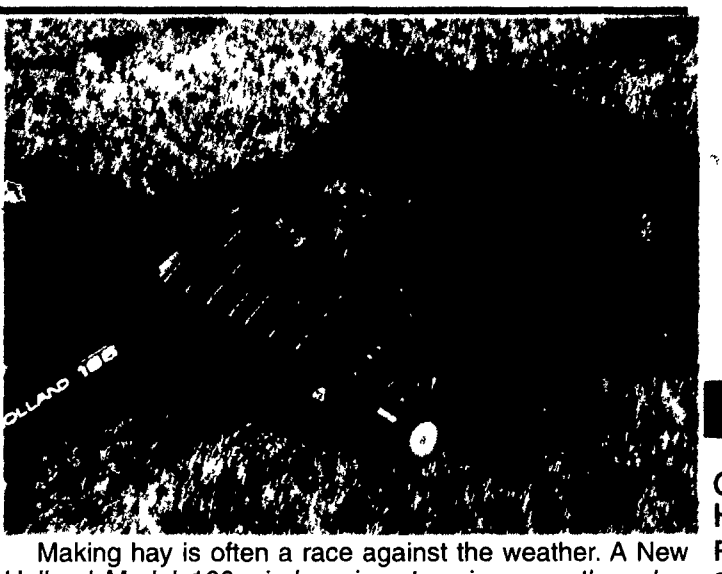


DESIGNED FOR TOTAL PERFORMANCE

The superior design and greater flexibility of the New Holland Model 900 put you in control. This forage harvester is designed to meet the needs of big-crop producers. You get capacity, reliability and efficiency.

- The massive 21 inch cutterhead uses hardened alloy knives with tungsten edges for a uniform chop.
- Under-knife baffles reduce crop carry-over and increase chopping capacity.
- Exclusive flip-up feedrolls let you inspect the shearbar and smooth roll scraper.
- The electric clutch provides immediate response and positive control of reversing gearbox.

FASTER DRYING



When you're ready to make hay, you may face a race against bad weather. A New Holland tedder helps improve your odds. Tedding "fluffs" your crop by distributing it evenly to speed drying. Air flows through it, not just over it, so you can bale sooner – before it rains.

The Model 163 tedder features four rotors to cover an expanded 16'5" width, yet folds to a width of 9'6" to maneuver easily through gates or narrow roadways.

Making hay is often a race against the weather. A New Holland Model 166 windrow inverter gives you the edge you need to dry hay fast - before a storm hits. The Model 166 gently lifts, fluffs and turns windrows without roughing up the hay. Keeping more of the protein-rich leaves intact means you put higher quality hay into the bale or silo.

Fast recovery after the storm

If a storm does hit without warning and your field is wet, use the Model 166 to quickly move windrows onto dry ground. As the windrows are moved, they are fluffed and turned, allowing air to circulate through the hay exposing the wet underside to the sun and wind to speed drying time.

WHAT MAKES YOU SO TOUGH?

With the New Holland Model Lx665 Super Boom™ skid-steer loader, the answer is simple: everything. The "Lx665" is designed for the best durability, reliability and performance.

The "Lx665" has 50 turbocharged horses and a 1,700 pound operating load. And, with the Pick Up 'n Go™ universal attachment system, you can really get hooked on this machine.

So stop in today to see what makes the "Lx665" so tough.

PURINA DAIRY HERD PROFILE

1000 LB INCREASE

At Zim-Lea Holstein Farm located west of Schaefferstown in Lebanon County, John and Laurene Zimmerman like to farm and they like high-producing cows. This is evident in the well kept farmstead you see as you drive in the lane.

The Zimmermans have 80 Holstein cows that have a rolling herd average of more than 25,000 pounds of milk. Individual cows milk up to 150 pound per day with 15 or more cows producing more than 100 pounds of milk at any given time. Individual records go up to 33,000m. They milk 2x in a conventional tiestall barn with no BST. In their feeding program they top-dress with Purina's 24 Super EXT and use a 40 percent concentrate to custom-balance their TMR mix of haylage, silage, beans, and high moisture corn

The Zimmermans like how the cows are producing under Purina's feeding program. "Before we switched to Purina feeds, I knew there was more milk to get out of our herd, but we didn't seem to be able to get it," John said. "I like dealing with a close-by mill and we have been buying small things from K&K Feeds in Richland. So it was natural to give them all our feed business."

The Zimmermans have been feeding Purina feeds for eight years.

"After we began feeding Purina we saw a 1,000-pound increase in the bulk tank within several weeks," John said. "They recommended a high use of home-grown roughage so we buy only the short feed we need. The Purina representatives like Duane Nolt and Ken Reeder are such nice people to work with too. We depend on them to formulate our feeding rations and help us with herd health."

A large number of cows in the herd are 2-year-olds. Many of these young heifers freshen at 1-10y to 1-11y. One of these heifers just finished her first record of 1-10y 328d 25,687m 1,106f 860p. Herd health is good. The calving interval average is 12.6 and they have minimal calving problems.

"Purina feeds and feeding programs help keep costs down because they stress a high forage diet," John said. "Now we buy Purina feeds for all our dairy animals from calves to dry cows in the milking herd – even down to our dog's chow. That's why we can recommend Purina to other

Duane Nolt, K&K Feed, Inc., Richland, provides the feed formulas for the Zim-Lea Holstein herd.

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Forty years ago in this country, Holstein cows weren't the primary producers of milk that they are today.

In addition to Holsteins (and in almost equal numbers) at least five other European dairy breeds produced milk for commercial sale, including Ayrshires, Brown Swiss, Guernseys, Jerseys, and Milking Shorthorn.

European dairy farmers have many more dairy breeds than these six, particularly Simmental. None of these breeds have ever played a role in the U.S. dairy industry, not to mention dairy sheep and dairy goats, although the latter have increased in importance in the last 20 years.

European dairy breeds have been the milk producing leaders; for this reason, they have been exported for crossbreeding around the world.

Because the Holstein cow, for various reasons, is predominant in the United States today, we think less about physiological differences of the different breeds, even in research.

Yet when travelling through Florida, I witnessed many Holstein herds with a large component of Jersey cows. Why?

People familiar with older physiological research conducted in temperature controlled chambers at the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station will recall that some cow breeds differ in heat tolerance.

For example, the Jersey cow, although smaller than the Holstein, has a larger body surface area relative to her bodyweight, so she can get rid of more body heat when necessary. This explains, in part, why Jerseys are mixed in with Florida Holstein herds, as well as why there aren't nearly as many Jerseys in the northern United States.

I recall a discussion years ago at UD's Farm and Field Day, to which I had invited the famous Dr. F.B. Morrison from Cornell University to speak. He stated emphatically that Brown Swiss cows were much better suited than Holsteins (a big push then) for export to hot and humid places — Venezuela, for example — because Brown Swiss were more tolerant of heat.

It stands to reason, Holsteins and Brown Swiss have different zoological ancestors and origin.

The theory is that Brown Swiss were related to Zebu cows of India before migrating west to Europe thousands of years ago. And Zebus are more heat-tolerant than European cows.

However, discussion about breeds has been limited in recent years — until now.

I found an interesting new study from the University of Arizona. It's not there most of the time for any cow, European or Indian.

The researchers are interested in lowering heat loads of cows as they do in Florida, not only to let panting cows suffer less, but more significantly, because people in Arizona want to buy their own fresh milk, not milk powder or evaporated milk. And they don't want milk shipped in from Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey or Maryland.

The dairy farmers milking cows under such hot conditions have to survive financially. This means non-suffering cows that will eat better, produce more milk and reproduce more normally. But how can dairy farmers ensure that cows suffer less under hot conditions?

Inventing ever-better cooling systems for cows has been one solution for the hot conditions in Florida and Arizona.

It used to be that shade trees or shading structures were recommended until the cows indicated that was not good enough. Thus, fans were added to cool cows — still not good enough — and overhead water sprinklers to soak cows were added to the fans and the shade to make a difference for the suffering cows.

Yet, this new Arizona study adds one more factor — genetic differences of cows, or different breeds.

I looked up some older research conducted by Florida workers in Central America, covering almost 3,000 lactations in 19 herds with six different breeds and crossbreds including Holsteins and Brown Swiss.

The data indicated that Brown Swiss were less sensitive than Holsteins to heat stress as evidenced by their milk records.

Crossbreds with 50 percent Holstein blood averaged 5,661 pounds milk/year, compared to 50 percent Brown Swiss with 6,219 pounds milk (for 385 and 145 records, respectively) under typical Central American feeding and management conditions; 88 percent Holstein crossbreds had 5,837 pounds milk versus 88 percent Brown Swiss, making with 78,643 pounds of milk. (Results based on 107 and 89 records, respectively.)

Given this, the new Arizona research wanted to find out how Holsteins, Brown Swiss and Jerseys react physiologically under either just shade, fans or water-cooling management on hot Arizona days.

Clearly, only the water-cooling system prevented the cows from suffering elevated body temperatures (101 degrees Fahrenheit) while cows with fans or under shade had 102 and 103 degrees, respectively. Here in Delaware we have recorded similar data in our UD herd.

The Arizona cows under the water-cooling system also had the lowest respiration rates at 40 to 56 breaths/minute, while the cows under fans had 63 to 70 breaths and the shade-only cows 66 to 85 breaths/minute.

Brown Swiss had the highest rate of skin evaporation. The skin temperature of Brown Swiss was cooler than that of the other breeds under any cooling management system. Respiration rates were less for Brown Swiss under the water-cooling system.

Jerseys had the lowest respiration rates under the shade-only system, probably because they had the largest relative skin surface area, giving them an advantage over the other breeds for heat loss when no fan or water cooling was available.

When cows were exposed to direct sunlight, Holsteins absorbed 89 percent of that solar heat load, 11 percent was reflected, while Brown Swiss absorbed 81 percent and reflected 19 percent. Add to this the metabolic heat production and subtract the energy given up through skin and breathing evaporation, these cows can suffer a body temperature rise of 2 degrees Fahrenheit in only 20 minutes.

Even under cooling systems, it may take more than an hour to return to normal body temperature. It is understandable why then cows do not want to eat, to save themselves from more metabolic heat production.

Dairy farmers who understand these physiological and genetic studies not only can help their cows, but improve their bottom line as well.

Penn State's Plant Doctors Return To Ag Progress Days

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co) — Do those strange rings on your lawn have you stumped? Angry at those bugs eating your flowering trees?

The answers to your landscape problems can be found in the Landscape, Lawn and Garden Tent at Penn State's Ag Progress Days, August 18-20 Visitors can get advice on horticulture, plant pathology, turfgrass and entomology in one convenient location, according to Gregory Hoover, extension entomologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences

"This exhibit will help homeowners and landscapers diagnose problems on their woody landscape plants," he explains "Once they've accurately diagnosed the problem, they can effectively manage the pest or even take measures to correct a cultural problem at the site "

Visitors and hobbyists are also encouraged to bring samples of turf, plants or insects to receive an on-the-spot evaluation If the experts can't solve the problem immediately, they will examine it further in a lab at Penn State's University Park campus and contact the gardener with their diagnosis and management suggestions

Examples of infested plant material as well as cultural problems that affect the health of woody plants will be a part of this educational display

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstrations. It is held at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rock Springs, nine miles southwest of State College on Route 45 Hours are 9 a m. to 5 p.m Tuesday and Thursday, with extended hours of 9 a m to 8 p m on Wednesday Admission and parking are free

Southwestern PA Holstein Show Continues Growth

DAVID HIEBERT
Westmoreland Correspondent

DUNBAR (Fayette Co.) — The South West Pa., Holstein show took one step forward toward new heights in its exhibition here on Saturday August 1 The show continued its numerical growth, attracting 105 entrants from the 7 counties which are part of the Southwestern region. Though technically possible to cross the lines, few entries came from outside the region.

A strong showing with 12 entries in the Winter (Int) Calf Class promise this area will continue to grow. The experience gained by the youngsters in this show will keep the competition keen for many years

The family involvement by the Allen Hill dairy shows how seriously this competition is taken The family showed 14 animals, winning the premiere breeder and Premier exhibitor banners

Announcer Oren Bender, Accident, MD kept the audience, including youth show sponsor Dr Albert Barnett, involved with the action in the ring. Ringman Peter Hamming kept things tidy and the process moving.

Judge Creeding Cornman, Carlisle, PA said he's been involved with Holsteins all his life. Following the judge's decisions, dairy princes from three counties helped in presenting ribbons, rosettes, quality teeshirts and merchandise to the winners. Representing the region were Beckie Ruffner, Armstrong county dairy princess, Jane Ansel, Fayette county dairy princess, and Missy Powell, Somerset county dairy princess.

The Southwestern Pennsylvania Holstein region includes Armstrong, Butler, Fayette, Lawrence, Somerset, Washington and Westmoreland counties. Points accumulated in this show accumulate and help determining winners at the Pennsylvania state and US Holstein shows

Pennsylvania Holstein Association executive director Kenneth I Raney credited the show committee chair Rick Allen and the ten members of his committee with good organization, including arranging for the show sponsors.

Ohio Junior Walks Wins $2,427 In Jersey Pot O'Gold Contest

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Imagine going to a cattle auction, buying a yearling heifer, then three years later pocketing a check for about $2,400 in a contest based upon her first lactation.

That's exactly what Andrew Bok, a 10-year-old 4-H'er from Defiance, Ohio, has done with his heifer, "Vera," in the 1998 Pot O'Gold Production Contest sponsored by the American Jersey Cattle Association of Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

Andrew is the winner of the 1998 Pot O'Gold Production Contest.

Twenty-two heifers sold in two Pot O'Gold sales in 1995 were eligible for this event. First-calf lactation records for each entry were standardized, the dollar value was calculated using Federal Order 33 multiple component pricing (MCP), and then ranked. The owners of the 12 highest producing animals split an award purse totalling $8,670.

In 1995, Andrew purchased Pine Valley Glenwood B Vera from Pine Valley Dairy Inc., Lakeland, Fla., for $2,600.

"Vera" was sired by a highly proven Jersey bull, Duncan Duke of Glenwood, PTI +270. Her dam was an Excellent daughter of Molly Brook Brass Major, PTI +279, with two lactations averaging 15,528-622-544 m.e.

As this year's contest winner, Andrew receives $2,427.60. His heifer calved at two years and three months of age, and 305 days produced 25,310 lbs. milk, 1,215 lbs. fat, and 876 lbs. protein. Her standardized record was 29,613—1,409—1,016 m.e., and the MCP dollar value of the record was $4,466.95.

Derrick L. Josi, from Tillamook, Oregon, is the second place winner and receives $1,473.90. He purchased Rebob Berretta Bionca, a daughter of Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta, PTI +413, from Rebob Farm Inc., Tillamook.

Derrick paid $1,600 for "Bionca" in the 1995 Western Pot O'Gold Sale.

"Bionca" calved at one year and 11 months of age, and in 305 days produced 19,940 lbs. milk, 1,063 lbs. fat, and 705 lbs. protein. This was standardized to 25,324—1,339—886 me. The MCP value for this lactation was $4,023.88.

The third place winner is Mollie Jensen from Turlock, Calif. She purchased Berretta Commander S9291 from Yosemite Jersey Dairy, in Hilmar, CA, for $2,100. She receives $867 for her animal's winning lactation.

"S9291" was sired by Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta. She calved at two years and two months of age and produced 19,640 lbs. milk, 889 lbs. fat, and 780 lbs. protein, which was standardized to 24,943—1,102—967 m.e.

Cutting-Edge Research Featured At Ag Progress Days

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co) — Hairy alfalfa, living mulch and "bug maps" are among the cutting-edge research projects that will be highlighted in guided tours of the Russell E Larson Agricultural Research Center during Penn State's Ag Progress Days, August 18-20

The free 30-minute bus tours, which leave every 20 minutes throughout each day, will take visitors through Penn State's horticulture, plant pathology, agronomy and entomology research farms, as well as the USDA Pasture Systems and Watershed Management Laboratory research farm

On the horticulture farm, visitors will see an experimental orchard where apple trees are growing on wires, trellises and poles The Penn State Low Hedgerow Trellis System is part of an effort to grow smaller dwarf and semi-dwarf trees, which can eliminate the need for large equipment, make labor more efficient and reduce the amount of pesticides needed to protect the crop

Other horticulture projects include a study comparing the effects of red, black and silver plastic mulches on potato and onion production, research to adapt the tropical Savory Pepper to growing conditions in the Northeast, and variety trials for sweet corn, tomatoes, peppers and eggplant

On the plant pathology farm, the tour will feature studies aimed at helping growers eliminate, manage or reduce crop damage from diseases Several experiments are under way to combat the destructive late blight fungus This disease, which attacks potatoes and tomatoes, has cost Pennsylvania growers millions of dollars in crop losses in recent years.

The agronomy farm portion of the tour will feature research on the use of crownvetch and other legumes as a "living mulch" in corn and soybean crops Scientists have found that these legumes can provide ground cover and reduce soil erosion, as well as provide nitrogen to the main crop, potentially reducing the need to apply fertilizer.

Other agronomy research focuses on breeding and management trials for a variety of crops, including corn, soybeans, alfalfa, wheat, barley and forage grasses. Visitors also will see a study on how various tillage systems affect runoff and research on how different crop rotations influence corn yield.

At the USDA Pasture Lab, the tour will include research on clover varieties that are resistant to clover root curculio, an insect pest of clover and alfalfa; and studies to improve the establishment and management of switchgrass, a warm-season grass that can be used for livestock grazing and for wildlife habitat.

A project to evaluate alfalfa varieties for Colorado potato beetle resistance will highlight entomology research on the tour Some of these new varieties have small glandular hairs that may prevent the insect from feeding or laying eggs on the plant

Other entomology studies discussed on the tour will include research on the use of global positioning sattelites and related technology to monitor pest and beneficial insect populations By mapping insect "hot spots" and spraying only those areas of the field, scientists hope to reduce the amount of insecticides needed to control crop damage.

Penn State's Ag Progress Days features more than 500 acres of educational and commercial exhibits, tours and machinery demonstrations. Animal Greenhouse Highlights Livestock Exhibits At Ag Progress Days

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The barn of the future may note a big, wooden structure with weather vane. You can see the shape of farm buildings to come at Penn State's Ag Progress Days August 18-20.

The Animal Sciences Facility will showcase the latest trend in animal agriculture: "greenhouses," constructed with modern building materials, that serve as low-cost and surprisingly sturdy farm buildings, says David Wolfgang, veterinary science researcher in Penns State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"A big concern in animal agriculture today is raising products cost-effectively," Wolfgang explains. "The Animal Sciences Facility demonstrates one of the cost-cutting innovations in animal shelters

"With this type of facility, today's barn could be just metal tubes for the frame with plastic sheeting for walls. The sides roll up for ventilation, and solar protection is built right into the plastic. The resulting structure can be built at a substantial reduction in initial cost compared to a standard barn, and plastic walls are projected to last seven to 10 years They have been effective even in northern climates."

The exhibit, which is a joint effort between Penn State's Departments of Dairy and Animal Science and Veterinary Science, will include an animal diagnostic lab display, a cattle breeding database, a meat irradiation and food safety display, and the latest Penn State research on induced dairy lactation.

Several other animal-related displays will be featured in the Dairy and Livestock Tents Team Dairy, a service offered by Penn State Cooperative Extension specialists, University faculty and industry representatives, will unveil four newly educational program areas to help Pennsylvania dairy producers thrive in the changing agribusiness environment

The four new program areas include Systematic Dairy Business Growth, Specialization Identifying Opportunities and Transition From Dairying.

Information also will be available on other Team Dairy services, including the Dairy Farm Business Summary and the Dairy Management and Profitability (Dairy MAP, programs, and the Nutrient Management Educational program.

Other presentations will include the Dairy Advisory Teams, comprised of agribusiness representatives who work with 30 dairy farm families to develop and achieve a set of goals; the Dairy Heifer Growth display, which will highlight the results of current research in heifer rearing techniques; and the Dairy Grazing display, which will feature pasture, feeding and supplementation strategies for high-producing cows.

The Ag Progress Days Youth Skillathon and Lamb Show will be held on August 19 at the Junior Livestock Exhibition Tent. The Skillathon will allow all Pennsylvania 4-H and Future Farmers of America (FFA) members with lamb projects to demonstrate their knowledge of lamb production, nutrition, quality assurance and meats in a quiz format Participants also will take part in a lamb show and will be judged independently on showmanship in the competition Top finishers in the skillathon and lamb show will be awarded cash premiums Winners of each age group of the Overall Outstanding Youth Awards will be presented savings bonds, according to William Henning, associate professor of dairy and animal science.

"The event will introduce a new concept in livestock shows, with more emphasis on the knowledge and ability of the exhibitor, and less on the live animal," Henning explains. "The skillathon and show will take much of the pressure off young exhibitors to buy expensive animals in order to have a chance to 'win.' This will be an outstanding educational event for youth and an opportunity for training of agents, teachers and leaders involved with such projects."

The deadline for Skillathon and Lamb Show applications was August 10. For more information, contact Henning at (814) 863-3670.

More Than 500 Research Plots At Ohio Horticulture Field Night

HILLSBORO, Ohio — Have you ever seen an heirloom tomato or a virus-resistant pumpkin? These are the latest in specialty crops making their niche in Ohio agriculture, and they will be on display at Horticulture Field Night, Monday, Aug. 17, 6 p.m. to dark.

Horticulture Field Night will be held at the main campus of the Southern State Community College, 200 Hobart Drive, Rt. 62 north of Hillsboro. More than 500 fruit and vegetable research and demonstration plots and 15 different research projects will be on display

Brad Bergefurd, horticultural agent for Ohio State University Extension at the Enterprise Center for Economic Development, said current growers or those considering growing and marketing specialty vegetable crops should attend the event "If you're a farmer looking for ways to diversify your current farming operation, Horticulture Field Night will be beneficial."

Bergefurd said the highlight of Field Night is usually the wagon tour Visitors are carried through field where more than 500 fruit and vegetable research and demonstration plots can be viewed Several state and regional Ohio State specialists will be on hand to update growers on current problems, new techniques and research projects that will impact their operations Growers may ask questions or advice for problems they are currently experiencing on their own operations

Visitors will also receive information and watch a video of the new, one-of-a-kind, mechanical pepper harvester for processing peppers. The equipment was designed and is currently used in Texas pepper fields. The machine's manufacturer will be available for a question/answer session via a group conference call. Bergefurd is in the process of arranging a growers' tour to view the machine in operation at its Texas location.

Another feature of Horticulture Field Night is the TOM-CAST disease forecasting system. It's used to track weather conditions that may cause fungal disease development in Ohio's tomato crop. The Hillsboro site was one of the first places in Ohio to test this system on fresh market tomatoes about four years ago. The system allows for reduced fungicide use, residues and can lower production costs for tomato growers How? By following weather conditions, farmers know exactly when to apply necessary fungicides, reducing excess usage.

"The CR-10 is a computerized system which monitors leaf wetness and temperature within the field," Bergefurd said "These reading are then calculated to come up with a Disease Severity Value (DSV) threshold Growers use this information to determine when to apply fungicide applications to their tomato crop "

The CR-10 is being compared to a system called Skybit. It uses satellite technology to gather the same information as the CR-10 units "We're currently comparing these systems, because if they are similar in their results, a grower could subscribe to the Skybit system on a season basis," Bergefurd said. Growers who wish to purchase CR-10 units may spend several thousand dollars, according to Bergefurd.

Visitors at the event will see bacterial spot-resistant pepper evaluations, ornamental corn germplasm plots, oriental crops production and marketing ideas, red and green cabbage evaluations, watermelon and eastern muskmelon cultivar trials, and pumpkin disease prevention techniques. There will also be Internet and Web page demonstrations.

Bergefurd said a new line of specialty crop equipment will be on display as well. Visitors will see a newly constructed sprayer used for staked tomatoes, a plastic mulch layer and lifter, raised bed shaper, mechanical transplanter and punch planter for planting crops through plastic mulch. A water wheel setter for setting plants into plastic mulch will be visible, in addition to a Porterway mechanical vegetable harvester, potato harvester and the newly constructed greenhouse.

Horticulture Field Night is free and open to the public. Supper will be served. The event is sponsored by the OSU Extension Enterprise Center and Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

For more information, contact Brad Bergefurd, (800) 860-7232.

Producers Strive To Identify Predictable Genetics

SUNRISE BEACH, Mo. – Regardless of the breed of cattle, all producers strive to produce the best beef product possible.

A group of Angus producers from throughout the United States have joined together forming the Angus Sire Alliance, which uses every tool available, including ultrasound data, to help identify the most profitable and predictable genes in the Angus breed.

Angus Sire Alliance members submit one bull to participate. The sire is then bred to 100 commercial Angus cows through artificial insemination and natural exposure. Data is then collected on the steer progeny when they reach 14-15 months of age. This data will be used in determining the top sire.

The first set of Sire Alliance steers, which consisted of 700 steers sired by 20 bulls, went to the feedlot on Jan. 20 with projected slaughter dates in late April or early May.

"Four to six weeks before the projected slaughter dates, ultrasound measurements are recorded to determine rib-eye scores, degree of marbling and fat thickness to identify which contemporary groups will be ready to slaughter. This procedure is a measuring stick to see where the calves are. These measurements will be compared to the data collected on the slaughter dates," said Michael Montoya of Broken Lance Ranch in Bucyrus, Kan., a member of the Alliance.

The Angus Sire Alliance will have a positive impact on the beef cattle industry, according to Montoya.

"The Angus Sire Alliance will improve the quality of beef and increase the degree of marbling in animals. It also will help producers identify the most efficient and more profitable genetics for commercial producers throughout the country," said Montoya.

The Angus Sire Alliance is an ongoing research program, covering every segment of the beef cattle industry from conception to the consumer.

New Cluster Free Stalls

Cluster Free Stalls are easily installed in new or remodeled barns. The free stalls "hanging" from barn rafters provide many advantages to help keep cows safe and healthy. By using suspended free stalls, cows are less likely to obtain bruises. Thus all their energy can be concentrated towards increased milk production. The design of the stall allows it to swing up, down or back out of the way of the cow. Because they swing freely, the stalls can withstand the force of animal contact. And because they are powder coated, they require little maintenance.

Across-Breed EPD Table Provided

CLAY CENTER, Neb. — The table of adjustment factors to estimate across-breed expected progeny differences (AB-EPDs) for 12 breeds was presented to the Genetic Prediction Committee at the Beef Improvement Federation Annual Meeting in Calgary, Alberta, Canada July 2.

Animals of different breeds can be compared on the same EPD scale, after adding the appropriate adjustment factor to expected progeny differences (EPDs) produced in the most recent genetic evaluations for each of the 12 breeds.

For example, if a Simmental bull has an EPD for weaning weight of +25.0 and a Hereford bull has an EPD of +25.0, would we expect their progeny out of a different breed of dam (e.g., Angus) to weigh about the same? No, not unless the adjustment factor is about the same. In this case the AB-EPD for the Simmental bull is 49.4, which is the table adjustment factor of 24.4 added to the Simmental EPD of +25.0. The AB-EPD of the Hereford bull is 28.3, the table adjustment of +3.3 added to the Hereford EPD of 25.0. In this example, progeny of the Simmental bull would be expected to weigh, on average 21.1 pounds more at weaning than progeny of the Hereford bull (24.4 +25.0) - (3.3 + 25.0) = 21.1 pounds.

EPDs are published annually by breed associations for most breeds of beef cattle. EPDs can be used to estimate differences expected in performance of future progeny of two or more individuals in the same breed for birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight, maternal weaning weight, and milking ability (as reflected in progeny weaning weights). Without the across breed adjustment factors, EPDs can not be used to compare animals of different breeds because they are computed separately for each breed and each breed has a different base point.

Are these predictions of average difference in calves of two or more parents perfect? No, EPDs are not perfect for comparing any two bulls of the same breed, and AB-EPDs are somewhat less accurate for comparing bulls of two different breeds. Since the breed differences are estimated with relatively large numbers of sires and progeny at MARC, results from updated statistical analysis indicate that precision of the AB-EPD estimates depend primarily upon accuracy of within breed EPDs of individual bulls being compared. The AB-EPDs for MILK were estimated with lower precision relative to corresponding estimates for birth weight, direct weaning weight, and yearling weight.

The adjustment factors were updated using national cattle evaluations produced in 1998 by associations of each of the 12 breeds. The table is based on "head to head" comparison of the breeds at the U.S. Meat Animal Research Center (MARC), Clay Center, Neb. The analysis was conducted by MARC Research Geneticists, Dale Van Vleck and Larry Cundiff.

NFU Calls For Greater Competition To Remedy Rail Shortages

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Returning competition to the railroad industry is the best way to have adequate, competitively-priced rail service for transport of farmers' grain, National Farmers Union (NFU) leaders told a consortium of industry leaders here.

In addition to NFU, those participating included U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Secretary Dan Glickman, Surface Transportation Board Chairman Linda Morgan, Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., Burlington North Sante Fe CEO Robert Krebs and other transportation and agriculture representatives. The meeting was organized by Sen. Tim Johnson, D-S.D.

Representing NFU at the meeting were North Dakota Farmers Union President Robert Carlson, South Dakota Farmers Union President Dennis Wiese, South Dakota producer Randy Knecht of Houghton, S.D., and NFU legislative representative Lynne McBride.

Railroads transported 120 million fewer bushels of grain in 1997 as they did in 1996 due to a lack of rail car availability and inadequate coordination. As a result, many farmers either had to pay for alternative transportation or their grain rotted. NFU was one of 10 agriculture organizations to oppose the 1996 merger of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific railroads on the basis that it would create a monopoly for railroad transporters in some areas of the country.

Knecht, who raises grain and cattle, objects to the railroad's proposal to double the number of cars per train and reduce the number of stops each train makes. "When these systems are built, it will create central points of delivery and eliminate local competition. It pits small town against small town and co-op against co-op," Knecht said. "I think it would be the worst thing to happen to agriculture since we had 20 percent interest rates."

Knecht believes recent railroad mergers have actually reduced the efficiency of grain haulers and was thankful to have an opportunity to voice his concerns with future operations. "We are glad that Senator Johnson organized this meeting and hope an arrangement that provides producers with competitively-priced, reliable rail transportation can be achieved," Knecht said.

National Dairy Shrine To Honor Leaders, Dairy Students

COLUMBUS, Ohio — National Dairy Shrine (NDS) will hold its annual awards banquet Oct. 1 during the World Dairy Expo, Madison, Wisconsin.

Activities will start at 5:30 p.m. with a social hour in the Expo Center followed by the banquet and awards ceremony at 6:30 p.m.

NDS will honor its leaders (past and present) and present thousands of dollars to dairy students who will be the leaders of tomorrow's dairy industry.

National Dairy Shrine is an organization devoted to preserving the past and molding the future of America's dairy industry.

The National Cattlemen's Beef Association, Wisconsin Beef Council and Provini Veal, recognize the important functions of NDS and they are providing Veal Florentune for this year's banquet.

Three awards are presented annually to individuals who have made significant contributions to the dairy industry: Guest of Honor (one individual each year); four Pioneeers are recognized for their contributions to the dairy industry; and one Distinguished Breeder is honored.

During the banquet approximately $20,000 is awarded to students pursuing careers in the dairy industry. The most coveted scholarship is the Kildee ($3,000) and it goes to one individual each year. Seven students will receive the NDS/DMI Marketing Inc. scholarships. Five students will receive cash awards totaling $4,500 as dairy student recognition winners.

Banquet tickets ($12) are available now by contacting National Dairy Shrine, 1224 Alton Darby Creek Rd., Columbus, OH 43228-9792; Phone: 614-878-5333; Fax: 614-870-2622; or e-mail: cobass.aol.com.

Guest Of Honor

Richard Clauss, a leading California dairyman, cheese marketer and Jersey breed leader, has been named National Dairy Shrine Guest of Honor for 1998.

Clauss, of Hilmar, Calif. started his dairy career with 20 Jerseys in 1954. Today, he and his family own the largest Jersey operation in the world, with three dairies totaling more than 2,500 milking cows.

Hundreds of dairy producers and students visit each year to see first-hand the Clauss family's innovations in nutrition, housing and heifer raising. The herds have a rolling average of over 17,000 pounds of milk and 655 pounds of protein.

With the philosophy that there is no need to produce something unless it can be marketed at a fair price, Dick Clauss joined with 10 other dairy producers to establish Hilmar Cheese Company in 1984.

Receiving nearly 5 million pounds of milk per day, Hilmar Cheese is now the world's largest single site, integrated cheese and whey products plant. Its products are marketed throughout the United States and internationally.

As chairman of the board of Hilmar Cheese Company, Clauss has helped improve milk prices for hundreds of California dairy producers.

Since its inception, the company has paid more than $1 billion to dairymen through its cheese yield payment system, creating competition that resulted in other area plants paying higher prices as well.

Clauss is also a long-time leader and innovators in the Jersey breed. He served a combined 17 years on the boards of the American Jersey Cattle Association (AJCA) and National All-Jersey (NAJ), from 1980 to 1997. Clauss is one of the few people to serve as president of both organizations, and in both capacities made many significant contributions to the dairy industry.

Under Clauss' leadership, NAJ played a major role in the nationwide acceptance of multiple component pricing (MCP) of milk. As AJCA president, Clauss led the organization to package its programs — registration, milk marketing, appraisal and performance — to make them more attractive to large dairy farmers. He also helped start a business re-engineering project at AJCA, leading to more efficient registration processing.

In an effort to improve the Jersey breed and supply his dairies with top quality replacements, Clauss helped found Jerseyland Sires in 1979.

Clauss is currently president of this young sire proving group, which samples about 24 young Jersey bulls each year. Among Jerseyland's accomplishments is the development of Highland Magic Duncan, a former number one bull for both type and production who continues to have a large impact on the breed.

Clauss' past awards have included 1995 World Dairy Expo Dairyman of the Year, California Polytechnic State University Dairyman of the Year and 1998 American Jersey Cattle Association Distinguished Service Award.

Clauss and his wife, Sharon, have three daughters, Kirsten Russell, Karen Tate and Kimberly Clauss.

Distinguished Breeder

Wayne E. Sliker of Top Acres Brown Swiss Farm, along with his wife, Connie, has been named as the winner of the National Dairy Shrine's Distinguished Dairy Cattle Breeder Award for 1998.

The annual award recognizes an active, progressive dairyman who, through expertise in managing a dairy breeding herd based upon sound genetic and business principles, serves as a model of success for contemporaries.

Wayne's Top Acres Brown Swiss herd evolved from a late 1950's FFA project, when Wayne was a high school student in New Jersey. Today the 200-head herd is known both nationally and internationally.

Wayne has had 84 All Americans and 78 Reserve All-Americans thru the 1996 show season, considered to be more than any other Brown Swiss breeder. The majority of these animals carry the Top Acres prefix. Since he started showing, he has 42 two-year-olds nominated for these awards.

The herd has also produced 10 National Total Performance winners in seven consecutive years. Currently there are 52 animals at Top Acres who are themselves National Total Performance winners or the daughters or granddaughters of National Total Performance Winners. More cows have appeared on the Cow Performance List from this herd than from any other Brown Swiss herd.

The strong breeding program at Top Acres has led to 58 sires placed in AI service. In the top 25 Net Merit Brown Swiss sires in the February summary, eight came from Wayne Sliker's "Pricella" family.

He currently owns one of the highest scored Brown Swiss at EX-94. Wayne has exported cattle and embryos from his herd to more than 12 foreign countries. He was one of the first to export embryos to the United Kingdom.

Wayne and his wife, Connie, also manage Modern Associates, a cattle sales business. Through this service he has helped raise over $100,000 for the National Brown Swiss Youth Fund at the Fun Sale at the National Brown Swiss annual meeting.

With an appreciation for quality cattle, Wayne has been a national and international judge for all breeds.

Starting with state FFA secretary and president and an American Farmer degree in high school, Wayne has earned numerous awards and recognitions. He earned the Klussendorf Award in 1986, the Ohio Progressive Breeder Award, and was named to the Ohio State University Dairy Science Hall of Service.

The home team at Sliker's 225-acre farm at St. Paris, Ohio, includes his wife, Connie, an expert calf raiser and sale clerk, and son, Kevin, an automotive technician.

The 1997 herd average for 65 cows was 20,720 milk, 973 butterfat and 786 pounds protein, with a herd classification average of 89 points.

Wayne is known as a supporter of youth programs, shows and sales, through promotion and advertising. In support Wayne's nomination, R. Peter Heffering said, "Wayne is one of the finest showmen in the business, and most important always conducts himself as a first class gentleman. Wayne has accomplished all the goals one could expect to attain in a lifetime of working with cattle."

On July 1 the Slikers sold 95 head in the "Top Acres Sale" for an average of $6,110 per head, the highest average for a herd sale in the history of the breed.

Four Pioneers

Four pioneers of the dairy industry have been selected to receive Pioneer Awards from the National Dairy Shrine, the "Hall of Fame" of the dairy industry.

The 1998 award recipients are: Clarence Boyke, Hilton Boynton, Harold Kaeser and Marshall McCullough. Their portraits are to hang in the National Dairy Shrine's Visitor's Center and Museum in Fort Atkinson, Wis.

"Clarence personified the universal law of giving," was how one nominator described pioneer award winner. Clarence Boyke of Fond du Lac, Wisconsin. Living the life of a dairyman, a family man, a businessman and an agricultural leader allowed Clarence many successful experiences.

The Vir-Clar herd developed by Clarence, his wife Virginia and their son Gary, always rises to the top of state and even national type and production rankings. The "Vir Clar" prefix has graced several Artificial Insemination sires proven in the United States and overseas.

Boyke's pioneering spirit led him to be one of the earliest United States breeders to promote international marketing of United States genetics. This spirit carried him overseas and brought numerous guests to the United States.

The leadership skills of Boyke were exemplified through his role on numerous boards especially with Artificial Insemination companies. He helped to lead East Central Breeders, Select Sire, Inc. and Select Embryos, Inc., through major changes in the dairy industry, and was instrumental in the affiliation of East Central Breeders with Select Sires in 1977.

These contributions were recognized by the National Association of Animal Breeders (NAAB) when they presented Boyke with the honor of Distinguished Member Director in 1995.

Clarence's dairy, A.I., and community experiences were honored in 1993 as the World Dairy Expo 1993 Dairyman of the Year.

His wife, Virginia, was also honored previously at World Dairy Expo as the Dairy Woman of the Year, and they are only the second husband and wife team to achieve such an honor. Virginia currently resides in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, where they raised their three sons and two daughters.

Boynton was raised in South Hadley, Massachusetts, where his dairy career began with 4-H dairy project work. He then went on to Iowa State University for undergraduate and graduate degrees.

Between degrees he worked as a 4-H agent in Massachusetts. Following his schooling he stayed in Iowa to work as an extension dairyman. He then went to the University of New Hampshire as an extension dairyman and completed a doctorate degree at Rutger's University.

Boynton's extension experiences led him to being named professor in charge of the dairy section at the University of New Hampshire. With Boynton's guidance, the university Holstein herd became nationally known for its type and production. Holsteins were not his only area of expertise as he also judged Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, and Jerseys. One nominator described Boynton as "one of the best judges of Jerseys." Boynton used the show ring as a teaching tool to help educate people about breeding for sharp, clean dairy character without getting the cattle too frail. "Size, strength and bone to go with dairyness," was how one nominator remembers Boynton's description of high quality dairy cattle.

"Honest, gentleman and organized," are just a few of the words used by one nominator to describe Boynton. He served as a role model for both young and old. With organization and progressive thinking, Boynton proposed the organization of the New Hampshire Purebred Dairy Cattle Association (NHPDCA) in 1953. This then led to the initiation of the Granite State Dairy Jubilee Show in 1958.

The education process did not stop with his retirement from UNH. He continued to use his leadership skills through the organization of regional, national and international conferences for several breed organizations. His wife, Alma Boynton, currently resides in Massachusetts, where they raised their two children.

Harold Kaeser, of Columbus, Ohio, is the only living pioneer to be recognized in 1998. Kaeser is honored for his tremendous service and contribution during his 39-year tenure at The Ohio State University as an associate professor of dairy science.

Kaeser received his undergraduate degree in agriculture from Iowa State University in 1941. He then continued his education and interest in dairy cattle at The Ohio State University. Upon receiving his master's degree in 1947, Kaeser began his work at OSU.

While at Ohio State, Kaeser had a strong impact on many students. Over 500 students worked at the OSU dairy barns under Kaeser's guidance. The dairy was one of the premier dairy hereds consisting of five breeds at that time. Kaeser also served as the advisor of the OSU Dairy Science Club.

Harold Kaeser's name is synonymous with dairy cattle evaluation and judging. He coached a total of 34 OSU teams with 23 teams placing in the top ten, 14 teams placing in the top five and four national championships. Students and dairymen alike learned from Kaeser and respected his cow knowledge.

Marshall McCullough, "Mac" to his friends, was described by his nominators as "the pioneer of T.M.R.'s."

As the head of the Animal Science Department at the University of Georgia, McCullough was recognized as an authority in the area of silage fermentation and preservation. His most significant contributions were targeted toward the "Complete Diet Feeder" which soon became known as "Total Mixed Ration."

McCullough's expertise in dairy nutrition was easily shared through a unique, yet effective communication style. McCullough had a way of taking his expertise and expressing his thoughts through practical experience. One nominator described McCullough as "forever bridging the gap between the farm and the university."

The international experiences of McCullough were numerous, with travels to the United Kingdom, Japan, Canada, Israel and beyond. "Mac" . . . in host countries never presumed to know more about the business than the farmer himself," described one nominator. This type of attitude made him an asset to the dairy industry.

McCullough's legacy is expected to remain in all touched by his words and through his contributions to the improvement of productive and healthy dairy cattle around the world.

McCullough will continue to touch those he cared about most, the youth, through scholarships honoring his name.

McCullough was born in Wick, West Virinia, and is survived by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Edith Louise McCullough of Pennsylvania.

Kildee Scholarship

Christopher Holcomb, Newberry, Fla., has been selected to receive the prestigious Kildee Scholarship from the National Dairy Shrine. The $3,000 scholarship is awarded annually for advanced study by students who have excelled in dairy cattle judging.

A graduate student at the University of Florida studying dairy nutition, Holcomb also serves as coach for the university's dairy judging team.

Holcomb received his first registered Guernsey as a gift at the age of nine. Since then he has been raising, showing and judging dairy cattle around the country.

He took individual placements of first high in oral reasons and second high overall during the 1997 National Intercollegiate Dairy Judging Contest, as well as third place in the 4-H judging competition at the 1993 World Dairy Expo.

In addition, Holcomb has held numerous leadership positions within both 4-H and FFA serving as a local president of both organizations. He was a member of the Florida State 4-H Dairy Judging Team that won in national competition and toured Europe on a goodwill mission.

At the University of Florida, Holcomb achieved a 3.2 grade point average while serving as president of the university Dairy Club, an ambassador for the College of Agriculture and first vice president for the Southern Region of the student affiliate of the American Dairy Science Association.

The Kildee Scholarship is named for H.H. Kildee, longtime dean of the College of Agriculture at Iowa State in Ames, Iowa. Kildee was an outstanding judge of dairy cattle and a strong supporter of student judging programs and activities.

Student Recognition Contest

Cory Meyers

Cory Meyers of St. Thomas, Pa., is the 1998 contest winner.

As the top winner, Meyers receives a $1,500 cash award which will be presented at the National Dairy Shrine awards banquet in Madison, Wis., during World Dairy Expo.

Meyers began his commitment to the dairy industry as a young boy watching and working beside his father and uncle at Meyers Brothers Dairy.

Since then Cory has taken on nutritional, reproductive, and health management responsibilities at the dairy that are helping increase the rolling herd average while maintaining functional show-type cows.

By setting and prioritizing goals with his strong work ethic, Meyers has found himself at or near the top numerous times.

He was a successful dairy judge as a 4-H member and Penn State student, and shared his skills as a teaching assistant for Penn State's Dairy Cattle Evaluation class.

Active in the Penn State Dairy Science Club, Meyers chaired the Nittany Lion Fall Classic consignment sale. He also was active in Alpha Zeta, Ag Student Council, American Dairy Science Association, Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association, Concert Choir and Glee Club.

Fascinated with the links between nutrition, environment and health in dairy cattle, Meyers' goal as a future veterinarian is to help producers overcome the limiting factors to their dairies.

Jennifer Rishel, of New Columbia, Pa., and Brian Christiansen, of Turner, Oregon, tied for second place.

Jennifer Rishel

Jennifer Rishel has no reservations about what her future will hold as a dairy producer. A graduate of Delaware Valley College, Doylestown, Pa., Jennifer has rounded herself very well for her future as a leader in the dairy industry.

Rishel has prepared herself with exposure to many different styles of dairying. She managed a 40-cow grazing Ayrshire herd with her brother, worked at the Delaware Valley College free-stall dairy and was an assistant herdsperson in a tie-stall operation.

While at Delaware Valley College Jennifer was an integral member of the dairy judging team. She was 3rd place individual and a member of the 5th place team at the 1997 North American International Livestock Exposition Collegiate Dairy Judging Contest. She also shined as 5th place individual and on the 4th place team at the 1997 World Dairy Expo Collegiate Judging Contest.

Along with her upstanding leadership skills as a 4-H, FFA, Dairy Club and other college organizations member, Jennifer challenged herself even further. She made the dean's list seven consecutive semesters and was recognized in '96, '97 and '98 in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Brian Christiansen

Brian Christiansen plans to put his degree and experiences from California Polytechnic State University with a breed association or an AI company and in the long term return home to his family's growing dairy.

While a student, Christiansen was a dairy cattle judge, Dairy Club secretary, ADSA undergraduate paper presenter, FFA Chapter vice president and an active member of Alpha Zeta and the Oregon Holstein Association.

As a herdsman at Cal Poly and his family's dairy, Meadowood,

Brian has taken a very active role in dairy management. He is experienced in all aspects of day-to-day dairying including mating selections, classification and the showing preparations and embryo transfer work.

In the future when Christiansen returns to the family dairy, he would like to give to others as dairying has given to him. Brian wants to build a facility that teaches the metropolitan population about the dairy industry and that milk doesn't come from a gallon jug.

Tied for fourth were Jeffrey Bewley of Rineyville, Ky., and Andrea Steffens of Clermont, Iowa.

Jeffrey Bewley

Obtaining his master's degree in dairy genetics and management is the next step for Jeff Bewley.

Jeff has worked in the areas of dairy genetic selection, lab work, collection of liver and blood samples, progeny evaluation, marketing and public relations, milking, feeding, artificial insemination and record keeping to prepare himself for a career in the dairy industry.

Jeffrey was a strong leader at the University of Kentucky as Dairy Club president, Alpha Zeta Chancellor, ADSA first vice president, a Block and Bridle member, as a member of the dairy judging team, in the Catholic Newman Center while maintaining a GPA of 3.71. Bewley was recognized as the 1997 Southern ADSA outstanding student.

Andrea Steffens

Andrea Steffens was raised on her family's registered Holstein farm near Clermont, Iowa and is no stranger to commitment and dedication. Andrea worked above and beyond the average as a dairy cattle judge, Dairy Science Club president, College of Agriculture Student Council vice president, researcher and in managing the dairy farm at Iowa State University.

Andrea has earned her American FFA Degree, was an Iowa State Undergraduate Researcher of the Year, has had research published in the Journal of Dairy Science while being recognized on the dean't list.

As a member of the Iowa Junior Holstein Association, Steffens is a familiar face in the show ring, served as president and vice president, was a member of the national competing quizbowl team, was honored as a Distinguished Junior and was named a National Holstein Association Distinguished Junior Member Finalist.

Milk Marketing Scholarship

The purpose of the Milk Marketing Scholarship is to encourage qualified undergraduate students to pursue careers in marketing of dairy products.

Of the seven finalists, Mindy S. Andino, Middlesex, N.J. was chosen as the $1,000 winner.

Mindy Andino

As a student at Cook College at Rutgers University, Mindy Andino has consistently distinguished herself through her personal qualities and leadership skills.

Mindy is majoring in environmental business economics and communications and is expected to graduate in May 1999.

On campus Mindy is involved in several extracurricular activities including the Cook College Residence Life organization where Mindy has been a resident assistant since 1996 and the Cook College Leadership Committee where she was appointed to the Dean's Steering Committee, Community Service Committee, Technology Committee and helped in organizing the LBI Leadership retreat.

Mindy has completed an internship with Land O'Lakes where she was the New Jersey state sales coordinator. Through this internship Mindy had the opportunity to be involved in the cheeses of the world program, develop her own marketing and sales plans, and travel across the state giving dairy food presentations, handing out samples and contacting numerous people.

Mindy said that, through her internship with Land O'Lakes and practical experiences, she has formed a deep and sincere interest in the international promotion of the dairy foods industry and hopes to explore this field more in depth as an exchange student this summer in Spain.

Keneko Claybon

A food science and technology major at the University of Tennessee, Keneko Claybon plans to continue her studies in the field after her May 1999 graduation.

Keneko is a member of the Dairy Products Evaluation Team and is very involved in the University of Tennessee Food Tech Club where she did extensive work in marketing promotion and helped design a brochure that marketed the University of Tennessee and the Department of Food Science and Technology to prospective students.

Keneko has received many outstanding honors and after graduation plans to continue her studies focusing on the milk in many commercial foods and increasing the amount of milk solids.

Jamie Kern

As a business and marketing major at Washington State University, Jamie Kern has traveled to Australia and Japan to gain international marketing experience.

While on campus, Jamie has been involved in the Golden Key National Honor Society, WSU Honors Program, and Coug Marketing Network. Jamie is also involved in the American Red Cross as a volunteer. She continued this commitment while studying abroad in Australia.

After graduating, Jamie plans to attend graduate school with the ultimate goal of a career in marketing. Jamie finds the possibility of being able to reach people through developing and mastering an advertising campaign extremely inspiring and would like to implement that in her career goals.

Brian Voortman

Brian Voortman is an animal science major at Washington State University where he plans to graduate in December and pursue a career as a veterinarian after attending graduate school.

On campus Brian has been involved in Sigma Chi Fraternity where he served as secretary and vice president. Brian is also involved in ASWSU Greek Week, WSU Dairy Club, ASWSU Homecoming Committee, and ASWSU Alcohol Task Force.

Brian said that many people see the role of the veterinarian as only maintaining herd health and solving problems, but Brian said the role of the veterinarian is also to provide preventive planning and consultation to the producer to avoid future problems because ultimately, it is the producer's responsibility to guarantee milk quality and that involves utilizing the veterinarian's knowledge and skills to complete this task.

Dorothy Malsack

Dorothy Malsack is attending Eastern Michigan University where she is majoring in dietetics.

Dorothy is involved in many campus activities, including being a student speaker, Walk Group Leader, LEAP, and is a member of Ann Arbor Dietetic Association and the American Dietetic Association and numerous other campus and community organizations.

Her concern for the health of individuals (especially women and children) and passion for milk as a nutrient-packed refreshment are what is encouraging Dorothy to further her endeavors in the marketing of the milk and dairy food group.

Heather Hennes

As a dairy science and agribusiness major at Cal Poly, Heather is involved in numerous activities. She was very involved in several aspects of the Cal Poly Los Lecheros Dairy Club, Cal Poly Product Enhancement Team, Cal Poly Agribusiness Management Club and served as Cal Poly agriculture ambassador.

After graduation Heather plans to possibly continue her education before entering the workforce. Heather would like to enter into the public relations field or finance in the dairy industry where she would like to continue to her involvement in promoting the dairy industry and its numerous products.

Mark Ulness

"Dairy product marketing is essential in the career of dairy farming," said Mark Ulness, dairy science major at the University of Wisconsin — Madison. "The vast majority of farm income is from milk sales and as a dairy producer, it is obvious to me that dairy product marketing will have a major effect on my future as a producer."

At college, Mark is involved in Alpha Gamma Rho, Headstart, and the Badger Dairy Club. He was also a member of the UW Dairy Cattle Judging Team and the UW marching band. After graduation Mark plans to return to the family dairy farm.
